AFL Chiefs Back Fight To Restore WPA Hours

Leaders Support Strikers, Arguing Government Should Set U. S. Standards

Labor Problems

WPA CHIEF HARRINGTON announced in Chicago wages of WPA workers would be reduced in the North and West, while those in the South would be increased. Page 2.

HARLAN COUNTY'S "BLOODY" reputation received another smear as a miner was killed and five were wounded in a battle between C. I. O. pickets and National Guardsmen; 300 more troops, with tanks, were sent to the scene. Page 3.

FURTHER STRIKES were threatened by United Auto Workers despite opening of negotiations between the union and General Motors over a dispute which has made nearly 7,000 men idle. Page 3.

Pay Restoration Asked

The American Federation of Labor threw its full force yesterday behind a movement to persuade Congress and the President to restore prevailing hourly wage rates to persons on WPA as thousands of strikers were being dropped from the relief rolls after five days' absence from work.

At a meeting here, leaders of A. F. of L. unions unanimously adopted a report criticizing the Administration and Congress for altering the old law so that many skilled WPA employes have to work much longer than formerly for practically the same monthly wage.

Didn't Order Strikes

Petitioning for revision of the law enacted less than two weeks ago, A. F. of L. officials said "it is alarming to believe that the Government of the United States is now bent on a policy of wage-cutting and lengthening working hours."

William Green, president of the federation, asserted that "no union man will willingly work for any man or any government for a lower rate of wages than his union has fixed for him," but he said that the strikes on WPA projects were "never ordered by the A. F. of L., because we fully recognize the fact that the remedy lies with Congress rather than through strikes."

To Ask Jobs Back

However, not all the A. F. of L. leaders agreed with him, for a roar of approval followed a declaration by Hugh Van Arsdale, of the Electrical Workers Brotherhood in New York, "if Congress deserts the building trades unions, I suggest we strike every Government job in the country and not let a wheel move on any job in which the Government has an interest." No action was taken.

Other union leaders demanded that striking WPA workers who lose their jobs be permitted to return to work. Green promised he would discuss the matter with the President.

"I refuse to believe," he said "that the President of the United States would stand for discrimination against workers because they quit

'Dutch' Irwin Given Parole on Promise of Job

Morris E. (Dutch) Irwin, 52, was granted a parole yesterday after serving approximately 2½ years of an indeterminate two-to-six-year term at Lorton Reformatory on conviction of conspiracy to violate the District gaming laws. He began his sentence February 8, 1937, a year after he went on trial here with six others.

Parole was granted, the board said, after confirming a statement Irwin had been promised a job that would "definitely protect against resumption of gambling activities." The board refused to grant a parole last February, calling attention to "the deliberate nature of his violation of the gambling laws."

Irwin was arrested on a warrant when an establishment in the 1100 block of Fourteenth street was raided in October, 1935, by vice squad members.

President May Carry Arms Plea to Nation

Considers Message To Force Buffeted Bill to Senate Vote

Break in Clouds

WALTER LIPPMANN, columnist, just back from Europe, told President Roosevelt peace prospects are good, that Britain and France are much stronger, and that there is a growing disgust with Hitler. Page 9.

FUEHRER HITLER was reported deeply impressed by the demonstration "raid" of British bombers over France, as Britain tossed $370,000,000 more into army defense preparations.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI was revealed to have personally ordered expulsion of all foreigners from the Tyrol, including Americans, and recalled Ambassador Grandi from London to join his cabinet. Page 5.

Battle Lines Revamped

A last effort to arouse the Senate to neutrality action through a Presidential message was under consideration yesterday, as discouraged leaders canvassed every parliamentary method of forcing the buffeted bill to a vote.

Two courses lay open—a motion to discharge the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which pigeonholed the measure, and an attempt to add the bill as a rider to other pending legislation.

Wadsworth Backs President

Of these, a committee discharge motion was said to face probable defeat and leaders were undecided on the second alternative of offering the measure as a legislative rider. A majority for arms embargo repeal was claimed in the Senate, but strategists divided on how to force a showdown.

In this quandary, a move from the White House was awaited. Reports that the President was considering a direct appeal to Congress and to the country to act now to repeal the arms embargo in advance of a more serious international crisis followed several conferences with Secretary of State Hull at the White House.

One prominent House Republican meanwhile sided with the President in appealing for repeal of the arms

Throng Gathers Under Stars for Watergate Concert

The stars lighted a magic scene at the Watergate last night. Twenty thousand people and the President of the United States sat, stood or reclined for an hour and a half, spellbound by a gray-haired man and 85 musicians.

It was the opening concert of the National Symphony Orchestra's summer season, and Dr. Hans Kindler was welcomed onto the podium with thunderous applause that echoed across the Potomac from the Virginia hills. The largest crowd in the history of Watergate concerts sat breathless through the scheduled program, lengthened by a request number from the President, and then demanded two encores and would have stayed for more.

Seats Sold Out

They came early to get the best seats, young and old, students and professional musicians and the musically ignorant, carrying little children and helping aged parents.

Every seat was sold long before the concert started, yet long lines still waited to buy tickets. Many persons claimed the freedom of the grass and the roadways, lined the Memorial Bridge and Waterside Drive, climbed on to the Lincoln Memorial, and put their cushions, chairs and newspapers wherever the music might faintly drift through the still evening air.

Canoes, under Japanese lanterns, nestled softly against each other on each side of the barge, and motorboats waited silently beyond.

Lament of the Oboe

An antique vignette opened the program, a short and stately toccata, by Frescobaldi, announcing in seventeenth century dignity that the feast was to begin. Then, when the last late-coming ticket holder had found his seat, the long organ point on the drums and the haunting song of the horns began the main work of the program, Brahms, First Symphony, in C minor.

The strong, surging passion of the music spread through the listening thousands, relaxed in the front rows, straining for the notes at the back. The music swelled out into the unconfined space, losing perhaps a little of the force of the climaxes, the rich color of the harmonies fading slightly at the edges of the limitless concert hall.

But through the quiet air the tearing lament of the oboe solo in the second movement, the joyous open

Two Trapped Night in 'Chute Jump Again to Steady Nerves

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 12.—The socially prominent J. Cornelius Rathbornes returned to the New York World's Fair late today and made a parachute jump from the same tower from which they hung helplessly 125 feet above ground for five hours overnight in a disabled, 'chute

Their second descent was made in the usual 15 seconds, as compared with the long siege that started last night when a jammed cable and a fouled guy wire held them aloft until rescue efforts finally succeeded early this morning.

Although they returned to complete their jump—just as fliers go aloft again immediately after a crackup to steady their nerves—they did not use the chute which became disabled and attracted a great crowd last night.

Because of veering winds, they took a chute on the opposite side, where four of the 11 "umbrellas" were operating on the 250-foot tower.

"I really loved it," said Mrs. Rathborne, the former Nancy Huidekoper, of Baltimore. This trip was "on the house."

She had insisted that the rescuing mechanics, William Gertis and Harry Mitchell, handle the controls for the ride she did take.

"If you get thrown once," philosophized the polo-playing Rathborne,

Senate Boosts Old-Age Grant To States

U. S. Would Put Up $2 for Every $1 for First $15 of Pensions

By Robert C. Albright

The Senate yesterday voted 43 to 35 to increase Federal old-age assistance grants to the States more than $80,000,000 a year in a move conservative opponents warned is "a step toward the Townsend plan."

The amendment, opposed by the Senate Finance Committee and the Social Security Board, requires the Federal Government to put up $2 for every $1 supplied by the States toward the first $15 of needy old age pensions.

The balance, up to $40 monthly, would be financed on a 50-50 matching basis with the States. Thus States which supplied only $5 could pay a $15 pension to the needy aged. By staking $17.50 against the Federal Government's $22.50, States could pay a maximum $40 pension.

Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, offered the amendment after it was crushed by the Finance Committee. Connally argued it would enable the "poorer" States now unable to match the Federal Government dollar for dollar to pay more adequate pensions.

The plan quickly won support from Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, who withdrew his own "variable formula" proposal to proportion Federal aid on State per capita income. But it drew the sharp fire of Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, and Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan.

"Are we going to a transactions tax such as the advocates of the Townsend plan favor?" asked Byrd.

Mate to Dispense $500,000 Estate of Roebling Heiress

By the United Press.

Reno, Nev., July 12.—Paul A. Walters, widower of Caroline Roebling Hagner Walters, granddaughter of the late John Roebling, builder of the Brooklyn Bridge, who was killed by an accidental shot here, today received special letters of administration in her $500,000 estate.

The estate consists of $300,000 in bonds now in care of the National Metropolitan Bank of Washington, D. C.; a $100,000 farm in Fauquier County, Va.; a $15,000 home at Nantucket Island, Mass.; jewels and furniture valued at $10,000 and 12,937 shares of capital stock of the John R. Roebling & Sons Construction Co.

Walters' petition stated that Mrs. Walters, whose death by a pistol wound at her Reno home Saturday was held accidental by a coroner's jury, left a will in possession of the law firm of Hogan & Hartson, Washington, D. C.

Kress Art Treasures Given to U. S.

Priceless Exhibit Of Italian Works To Be Placed in National Gallery

The Samuel H. Kress collection of painting and sculpture, acclaimed as the greatest private holding of Italian art in the world, has been presented to the National Gallery of Art in Washington, it was announced yesterday by David K. E. Bruce, president of the board of trustees of the National Gallery.

The collection, consisting of 375 paintings and 18 pieces of sculpture, will become available for the gallery before the formal opening.

The acquisition by the American public of the collection brings to Washington an art treasure of a price impossible to estimate. "It would be difficult to place a value upon it since the objects are unique, and therefore priceless," the announcement stated.

Major Painters Included

Virtually all the important painters of the Italian school from the thirteenth to the eighteenth century are represented. Included are works by Duccio, Simone Martini, Giotto, Masolino, Fra Angelico, Gentile da Fabriano, Filippo Lippi Domenico Veneziano, Sassetta, Benozzo Gozzoli, Ghirlandaio, Filippino Lippi, Piero di Cosimo, Andrea del Sarto, Signorelli, Pintoricchio, Perugino, Mantegna, Correggio, Crivelli, Giovanni Bellini, Carpaccio, Giorgione, Titian, Tintoretto and Paola Veronese. There is sculpture by Desiderio da Settignano, Rosellino, Benedetto da Maiano, Sansovino and Andrea della Robbia.

"Art critics who have seen the Kress collection write in praise, not only of the beauty and quality of the paintings, but also of their fine condition," Bruce commented. "Mr. Kress has spared neither effort nor expense to conserve these works of art so that they may be fully appreciated and seen to the best advantage."

Experts, he said, have declared there is no private collection in the world, and very few museums, which can illustrate in as complete a manner as the Kress collection the development of the Italian school of painting and sculpture during the Renaissance.

U. S. Gallery Supreme

"When this great collection is installed in the National Gallery, with the other masterpieces already there, the newly established gallery will immediately become one of the outstanding centers for the study of the Italian school of art, not only in the United States, but in the world," Bruce added.

In a letter of July 1 to President Roosevelt, suggesting the gift, Kress said: "Recalling the interest which you expressed in art in our country when I called on you several years ago, I am writing to inform you . . . that I am arranging to give to the National Gallery of Art in Washington for its official opening my collection of Italian paintings and sculpture . . . This will require the removal of practically all the paintings from my home, making, of course, a great change there, but I feel that any loss in that way will be compensated by the knowledge that my collection of Italian paintings and

Girl Escapes Crazed Attacker In Capitol Hall

An attempted attack on a pretty Congressional committee secretary in a corridor at the United States Capitol Tuesday was revealed by police yesterday when a lookout was broadcast for an apparently demented youth.

The victim was uninjured. She told Detective James E. Kane, of the First Precinct, that she was walking through the Senate wing of the Capitol about 5:15 p. m. Tuesday when she noticed a slightly-built youth following her.

The youth placed his hand on her shoulder, she said, and she ran to a nearby washroom. A maid called police, but the attacker escaped.

House Again Rejects D. C. Tax Bill; Jests As Payday Hopes Fade

Conferees Told to Retract $6,500,000 Agreement, Only Concession to Senate

By James D. Secrest.

Heedless of the threat of a payless payday for 11,500 District employes, the House late yesterday repudiated its own conferees on the local tax conference report and flatly told the Senate that it wouldn't yield a dollar in the lump-sum fight that has tied up District funds.

By a vote of 239 to 74 it rejected the compromise proposal in which the House won over the Senate in all issues except the lump-sum authorization and forced the Senate to drop from $8,000,000 to $6,500,000 on that.

It then adopted a motion to instruct the conferees not to agree to any authorization above $5,000,000 nor to a Senate proposal for a further tax study next year.

House leaders on both sides of the aisle failed to come to the aid of the House conferees, as they had indicated they would.

Little Hope of Accord

With the District's semimonthly payday due Saturday and the city without appropriated funds, there were few indications last night that the deadlock will be broken in time for the District to make up its $800,000 pay roll this week.

The House was in a holiday mood as it voted to persist in the tie-up of District funds.

One member suggested that Congress cede the District back to Maryland, and as members applauded and guffawed Representative Kitchens, lanky Arkansas Democrat, joined in the fun with the invitation:

"Move the Capitol to Magnolia, Arkansas, (population 3,008) and we won't charge you anything."

Overton Blames House

Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, champion of the larger Federal contribution, declined to predict what will be the outcome of the apparent impasse, but he pointed out that if the District cannot meet its pay roll the Senate will not be to blame.

In a formal statement which intimated that he had no intention of giving in to the demands of the House, Senator Overton said: "The impasse is to be justly attributed to the action of the House."

Chariman Collins, of the House sub-committee on District appropriations, who opposed the tax conference report on the House floor, said he has no intention of offering a continuing resolution to rescue the District.

At the same time he predicted that the deadlock will be broken today. The implication was that the Senate would yield.

Only a special message from President Roosevelt, which was hinted last week in a White House statement, appeared likely to dislodge the District supply and revenue measures before adjournment of Congress.

"It is very much to be regretted that the House did not agree to the report on the District tax bill approved by its own conference," Senator Overton said in a prepared statement.

Senate Yielded Much

"The Senate, on the other hand, has agreed to the report submitted by the conferees of both houses. The impasse is to be justly attributed to the action of the House.

"Furthermore, it is to be observed that in order to provide the District with a revenue bill the Senate receded on all controversial items of taxation and acceded to the tax structure provided by the House.

"The Senate agreed, with minor modifications, to the imposition of

Senate Rejects 2% Club 'Ban' Asked by Bridges

Paul V. McNutt, Indiana's "man of destiny," was confirmed by the Senate as Federal Security administrator yesterday without the formality of a record vote.

This perfunctory action was not taken, however, without debate. Previously, the Senate had tabled a resolution by Senator Bridges (Republican), New Hampshire, that would have put it on record as opposing collection from employes in the Federal security group of the 2 per cent contribution which the McNutt organization in Indiana collects from State jobholders.

There had been no suggestion that a 2 per cent contribution was to be collected from employes in Federal agencies under McNutt's direction. The resolution, therefore, was interpreted as simply a "heckling" device used by Republicans to illuminate the method used by the McNutt organization to finance itself.

To Resign Isle Post

As a result of Senate confirmation, McNutt intends to resign immediately as Philippine High Commissioner and take the oath as Federal Security Administrator. He will then appoint Wayne Coy, his present secretary, as assistant security administrator.

The tall, energetic former Indiana Governor then will be busily at work in two capacities. He will be winding up his report on Philippine matters and becoming "initiated" into his new job.

There was continued talk, meanwhile, that McNutt's chances for the Democratic Presidential nomination has been enhanced by the appointment. One old-line Democratic Senator expressed the belief that McNutt would be satisfactory to the conservatives. The sympathetic attitude displayed by conservatives generally, in fact, was a noteworthy development.

Minton Adds to Praise

Senator Minton, Indiana, ardent New Dealer and wheelhorse in the McNutt organization, said he thought McNutt would "do a job as Federal Security Administrator so satisfactorily the Democrats won't want anyone else."

It was disclosed, moreover, that McNutt has extensive traveling

Roosevelt Names 3 of 6 Assistants

McReynolds, Currie And James Rowe To Aid President

By Felix Cotten.

Three men with a "passion for anonymity" were appointed by President Roosevelt yesterday as his administrative assistants to take some of the White House detail work off his hands.

They are William H. McReynolds, administrative assistant to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau since 1933; Lauchlin Currie, assistant research director of the Federal Reserve Board; James H. Rowe, jr., assistant to Brig. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, a Presidential secretary.

Senate confirmation of the appointees is not required by the departmental reorganization act, which created the positions. The act provides for six such jobs, each paying $10,000 annually. The White House gave no indication as to when the other three would be named.

It was believed the President might appoint as the remaining three assistants his three secertaries—Stephen T. Early, Marvin H. McIntyre, who has been away for some time because of illness, and Gen. Watson. If he should, three new secertaries would be appointed. There has been some feeling the job of administrative assistant would outrank that of secretary.

McReynolds, who is 59 and has been with the Government since 1906, will handle questions relating to personnel and administrative procedure. Currie, one of the Administration left-wing economists and a leading champion of spending for recovery theories, will have charge of economic problems. Rowe, who

Boy, 4, Is Killed By Truck Near Shut Playground

A 4-year-old boy, forty-fifth traffic victim of the year, died yesterday at Providence Hospital of injuries received when he ran into the street near his home, at 224 L street southwest, and was struck by a Treasury Department truck.

The child, Samuel Robertson, colored, lived only a block from the Bowen School playground, now under lock and key.

Funds Provided, 50 Supervised Playgrounds Open Tomorrow

Hundreds of Washington children, forced to risk their lives playing in traffic-clogged streets, will find new havens of vacation-time safety tomorrow when 50 additional school playgrounds are thrown open for their use under WPA supervision.

The impasse which has kept 112 centers, under lock and key since schools closed in June was finally broken yesterday, when Ross Haworth, WPA administrative assistant, announced that an expanded allotment for recreational projects had been approved by the Budget Bureau.

Under the expanded program, Haworth said, funds will be available tomorrow for the employment of 50 additional playground supervisors, bringing the total number of WPA recreation directors to 200. The Commissioners, he added, have accepted an offer to use the extra help on school playgrounds throughout the city which heretofore have been barred to vacationing youngsters.

Commissioner Hazen has called a meeting of his new playground commission for 10 a. m. tomorrow and it is expected that assignments of the 50 additional WPA supervisors will be made immediately. Nearly every suitable school play center will be opened under this

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

BIOGRAPHY OF A BILL

Impelled only by the highest motives, Congressman Mushmouth introduces a bill requiring all ice cream cones to be made with flat bottoms, so they can stand up.

I'll use his bill to illustrate what curious changes can happen to any bill between its introduction and final passage.

Harlan Miller

Because cones contain cream and cereal, the bill is referred to the committee on agriculture, and then to a subcommittee, which amends it to require a small handle near the top of each cone.

It goes back to the full committee, which amends it further to require two handles and a dab of orange marmalade on top, to placate southern California.

And so to the floor of the House, with a minority report from the subcommittee urging only one handle. There another amendment strikes out the sentence requiring a flat bottom, and still another stipulates that each cone shall contain at least three different flavors of ice cream, including some grated nuts, to please the pecan growers of Texas.

"—first, a flat-bottom cone"

In this form the Mushmouth cone bill is defeated by a close vote of 147 to 138.

But one of the "nay" voters, under pressure from the D. A. R., moves to reconsider, and next day the measure is passed overwhelmingly, 201 to 44, with a strong group of opposition Democrats joining the Republicans to pass it as a rebuke to the President.

As passed, it contains a joker, unnoticed in the heat of debate, requiring licensing of all ice cream cone vendors and a small porcelain holder for each cone, so the vendors' fingers won't touch it.

By this time the whole country is in a confused uproar and the D. A. R. is on the air urging mothers to write their Senators to restore the flat bottom as a rebuke to would-be dictators.

Thus the act goes to the Senate, where it is sponsored by Senator Marblehead.

It is now known as the Mushmouth-Marblehead bill, and goes to a subcommittee, which amends it to require all ice cream cones to be served in the form of a sandwich wrapped in not less than one ounce of cotton, to eliminate the cotton surplus.

That's Cotton Ed Smith's idea.

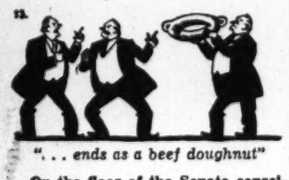
Hearings on the bill are now demanded and held by the full committee. Succumbing to pressure from the beef growers, the committee stipulates that each ice cream sandwich must contain a slice of American corned beef, in a deal with the tomato lobby also providing for a dab of ketchup. Senator Tydings, eager to hold the bill up in committee as a warning to tyrants, is overruled.



"... ends as a beef doughnut"

On the floor of the Senate conscientious, scholarly Senator King of Utah discovers that in its present form the bill requires the ice cream, beef and ketchup sandwich must have two handles like a soup bowl, as in the modified House bill.

From the Republican side comes a new amendment stipulating a hole in the middle, like a doughnut.

In this form the bill passes by a vote of 63 to 21, on strict party lines.

Senator Ashurst makes a speech congratulating the Senate on its patriotism and reminiscing about ancient doughnuts of Chaldea, which contained small pearls.

Whereupon Senator Thomas, of the silver bloc, leaps to his feet and demands an ounce of silver filigree on each cone.

Now the bill goes to conference. The House confreres agree to recede from their two-handle postion if the Senate confreres will agree to a small bulge on the bottom of each ice cream sandwich and a slice of dill pickle. A filibuster threatens until both Houses agree to eliminate the ice cream from the sandwich and substitute anchovy paste.

So help me, this is a faithful, realistic account of the adventures of many a bill in Congress.

Editor Warns That Muzzling Is Aid to Isms

Civil Liberties Are Waging Losing Battle, Institute Is Told

By the Associated Press.

Charlottesville, Va., July 12.—Bruce Bliven, editor of the New Republic, said tonight, "a democratic society cannot survive by anti-Democratic methods" involving the muzzling of such anti-democrats as Fascists.

"If we imitate the Fascists in fighting them," he said, "then they have won. It remains true that the solution of the problem of propaganda is more propaganda, propaganda from all sides, a public choice made freely in the light of all available information."

Civil liberties, he told the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia, are today fighting a losing battle throughout the world. The very speed at which the world is changing frightens many people, he added, "and causes them to feel that emergency conditions require emergency treatment, even when such treatment seems a violation of democratic principles."

Riegel, Dr. Reed Speak

Other speakers who participated in a discussion of propaganda, the press and the public were Oscar W. Riegel, director of the Lee Memorial Journalism Foundation at Washington and Lee University, and Dr. Helen Dwight Reid, head of the department of government in the University of Buffalo.

Riegel said that "with the press of two-thirds of the world serving a dictatorship of propaganda we must be alert to protect our own press from the same fate.

"The real danger is not propaganda alone, but propaganda with censorship. Perhaps it would be better to say that the only danger is censorship, which is a kind of propaganda in reverse."

Riegel said he was unable "to detect any evidence of increasing outside censorship of the American press, in spite of the loud wailing in certain quarters that the freedom of the press is being destroyed, or about to be destroyed, by the Federal Government.

"There is, I believe, some evidence of increasing internal censorship." Pointing out that the commercial newspaper "has a very important stake in the question of who gets what, when and how," and that newspaper establishments "represent great investments of capital," Riegel asserted:

Free Press Endangered

"Insofar as this institutional self-consciousness leads to a unanimity of political opinion in the press, with the voluntary censorship of certain types of news and opinion, it may become a grave danger both to the free press and to the Democratic system."

Dr. Reid told the institute "We are all too ready to accept the labels conveniently applied for us to phenomena that are relatively unfamiliar; the average citizen has many prejudices and preconceptions, and little background of sound information on international affairs to enable him to challenge the accuracy of the labels."

Argentine Envoy Pleads for Trade Pact With U. S.

By the Associated Press

Carlos Noel, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the Argentine Chamber of Deputies, declared here yesterday that a trade agreement between the United States and Argentine was "indispensable."

"Such an agreement, of a material nature," he said, "is essential to a further spiritual and political union which would contribute much to save the democratic spirit and republican organizations of the world."

Noel was escorted through the House of Representatives by Representatives Sol Bloom (Democrat), of New York, chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, and through the Senate by Senator Theodore Green (Democrat), of Rhode Island, of the Foreign Relations Committee of the upper chamber.

Bloom later accompanied Noel and Ambassador Felipe Espil to the luncheon given by Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, in honor of Noel. Others attending included Secretary Henry Morgenthau of the Treasury, Secretary Henry Wallace of Agriculture, and Francis Sayre, Assistant Secretary of State.

Confirmation Of Judge Recalled

The Senate late yesterday recalled its confirmation of the nomination of Elmer D. Davies to be United States District Judge for the Middle District of Tennessee.

Early in the day, the Senate had confirmed the appointment at the request of Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, who explained that he could not attend later in the day.

Just before the Senate adjourned, Senator Barbour (Republican), of New Jersey, asked the Senate to recall its action, stating the nomination had been voted upon out of the regular order, that he had not been notified that it was to be considered, and that he wanted "to make a few remarks" on the nomination.

Paul V. McNutt, nominated administrator of the new Federal Security Agency by President Roosevelt, attended a luncheon here yesterday at which he met members of the Social Security Board who will be under his direction after confirmation of his appointment. plans in his new position that will take him into many States and afford oportunity for numerous speeches and political contacts.

McNutt's friends disagreed yesterday with the statement by President Roosevelt that there was no mention of McNutt's candidacy in the conferences which led to his appointment. They insisted that McNutt had accepted only after the President had advised him he would not object to his continuing the campaign for the Presidential nomination.

The Bridges resolution was shelved on a voice vote which appeared to be divided strictly along party lines. Senator Barkley, Kentucky, Democratic party leader, made the motion to table.

Bridges, in offering the resolution, characterized the 2 per cent Indiana jobholder contributions as "one of the most brazen examples of political racketeering in the country."

This brought a vigorous reply from Minton, who insisted that the "two per cent clubs" were established in 1933 by State Democratic employes and not by the McNutt organization. The contributions, he declared, are entirely voluntary.

Regular 2 per cent contributions, he argued, work less hardship than heavy contributions during a campaign. Minton insisted that State Republican administrations had collected campaign funds largely from corporations, and had repaid these favors with legislation favorable to the corporations.

City administrations in Indiana, he said, have adopted the McNutt 2 per cent method. This is true of cities run by Republicans as well as Democrats, he added.

Minton suggested that Bridges tell "how he's raising money to finance his campaign for the Republican nomination." Bridges jumped up and said he was not campaigning.

"But aren't you just angling a little bit?" Minton asked.

The Senate action in tabling his resolution, Bridges declared, put the Democrats on record as favoring the 2 per cent contributions.

"This thing smells," he declared. "I could even use a stronger word."

Earlier in the debate, Bridges tangled with Barkley, who interrupted him to ask whether his remarks were "a sort of preliminary nomination speech for the Presidency."

Bridges referred to the fact that Barkley had been mentioned as a Presidential possibility.

"I'm not a candidate," Barkley replied, "but if I were sure the Senator from New Hampshire would be nominated by the Republicans, I would be tempted to run."

Bridges said he was going to Kentucky shortly to make a speech to the Young Republicans in that State.

"I hope both of them enjoy the speech," Barkley retorted.

Bridges then said he was sure they would, since he was going to tell them about the 1938 Barkley primary campaign for the Senate and how the Works Progress Administration relief clients figured in the campaign.

Senate Increases Old-Age Assistance

"I want to compliment those who favor the Townsend plan because at least they are honest in this respect. They advocate a system of taxation which I think would be destructive to the private enterprise of the country, but they recognize the fact that we must provide revenue for great expenditures."

Pointing out that the total pay roll tax will jump to 9 per cent by 1948, Vandenberg called that "very close" to the Townsend plan's estimated 12 to 15 per cent accumulative transactions tax.

"Sooner or later," said Vandenberg, "we might better frankly go to the Townsend plan than unfrankly proceed to make these appropriations."

Byrd estimated the annual cost of the Connally amendment would be nearer $200,000,000 than $80,000,000, because States will hasten to qualify for increased Fderal grants.

Approval followed an appeal for adoption by Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, who said old peiple in need "haven't the energy, the ability or the opportunity to provide for themselves."

A supplemental amendment by Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, requies States to maintain their own old age contributions at least at present levels in order to qualify for the increased Federal aid.

Rejected, 55 to 16, was a proposal by Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, to pay outright pensions of $40 a month from the Federal Treasury, to all persons over 60, regardless of need, who are not gainfully employed.

Lee heatedly tangled with Vandenberg when the Michigan Senator asked how he proposed to finance such payments, and each accused the other of "paying lip service" to the aged.

Lee said he would vote for the 2 per cent transactions tax advocated by Townsendites or any other tax necessary, and asked Vandenberg if he would do to the same.

"I will not," repied Vandenberg.

Still another pension broadening amendment was offered by Senator Bilbo (Democrat), of Mississippi, who asked that the Government contribute $30 a month toward State pensions to needly old persons. The Senate will vote on the Bilbo plan today, then proceed toward final passage of the Administration's social security bill.

Already approved was an increase from $15 to $20 in the total Federal contribution toward State old age pension grants.

By lowering eligibility requirements, the Senate also has virtually doubled the number of persons over 65 who can qualify for old age insurance payments beginning in January next year, at an increased cost of $695,000,000 in the next 15 years.

House amendments "freezing" the old age insurance tax at 1 per cent each on employers and workers for the next 3 years, and making only the first $3,000 an employer pays a worker subject to the unemployment compensation tax, also had been approved. Other amendments increased old age insurance coverage on some 1,100,000 persons, and brought 200,000 more persons under the unemployment insurance system.

Thirty-eight Democrats, 3 Republicans, 1 Progressive and 1 Farmer Laborite voted for the Connally amendment while 16 Democrats, 18 Republicans and 1 Independent (Norris) voted "No."

New, Superpower Aviation Engine Revealed by Army

Development of a new 18-cylinder, air-cooled radial aviation engine of a "radically changed" streamlined design, was announced yesterday by the War Department.

Assistant War Secretary Louis Johnson said the engine—although of "extremely high horsepower rating"—weighs no more than the 400 horsepower Wasp engine built ten years ago. Both were developed by Pratt & Whitney Co., of East Hartford, Conn.

While details as to actual power were withheld, the new engine was said to weigh slightly more than a pound per horsepower and have reduced frontal area permitting installation in high speed planes without interference with streamlining.

WPA to Slash Wages in North, Boost in South

Col. Harrington Ignores Pickets, Reiterates 5-Day Discharge Ultimatum

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 12.—Col. F. C. Harrington, Commissioner of the Works Projects Administration, reported today the wages of WPA workers in the North and West would be reduced while those in the South would be increased.

Ignoring widespread strikes and a picket line outside his hotel, Harrington and State directors of the Federal agency considered plans for enforcing the new relief law, including revisions in the pay scales.

The WPA chief stated at a press confernce that the legislative provision for a readjustment in the geographical differentials of pay would mean that "Northern and Western wages will come down and Southern wages will go up." He added:

"It's obvious that we can't raise low wages and leave the high wages where they are."

$60.50 In New York

He explained that unskilled labor in New York City earned $60.50 a month, the highest in the nation and considerably above the national average of $52.50, while in certain Southern States the workmen received as little as $26.

Harrington did not estimate how many would be affected by the contemplated wage changes or indicate how large they would be.

However, a tentative estimation was that more than 1,000,000 workers in 30 Northern, Eastern and Western States would take a cut when the new scales go into effect next September 1.

Harrington announced 12,000 of the 32,000 WPA administrative employes would be laid off in a retrenchment move and asserted he also aimed to reduce the WPA rolls gradually to 1,500,000 by June 1, 1940.

Furlough Affects 650,000

He figured the provision for a 30-day furlough for all those who have been on the rolls for 18 months would affect 650,000 if all persons eligible for the temporary dismissal were removed by September 1.

He reiterated that all strikers who have been absent for five days would be discharged.

While Harrington conferred with WPA directors from 48 States and Hawaii and nine regional directors at the Stevens Hotel, a file of pickets paraded along the sidewalk on the Michigan Avenue side. The demonstrators carried banners reading:

"70,000 WPA Workers Face Starvation by 30-day Layoff."

"We Want Those Promised Jobs, F. D. R."

Strike Not Discussed

But Harrington commented that the conferees "did not propose" to discuss the strike at all.

David Lasser, head of the Workers Alliance, asked for an interview with Harrington tonight but Harrington informed him WPA officials were in an executive session and no outside delegations would be admitted.

The WPA conference will end tomorrow.

Fight Looms Over Farm Wage Plan

Representative Bardin (Democrat), of North Carolina, author of a measure extending broad agricultural exemptions to the wage-hour act, indicated yesterday he might go over the head of Chairman Norton of the labor committee in an effort to bring his bill to the floor of the House.

Mrs. Norton, an opponent of Barden's amendment, left Washington yesterday for a week's vacation to recover from a recent illness. During her absence, the labor committee is expected to hold no special meeting to consider the Barden bill. It has already reported out a bill approved by Mrs. Norton, which has not been acted on by the House because of farm bloc opposition.

Barden intimated yesterday he might enploy the unusual procedure of asking the rules committee—despite Mrs. Norton's opposition—to permit her bill to come before the House, with a proviso that the Barden bill could be offered as a substitute.

G. M. Opens Negotiations To End Strike

Auto Corporation Fears Prolonged Tie-Up on 1940 Models

Detroit, July 12.—General Motors Corporation, facing a prolonged tie-up of preparatory work on its 1940 model automobiles, opened negotiations today intended to settle a strike of skilled employes who are members of the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers.

Union leaders at Pontiac called "all available pickets" in that city to report at 6 a. m., Eastern standard time, outside the Fisher Body Co. plant there, where State police maintained order today, and as a union head in Detroit warned that G. M. die work would be completely suspended in "eight or ten days."

Several Persons Injured

Several persons were injured at the Pontiac Fisher plant Monday and Tuesday as pickets massed at the gates to prevent workers from entering. Today, after 130 State troopers enforced a reduction of pickets to ten at each gate, some nonstrikers entered the plant without being molested.

Approximately 6,700 tool and die workers, engineers and maintenance men have been affected so far in the 11 General Motors plants where C. I. O. unionists have struck.

Arrangements for the settlement negotiations were announced after Philip Murray, vice president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, came to Detroit today and met with William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors. Earlier Murray conferred with James F. Dewey, Federal conciliator.

The conference was described tonight by Dewey as "satisfactory." Speaking for both sides, he said the meeting would reconvene tomorrow at 10 a. m.

New Strike Action Threatened

Threats of new strike action accompanied the day's developments. John Anderson, president of U. A. W.-C. I. O. Local 155, composed largely of tool and die makers, said many union members in Detroit jobbing shops have been discharged for their refusal to work on G. M. dies and that if the discharges continued approximately 5,000 workers in these shops would strike.

At Pontiac the C. I. O. industrial council was prepared to consider calling a general strike if State police were used as "strike-breakers." Union leaders said they expected workers in a Fisher Body unit at Flint would strike later this week.

The strike was called by the U. A. W.-C. I. O. to enforce demands for a supplementary agreement covering skilled workers for whom it has asked wage increases, overtime adjustments and seniority and apprentice set-up provisions.

Dog, Master Perish Trying to Save Wife

Atlantic City, N. J., July 12 (INS).—Arthur Parker, with his police dog at his heels, dashed into his burning laundry plant today in a desperate effort to save his wife, Lola.

Three hours later, after scores of firemen finally controlled the blaze, the bodies of the couple and their dog were found side by side in the ruins.

Catholic Daughters Decry Foreign Alliances

Detroit, July 12 (AP).—The Catholic Daughters of America convention today adopted a resolution "decrying all foreign alliances and neutrality bills that would in any way conflict with our country or endanger our country by being the means of involving us in an international or European conflict."

Pictured for the first time, in this exclusive photo, is the Zoo's 24-day-old baby penguin. Mollie and Moe huddled close to their charge as the flash bulbs flared. The first penguin born in captivity in this country, the young one presents a problem—is it little Minnie or is it little Moe?

History was made at the Zoo yesterday.

Minnie, the first penguin born to captive parents in this country to live as long as 24 days, posed for her first formal photograph.

It was an occasion for which the photographer had waited ever since June 18, when Minnie arrived to dinner-jacketed Mollie and Moe. But mama and papa, normally co-operative because penguins are good showmen, shielded their baby from view until yesterday.

They honked angrily and nipped savagely at the picture man's legs, but their most unrefined severity was reserved for Malcolm Davis. Here, they must have thought, was the man who tried so valiantly to save the two young ones they hatched last year, only to lose them in a few days. Here was their friend, introducing a stranger who fired disconcerting flashes of light.

Little Minnie, though, took it all in her 2-inch stride. She squealed a bit but, on the whole, seemed eager to be helpful.

After the first couple of "shots," Mollie and Moe calmed down considerably and even consented to stand by nicely while a family group was made. Meantime, in the far end of the air-conditioned penguin chamber, Tux, Ada and Thumb II watched curiously.

Minnie's development is being anxiously watched, not only by thousands of visitors, but by Zoo directors and animal dealers throughout the country, because a penguin bred, hatched and raised in captivity is a great rarity.

As far as Director William M. Mann knows, Minnie has no counterpart anywhere in the Nation. She has already lost her "baby fluff," and, while her coat is still a dark gray, it won't be long until she grows into the conventional Tuexedo suit that sets the penguin apart.

Mollie, Moe and Minnie, they're one of the happiest families in the Zoo today. It makes no difference to them that no one, not even the experts, knows for sure that Mollie is the mama penguin and Moe the papa. Or even whether "Minnie" is the proper gender for their youngster.

It so happens the penguin is one bird whose sex cannot be determined, except by dissection. If Davis' theory is correct, that the female's beak is curved and the male's is straight, the pair's behavior yesterday may influence prevailing ideas.

The penguin that nipped the hardest at the keeper and photographer and refused to go more than a foot or so from Minnie's side, while the other parent retreated about 2 yards, was Moe, the bird with the straight beak.

One Slain, 7 Shot as Pickets And Troops Clash at Harlan

By the Associated Press

Harlan, Ky., July 12.—Orders for "no picketing" tomorrow went out tonight in Harlan County, scene of a "pitched battle" earlier between National Guardsmen and coal mine pickets in which a miner was killed, a militia officer wounded seriously and four other persons shot.

Paul Reed, representative of the C. I. O. United Mine Workers of America said "runners" had been dispatched to notify all points where picket lines had been maintained or were to be formed not to organize tomorrow.

Meantime, troop reinforcements were being rushed to "bloody Harlan's" soft coal field.

While the troops were bringing to jail 250 men arrested at the scene of the clash between pickets and soldiers, a second outburst of bullets from the weapons of the soldiers wounded a miner and his mother on a Harlan street.

Gov. Chandler immediately ordered 300 additional National Guardsmen here, doubling the strength of the troops. The order included tanks and machine-gun companies.

Military passes were necessary tonight for anyone having business through the National Guard lines, and there was an air of tenseness through the town.

The scene of the encounter between pickets and guardsmen was the Mahan-Ellison Coal Co. mine on Catron's Creek, 5 miles southwest of Harlan.

J. A. Dickinson, an official of the company, one of the mines which have operated without a C. I. O. "union shop" contract since soldiers went on duty in the county May 14, described the shooting as a "pitched battle."

Chandler asserted:

"This violence is in all probability due to the incendiary speech made by William Turnblazer (district U. M. W. president) Sunday. Before that, the situation was quiet in Harlan County and peaceful picketing of mines was carried out."

Kin of Georgia Crash Victim Sought Here

The office of Representative Tarver, of Georgia, last night appealed for help in locating Dr. and Mrs. Amos Gregory, of Cordele, Ga., whose nephew, Jack Sheppard, 20, was killed in an airplane crash there Tuesday.

The Gregory family is believed to be in Washington, en route to their home from a trip to New York City. They are asked to get in touch with Tarver's office.

Witness Identifies Harry Bridges as Rossi, Named to Communist Central Committee

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, July 12.—Harry Bridges, C. I. O. West Coast director, was identified by a witness at his deportation hearing today as "Comrade Rossi," one-time member of the Communist Party.

John L. Leech, who said he once belonged to the Communist Party in Los Angeles, made the identification before James M. Landis, dean of the Harvard Law College and special examiner in the Labor Department proceedings against Bridges.

It was Leech who made an affidavit to the Dies committee on un-American activities stating he had seen Bridges elected to the California State central committee of the Communist Party.

He testified today the Australian-born labor leader was elected a member of the central committee of the Communist Party of the United States at its ninth annual convention in New York in June, 1936.

Leech was the second witness in the hearing of the United States Labor Department's accusation that Bridges is a member of the Communist Party and should be deported.

The first was Maj. Laurence A. Milner, Oregon National Guard reserve officer, who testified to four years undercover work to learn of alleged Communist activities among labor unions. Milner was threatened by Bridges' counsel today with citation for contempt because of discrepancy between testimony given at the hearing and that given at a Portland, Ore., trial.

Before being excused, Milner told of the United States Army Intelligence service interest in Bridges as early as 1936.

He said Col. Albert M. Jones, one of the Army intelligence on the West Coast, conferred with him in Portland and "told me that one of the biggest problems was to prove that Harry Bridges was a Communist and to catch him at a Communist meeting."

When Aubrey Grossman, one of Bridges' counsel, asked Milner if he thought Jones was interested in Bridges because of a desire for information on Communist activities or for information on labor unions too, the witness said the colonel was interested only in Communist activities.

Economy Bloc Seeks to Delay Lending Plan

Senate Opposition Prompts Move to Shelve Measure

A strong opposition to President Roosevelt's new $3,460,000,000 lending program led Senate economy bloc members yesterday to seek to delay action until the next session of Congress.

At initial hearings before the Senate Banking Committee on the lending program, Chairman Wagner (Democrat), of New York, clashed with the leader of the economy bloc, Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, over the New Deal strategy to push the bill through for early action.

Supported by Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, who voiced opposition to the program, Adams protested against Wagner's decision to have the full committee consider the measure, contending it was so far-reaching that it should have close study by a sub-committee.

Fear Adjournment Jam

Wagner disclosed the Administration feared that if the bill went to a sub-committee it might fail of passage in the adjournment rush. "It is rather late in the session," Wagner pointed out in overruling Adams' objection.

The Association of American Railroads served notice it objected to the proposal for the Government to spend $500,000,000 for railroad equipment to be leased to the carriers. R. V. Fletcher, counsel for the association, was assured he would be given an opportunity to be heard.

The action of the Railroad Association was considered a blow at the program and may lead to the elimination of that phase that would empower the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to buy equipment to lease to carriers.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace told the committee the proposed $460,000,000 for loans to tenants to buy farms "would be of vast importance to farm economy" and predicted the loans would be repaid.

Fund for Toll Roads Hit

The self-liquidating phase of the proposed $750,000,000 item for toll roads and bridges was assailed by Senator Clark Democrat), of Idaho, during the testimony of Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads. Clark said the West would not get its share of the roads.

Senator Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, contended toll roads had been successful in foreign countries, especially in Italy and Germany.

Adams asked Barkley if a future Congress might not cancel the tolls. The Kentuckian retorted "it is often hard to guess what Congress will do."

John M. Carmody, new Works Projects administrator, and RFC Chairman Jesse Jones are to testify today.

House Democratic leaders have urged Chairman Steagall (Democrat), of Alabama, to drop consideration of the $800,000,000 United States Housing Authority bill temporarily to start hearings before the House Banking Committee on the lending program. Steagall, after the conference with the leaders, said he would open hearings on the lending phase today, and seek to conclude hearings on the housing bill, a part of the program, during the afternoon.

"you must get right back on and ride again."

The Rathbornes were asked if they were frightened early this morning.

"Would you have been scared?" Mrs. Rathborne shot back. "I thought of an awful lot of things. I even remembered I'd made out no will.

Heart in Mouth

"The worst part of it was the cold," she added, explaining that she was dressed for a warm evening rather than an endurance test over the chilling lake which lies beside the parachute tower.

"I expected every second might be our last. The seat swayed until my heart was in my mouth and it was a giddy sensation looking down on the crowds below."

Rathborne's knees buckled at the landing, but he and his wife waved away medical attention and drove home.

The parachute jump was designed for practical use to accustom student fliers to the dizzy heights from which they may have to bail out. The 'chutes fall entirely free, but there are guy wires that keep them stretched. It was one of these wires that the Rathbornes' 'chute caught.

sculpture, into which I have put much time and great investment, will have found a permanent home."

The President replied that this decision was "in keeping with the broad spirit of the Congress in establishing the National Gallery of Art, primarily as the home of the Mellon collection."

Not only, he said, "are the treasures you plan to bestow on the Nation incalculable in value and in interest, but in their bestowal you are giving an example which may well be followed by others of our countrymen, who have in their stewardship art treasures which also might happily find a home in the National Gallery."

Concerning the collection, Sir Kenneth Clark, director of the National Gallery in London, recently observed: There can be no doubt that it is one of the most remarkable collections of fourteenth and fifteenth Century Italian art ever formed . . . Mr. Kress has managed a number of real masterpieces of a kind one had supposed no longer available."

Count Contini Bonacossi, of Florence, cabled: "Consensus of opinion among European art circles is that the Kress collection is the most important, extensive, best organized body of Italian painting of high quality which has been assembled by any individual in modern times."

Elected a Trustee

With announcement of the gift was coincidental announcement that Kress and Joseph E. Widener, of Philadelphia, have been elected trustees of the National Gallery.

The donor of the treasure resides in New York and is the founder and head of the vast chain of stores carrying his name. He was born in Cherryville, Pa., of a family represented in American wars from the Revolution. Long interested in art, since 1936, he has been a trustee of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

He was inspired in his gift, he said, by a desire to keep the collection in the United States and to make the works accessible to the thousands of people from America and abroad who visit the Capital.

Roosevelt Names Three Assistants

has been described as a protege of Thomas G. Corcoran, outstanding Administration "trouble-shooter," will handle legal questions.

McReynolds Keeps Salary

McReynolds, an expert on personnel problems and the civil service, will retain his civil service status, in order to be eligible for retirement. Consequently he will receive his present $9,500-a-year salary, instead of $10,000.

McReynolds is a native of Kansas. He started work in a law office in Battle Creek, Mich. While there, he took a civil service examination for postoffice inspector, and as a result obtained an appointment in Washington.

Almost from the start, he began handling personnel problems. In 1923, he became director of the Personnel Classification Board. He held sveral other similar assignments, and finally was made special assistant to the Budget Director, studying reorganization of the executive establishment.

Went With Morgenthau

At the outset of the Roosevelt Administration, Secretary of the Trasury Morgenthau, then governor of the Farm Credit Administration, brought him to that agency as administrative assistant. When Morgenthau was transferred to the Treasury, McReynolds went along.

He is credited with being the "father" of the present classification system for civil service employes.

Currie Taught Finance

Currie is a native of Nova Scotia, and was graduated from the London School of Economics before coming to the United States. He is now a citizen. He taught money and banking at Harvard University from 1927 to 1933.

His investigations and confidential memoranda have had a marked influence on Administration policy. Arguments of Marriner Eccles, Federal Reserve Board chairman, in favor of the spending policy have been based on Currie's research.

Currie collaborated with Dr. Alvin Hansen, of Harvard, in presenting to the Monopoly Committee several weeks ago results of studies on utilizing savings. Unless savings are used, they told the committee, the spending, and, consequently, the income stream, is dammed to a certain extent.

There had been some speculation that Corcoran and Benjamin V. Cohen might be named administrative assistants. With Currie handling economic questions, however, the so-called left-wing group will have one of their outstanding spokesmen at the President's side.

Rowe With Son James

Rowe, 30-year-old attorney, formerly was with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He came to the White House as assistant to James Roosevelt while the latter was secretary to his father.

Appointment of administrative assistants was recommended by a special committee headed by Louis Brownlow, which originally outlined plans for departmental reorganization. The outstanding qualification was that they should have a "passion for anonymity"—that they should have a special aptitude for hard work and should not seek the spotlight or make themselves conspicuous.

In urging Congress to create the poistions, the President emphasized the complexity of the burdens falling on his office. The three assistants will act in some degree as "reporters" for the President. They will receive various proposals intended for his consideration and draw up outlines for his guidance.

Bar Condemns Strikes by U. S. Employes

Denunciation Aimed At WPA Tie-up; Byrnes Lauds Courts

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, July 12.—Strikes against the Government by Government employes were denounced today before the American Bar Association's House of Delegates.

The A. B. A. general assembly also disposed of a controversial matter by defeating overwhelmingly a proposal to disband the organization's American Citizenship Committee.

The criticism was embodied in a report of the Labor, Employment and Social Security Committee, which was adopted at the midwinter meeting, and was made a part of the record of the convention today.

The committee did not deny the right of workers to organize, but said it should be done solely for the purpose of collective presentation and discussion of grievances.

The House of Delegates rejected a resolution embodying President Frank J. Hogan's plan to raise all Federal judges' salaries 25 per cent, and refused approval of another resolution urging salary increases for the judges at a future date.

In a paper read for him, Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, commended tonight "the readiness of courts to amend their decisions" and said such a tendency reduced "the real danger" of "hardening of the constitutional arteries . . . that might be fatal to the body politic."

In an address before the association, the Senator asserted the Supreme Court's action in sustaining the agricultural adjustment act, the labor relations act and the social security measure "gave expression to the national will," adding "these acts may, in fact do, require amendment."

"There can be no justification for pessimism regarding the future of constitutional government . . . unless it is based on the theory that the Constitution should be a weapon and the court the agency by which the will of the people must be defeated."

The Senator also asserted "the power of the legislative branch (of government) is in the ascendency.

Press of business caused postponment today of consideration of a proposal by Robert Carey, Jersey City, N. J., to curb or abolish the association's Bill or Rights Committee.

Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut of Baltimore was elected chairman of the association's section on judicial administration, and Attorney General Lawrence E. Jones of Vermont was elected head of the National Association of Attorneys General.

Lower Costs In Tenant Courts Urged

4 Municipal Judges Hear Plan to Ease Burden on Poor

Four Municipal Court judges yesterday heard proposals designed to lighten the burdens on the poor in the landlord and tenant branch of the court.

The judges promised consideration of suggestions of Judge James A. Cobb and other members of a subcommittee of the Washington Housing Association. Already the cost of filing actions, which must be paid by the tenant if he loses, has been reduced from $1 to 85 cents.

Chiefly stressed by the committee was its proposal for abolition of the rule which denies a trial to a tenant unless he files an answer or other defense. Committee spokesmen said that tenants frequently have meritorious defenses but cannot afford lawyers to present them.

Other reforms sought were further reduction of costs; hearing of cases in the afternoon, to allow more time for them; informal procedure such as is followed in the Small Claims Court, and a detailed monthly report on the work of the landlord branch of the court.

The sub-committee was received by Judges George A. Aukam, Ellen K. Raedy, Nathan Cayton and Armand Scott, who has just been confirmed by the Senate as a municipal judge.

Besides Judge Cobb those at the conference were Sefton Darr, president of the District Bar Association; Dr. Morris Schmeckebier, of Brookings Institute; Leifur Magnusson, secretary of the International Labor Association, and Bernard Wyckoff, of the Commerce Department.

plan, Hazen said.

The playground commission—composed of the three District Commissioners and three members of the Board of Education—is expected also to launch a long-range program of co-ordination for local recreation facilities. A sub-committee to include Commissioner George E. Allen and C. Melvin Sharpe, of the school board, will guide the co-ordinating program with Lewis R. Barrett, present District recreational co-ordinator, as director.

Brown Offer Favored

In addition, favorable action is anticipated on the offer of Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, to provide ten members of his command now on "light duty" because of disabilities as emergency playground supervisors. This offer has been approved by the Commissioners and the Board of Education.

Tomorrow's meeting, designed to provide a year-round solution of the tangled playground problem, will be attended by Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education; John Wilson, a board member; Sharpe, Maj. Brown, Barrett and Frank T. Gartside, acting director of National Capital Parks.

Funds Sought To Clear Up Immigration Jam

The Department of Labor has asked that $250,000 be included in the next deficiency appropriation bill to enable the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization "to catch up with applications for citizenship."

While the overload problem is general, it is heaviest in New York City, where 42,151 persons applied for citizenship during the first 11 months of the last fiscal year, an official said last night.

During the three years preceding 1939, a total of 509,004 citizenship applications was filed in the bureau.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills. Adv.

Alien Exodus From Bolzano In Full Swing

Americans in Tyrol District Affected By Duce's Order

By the Associated Press.

Rome, July 12.—Compulsory departure of all foreigners from their homes and vacation residences in Bolzano, Italy's frontier province bordering on Germany at the strategic Brenner Pass, was in full swing today on order of Premier Mussolini himself.

A communique issued today, three days after the first expulsions were ordered, stated that "political and military" reasons prompted the move in a fight against anti-Fascism. The communique disclosed that Il Duce had signed the order as minister of the interior.

The communique indicated that the alleged discovery of purported espionage and anti-Fascist activities by representatives of the western democracies in the strategic Tyrol prompted the order. It therefore lent color to reports that the real reason was to forestall spying on important military movements between German Austria and Italy.

Include Two Americans

At the same time the government announced a cabinet change which brings Count Dino Grandi from the key post of Ambassador to Britain back to Rome to become minister of justice. Foreign diplomatic circles were without any hint of the reason for Grandi's appointment other than a brief mention in the newspapers of his ability as a jurist.

Foreigners ordred to leave the province included two Americans, Miss Dorothea Watts, of Newport, R. I., and her mother. United States Ambassador Phillips made inquiries at the foreign office and was informed that although there would be no exceptions and they must leave Bolzano, they would be accorded every consideration and facility.

The number of Americans resident in the province is not known exactly, but it is stated to be small. There is, however, a large number of tourists and summer visitors.

Eight thousand Germans were reported to have three months in which to return to German territory by the new repatriation agreement between Rome and Berlin. An additional 150,000 German-Italians are to choose between the two countries.

Britain Snubbed

London, July 12 (AP).—The British Government received a diplomatic snub in connection with the summoning home of Italian Ambassador Grandi, official circles disclosed today.

The first the foreign office heard of the recall was from a news association. It is "unusual diplomatic procedure" for an ambassador to be recalled without a formal note to the government to which he is accredited.

Japanese Army, Navy Aides to Go To Nazi Congress

Tokyo, July 12 (U.P.).—Announcement today that Lieut. Gen. Count Juichi Terauchi and Admiral Baron Mineo Osumi will sail for Germany next Tuesday to attend the annual Nazi Party Congress in Nuremberg was followed by reports that the army has agreed to cease attacks on Premier Hiranuma's cabinet until after the two elder military leaders investigate conditions in Europe.

They will visit Italy en route to Germany and diplomats were confident their mission is connected with the quarrel between the premier and the army regarding imperial foreign policy.

The army has advocated full military alliance with Germany and Italy, while the premier has insisted upon an "on-the-fence" policy.

Hsinking, Manchukuo, July 12 (INS).—The Japanese-controlled Manchukuoan government tonight informally offered to negotiate with Soviet-sponsored Outer Mongolia for an end to the border warfare that has been raging for more than two months. Naval Aircraft Carrier Damaged by Explosion

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

The Navy's 14,500-ton aircraft carrier, Ranger, is shown as she returned to Norfolk, Va., from war games in the Caribbean a few months ago. Yesterday an explosion on board spread flames to its flight deck, capable of carrying 75 planes. Firemen prevented the blaze from reaching the Ranger's gasoline tanks, where several hundred gallons were stored

British Air Show Stirs Up Hitler

Fuehrer Asks Full Report From Advisers; Nazis Displeased

Special Cable to The Post.

Berlin, July 12.—Fuehrer Hitler was reported tonight to have asked for a full report on the mass flights of British bombers over France yesterday.

He is said to have asked military advisers for all available information on how the planes functioned and for a reasonable estimate of what would have happened to them if they had flown over Germany from French bases in wartime.

It is clear nothing has been done by Great Britain in recent years, including the establishment of conscription, which has been more fully understood in Germany than this air demonstration.

What has annoyed Nazi officials most is the belief that the purpose of the fights was to frighten the German people and convince them that England and France mean business. This the government does not intend to tolerate, but it is not clear exactly what it intends to do about it.

For the present, it has set off a press campaign, accusing the British of provocation and at the same time assuring the people that in wartime German pursuit ships and antiaircraft could protect them while German bombers would be at work on English towns and cities.

The press is particularly aroused by a report from London that the next time British bombers might fly all the way to Poland.

By the Associated Press

London, July 12.—The government asked Parliament today for more money to pay for Britain's expanding army and extended credits to help two Balkan allies arm.

A supplementary estimate for the 1939-40 budget added about $370,211,400 to the record army appropriation, raising it to $1,063,781,948 and boosting total defense appropriations to $3,082,034,971.

Rumania and Greece were the first British allies to get credits under a new measure introduced last week providing $234,000,000 in addition to $46,800,000 arranged for last February.

Rumania will get $25,740,000 and Greece $11,000,000.

The cabinet considered the protracted Moscow negotiations for Soviet participation in the British-French mutual assistance front and Ivan Maisky, Soviet Ambassador to London, had a long talk with Foreign Secretary Halifax.

Mystery Blast Fires Aircraft Carrier Ranger

7 Narrowly Escape; Expensive Machinery May Be Damaged

By the Associated Press

Norfolk, Va., July 12.—A mysterious explosion followed by a solid sheet of flame, engulfed the Navy's aircraft carrier Ranger from water line to flight deck today and left in its wake a tangled mass of burned machinery and a black-charred hull.

Narrowly escaping death or serious injury were seven enlisted men who, warned by the explosion, scurried to safety within the hull of the $30,000,000 vessel, now at Norfolk Yard undergoing minor repairs and overhaul.

The seven were given first aid treatment aboard the Ranger and their condition tonight was reported as satisfactory.

According to officers the circumstances surrounding the explosion and fire are a complete mystery.

One officer said that $50,000 will probably cover the damage. However, there is much expensive machinery aboard the ship which may have been ruined. If this is the case it will be impossible to determine the damage at this time."

Witnesses said a muffled roar was followed by flame which swept the vessel amidship from the water line to the flight deck for a distance of approximately 200 feet.

Gasoline Leak Suspected

Workmen near the scene expressed belief leaking gasoline spread on the water near the hull of the Ranger had ignited.

The explosion was the second aboard an aircraft carrier within the last eight months. Sometime ago an explosion rocked the new carrier Enterprise, sending several men to the hospital and inflicting considerable damage.

Fire raged for three hours aboard the Ranger before it was brought under control at 5 p. m. (E. S. T.).

Gen. Chiang Likely to Triumph In 2 Years, Says His Dentist

Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek is a mild-mannered man, but he stands a good chance of packing Japan back to Tokyo at the end of two years. China, with superior manpower and resources, can fight for the next 30 years without any trouble.

These statements were made yesterday at the Racquet Club by Dr. Daniel J. Collins, of Shanghai, who should know whether the Chinese leader has stamina. Dr. Collins for the last 12 years has been the general's dentist.

Dr. Collins has traveled about 10,000 miles—most of them in his patient's private plane—to tend Chiang's molars. He has not seen his famous client for about a year and a half, but a short time before he sailed to this country in June he was called down to Hongkong to administer treatments to Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek. She speaks all the English for her husband, to whom Dr. Collins has never even said, "Open mouth, please," in Chinese.

Since the beginning of the Chinese-Japanese conflict, Dr. Collins has had to pass through a bodyguard of 100 men, working in shifts, everytime he was called to treat the generalissimo.

Dr. Collins' office in the Cathay Hotel was bombed on August 14, 1937, and he since has given up air travel.

There are signs everywhere, according to Dr. Collins, that Japan is beaten already although she doesn't know it. The signs of economic strain when he passed through Yokohama enroute to this country a month ago were evident everywhere, he said. The only automobiles on the street were a few taxis and the official cars of naval and military authorities. "Japan," he said, "is hoarding gasoline for her planes in China."

Dr. Collins went out to the Orient immediately after his graduation from Georgetown University in 1926. Mrs. Collins, who has a medical degree and who is the daughter of former Representative Leonidas Dyer, of Missouri, had spent some time in Shanghai prior to her marriage. It was she who suggested that maybe China might be the place for them to live.

Now residents of the International Settlement at Shanghai, they arrived in the United States a few weeks ago for a visit they make every three years.

Finds Congress for Japan Arms Ban

The Washington Committee for Aid to China announced yesterday a poll it conducted reveals the majority of the Senate favors an embargo against sending war materials to Japan. The poll was made, according to the announcement, in personal interviews with more than two-thirds of the members.

Of those interviewed, 35 Senators favored an embargo, 21 were unfavorable and nine were noncommittal, the committee reported.

A similar canvas of the House has reached 104 members, showing 62 favorable, 35 unfavorable and seven noncommittal. Final tabulation, covering all members of both houses, is expected to be completed soon.

The Summer Theater Moves Into the Rockies

Central City, Colo., Adds Color to Stage; Olney's Guest Stars Have a Busy Time; This, That and the Other About the Theater

AT THIS SEASON of the year, when summer theaters are popping up—or have already popped up—all over these United States, it is interesting, although of no vital importance, to note that the eighth annual Play Festival will get under way this Saturday night and continue for two weeks at Central City, Colo. This is one of the most picturesque and colorful between-seasons theatrical undertakings celebrated anywhere in America.

BELL

This year's offering will be Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Yeoman of the Guard," or "The Merryman and His Maid," produced by Frank St. Leger and interpreted by a cast that includes Natalie Hall, Hilda Burke, young American soprano of the Metropolitan and Chicago Grand Opera Companies; Mark Daniels, Richard Hale and a long list of other well known artists. That, however, is not the Central City festival's chief claim to unique renown.

The old mining town of Central City affords one of the most romantic settings for summer theater to be found on the continent. The old Opera House in Central City was, already 10 years old when Gilbert and Sullivan first presented "The Yeoman of the Guard" to an enthusiastic London audience in 1888. It is surrounded by relics of an historic and adventurous past—the mines, the old foundry, the ancient saloons along steep, winding Eureka street; the donkey carts, the livery stables, the famous Teller House, the placer diggings, the Glory Hole. All of these combine to form a natural background steeped in tradition and color.

Other perennial attractions that will engage the interest of those who will visit Central City for the first time—as well as those who return on their annual pilgrimage—will include the rock-drilling contests, the firemen's annual hosecart race, pioneer dancing in the livery stables and sightseeing trips to nearby points of imperishable fame.

From this distance, one would not be sure whether the "big show" is in the Opera House or in its romantic environs. At any rate, those driving out Central City way between the fifteenth and twenty-ninth of the current month will find summer entertainment that is not quite paralleled any place between the oceans.

Now, if you need some ballast for that rumble seat——

Visiting stars who come to Washington feeling that their engagements at Stephen E. Cochran's Olney Theater are going to be continuous joyrides, should be warned that Panjandrum Cochran is a fellow who sets a hot pace. Take the case of Kitty Carlisle, star of "Tonight or Never," next week's bill, for instance. Miss Carlisle arrived in the Capital in the middle of the night at 7:15 a. m., Tuesday. She was whisked out to Olney and plunged at once into rehearsals of the play. That kept up through yesterday. Today, all Miss Carlisle has to do is go on the air over Station WJSV at 2:30 p. m., then dash to Baltimore for a similar "appearance" over Station WFBR at 4:30, spear a sprig of supper and repeat over the same station at 8. Then back to Washington, with nothing to do but finish whipping "Tonight or Never" into final shape. In the meantime, Karen Morley, having been through the same course of sprouts herself last week, is scoring a hit at the Olney in "Susan and God." When I saw him Tuesday night, Master Cochran could not find words to express his appreciation of the fine spirit of cooperation displayed by his feminine guest stars, to date—Helen Twelvetrees, Miss Morley and Miss Carlisle. He is hoping for the same thing when Dennis King follows Miss Carlisle in "Petticoat Fever"—a booking, by the way, that has been officially confirmed.

Those auditions for places in the cast and chorus for the "Going Native" revue, to be staged at Loew's Capitol Theater next month, to which reference was made here earlier in the week, have been scheduled for next Monday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Willard room of the Willard Hotel.

This will make the seventh consecutive year in which Manager Gene Ford, in charge of production, and his committee of judges will have cast kindly eyes upon the efforts of Washington's resident performers who show promise of "going places" in the world of entertainment. So many embryonic artists respond to these calls for talent that the auditions seldom are completed in a single evening. They are continued, however, until every aspirant has been given an opportunity to "strut his material." The only entrance restriction is that every contestant be 18 years of age or older. None under that will be eligible under the District law.

Dots And Dashes

The Variety Club of Washington has some pretentious plans up its collective sleeve—a projected charity softball game between Lowell Thomas and his "Nine Old Men" and the team composed of Washington newspapermen, a testimonial birthday dinner to Chief Barker A. E. Lichtman on Friday, August 11, in honor of his fiftieth milestone, and—this is all very tentative and vague—a plan to expand the clubrooms to about twice their present dimensions and make the local Tent No. 11 the handsomest in the country. . . . Miss Elinor Lord has been named a member of the Board of Governors of the Washington Civic Theater, vice Mrs. Yvonne Kushner, resigned. . . . Miss Lord has been active in the Civic's affairs since its organization three years ago. . . . The Montgomery Players work fast. Already announce that their first production for fall will be three one-act plays from Noel Coward's "Tonight at 8:30"—"The Astonished Heart," "Ways and Means" and "Hands Across the Sea." . . . They will do five plays next season, instead of their usual four. . . . Personal aside to Oscar Doob, of Loew's, Inc.: Many thanks for the copy of "On Borrowed Time." . . . Just keep "Mr. Chips" running long enough, and I'll get it read—I hope.

KAREN MORLEY,
noted screen and stage star, puts the finishing touches on her makeup for the role of Mrs. Susan Trexel in Rachel Crothers' comedy hit, "Susan and God," in her dressing room at the Olney Theater. Miss Morley has scored an outstanding hit in the character created and played for two seasons by Gertrude Lawrence and is ably supported by the Olney Stock Company

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, July 12.

TH "UNNAMED FIGURE" for which the Otto Kahn estate at Cold Spring Harbor was purchased by the Department of Sanitation was $100,000. That money came from the receipts of the baseball games in which the Sanitation Department's team participated—the team of "ringers" which the Police and Fire Departments refuse to play . . . Federal Judge Murray Hulbert isn't co-operating in the plan of United States Attorney Cahill, who is seeking another reduction of sentence for Albert Chaperau, because of his assistance in the Manton prosecution . . . Beryl Markham, the famous aviatrix who flew across the Atlantic, will apply here for a license to drive an auto.

ALICE ROOSEVELT LONGWORTH entertains her friends at private parties by doing an impersonation of Eleanor Roosevelt . . . Mrs. Roosevelt learned of this, invited Alice to tea and said: "I hear you do a wonderful impersonation of me. Please do it for me" . . . Mrs. Longworth wanted to oblige, but couldn't muster enough courage—because the impersonation is such a bitter one. And so she compromised . . . She gave Eleanor an impersonation of Mrs. Coolidge.

THREE SWISS BANKS—the Union Bank of Switzerland, Credit Suisse and the Swiss Bank Corporation—will open their American branches in New York in the fall. This because practically all the Swiss gold is here now . . . Mrs. Leo Godowski, annoyed at the number of visitors who arrive without warning, has christened her Westport estate "Phone First Farm" . . . William H. McReynolds, administrative assistant to Henry Morgenthau, jr., is in line for one of the six new secretaryships in the President's office . . . Mary Anita Loos, who accompanied Edgar Bergen to the Waldorf Roof, danced in her bare feet, because her high-heeled shoes made her look so much taller than her escort.

AN M. G. M. BRITISH representative arrived in Hollywood last week and went to the office of Harry Rapp, the producer . . . "Well, how are conditions in England?" Rapp asked him . . . "Frankly," the Britisher informed, "we're all positive there's going to be a war" . . . "G'wan," Rapp returned, "that's what you told me last August."

TONY GALENTO made $4,000 for personal appearances within the last seven days. He trusts no banks and deposited the money in a vault . . . Galento, incensed because his manager, Joe Jacobs, has been barred from the Stork Club, threatens that he, too, won't enter that place . . . Most of the other hotels will follow the lead of the Pierre Roof, which will remain open, but will eliminate its shows . . . Abe Ellis, the cloakroom concessionaire, just received a $25,000 check from Billy Rose representing the pro-rata return of the money he paid for a year's concession at the now-closed Casa Manana.

IN THE LIVING ROOM of Prince Serge Obolensky's apartment is a portrait made by a Russian artist who recently arrived in America . . . More than 25 years ago Obolensky had posed for that portrait, which was to depict the type of aristocracy no longer flourishing . . . When the revolution broke out in Russia, Obolensky became a fugitive, and that portrait was placed in the police headquarters under a sign reading: "Wanted—Dead or Alive" . . . The artist who painted it bribed an official to secure it for him. Prince Serge now has it, intact—except for the two bullet holes fired into it by the Moscow police as an indication of what the subject would receive upon capture.

CHARLES MICHELSON, publicity director for the National Democratic Committee, tells the political leaders that he has received no instructions concerning a publicity campaign for a third term. Michelson, however, last week advised a delegate to the Young Democratic Convention: "Oppose any resolution urging Roosevelt to run for a third term" . . . Dolly Stark, who was to umpire the All-Star baseball game instead will seek medical attention for his knee. Ford Frick has given him a three-day vacation . . . Jack Dempsey told all his intimates "I never expected to pull through."

Louella O. Parsons

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, July 12 (INS).—Leatrice Joy, a glamorous star in the days when Cecil De Mille's drawing-room dramas drew not only the carriage trade, but the working gals as well, is being tested for a movie. Leatrice, who is still beautiful and stunning, hasn't made a picture since the advent of talkies and since she married the very rich William Hook. Her test was made at Universal by Henry Koster and Joseph Pasternak. Joe saw her and thought she was so lovely it was a pity she had stayed away from the screen for so long.

LOUELLA PARSONS

So far, no deal has been made, but don't be surprised if, day after tomorrow, we tell you that Leatrice has put her name on a Universal contract. I really believe, if the producers were to give some of the favorites of yesterday a chance, movies would take a new lease on life. Wesley Ruggles tells me that he's going to put some of the players who have, for some reason or other, stepped out of the limelight, into "Arizona."

Youth must be served, and no one knows that better than William Le Baron. He has found more interest in "What A Life," the stage play which he put on the screen with Jackie Cooper and Betty Field, than in the most expensive costume productions. So now, "What A Life" is destined to follow in the footsteps of "Andy Hardy" and the "Jones Family" and have two follow-up movies, with the same characters. "Henry Aldrich in Love" is No. 2, with Jackie, of course, playing Henry. Clifford Goldsmith, author of the original play, has been engaged by Paramount to write the sequels and, if he can keep up the warm human interest of the Hardy and Jones families, Le Baron reckons "He's got something there."

It's a far jump from the love-making of Mons. Mickey Rooney to that of Robert Taylor, but if Helen Gilbert, the school teacher in "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever," can stand the shock, she's elected to play opposite Bob in "Florian." Helen, for six years a concert cellist, is another one of these gals the studios are springing on us as unexpected stars—and she was very good as Mickey's school teacher. Blonde and poised, she's very much the "lady" type. "Florian," you may or may not remember, is the Winnie Sheehan picture, which landed Location Director Dick Rosson in a Nazi concentration camp when he tried to shoot exteriors in Austria. I suspect they'll change that title, before you see Bob and Miss Gilbert in it.

Chatted with Joseph Breen today and his optimistic outlook on the present summer slump encouraged me. Joe, as you know, is the local boss of the Hays office and he gets around to the studios probably more than any man in our town. He says there are 59 features and 79 shorts in production—the largest number in five years. Of course, that number includes the independents as well as the majors, but he seems to feel that the number of pictures now being made is an indication that we may look forward to a prosperous movie year.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: You would be that surprised, if you knew on whom Garbo is casting her smiles these days. Stokowski better hurry home, if all we hear is true! Movita arrived in London in time to console her bridegroom, Jack Doyle, who was knocked out in the first round in a prize fight; Dorothy Fields, well-known song writer and Lew's daughter, marries Eli Lahn some time next week; Franchot Tone reaches here Saturday, but he must recuperate a few weeks, before he goes to work; Nicholas Schenck, M-G-M top boss, is in town, but, this time, there is no talk of heads falling into the basket; Mike Romanoff back from San Francisco, all thrilled because he got his picture on the front page, while Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Jimmie Roosevelt were only given second billing.

Barbara O'Neil has two good reasons for spending so much time in Santa Barbara. They are Tom Wanamaker, jr., and Wright Ludington; Edith Gwynn Wilkerson's big moment is Johnnie Gubbins, who has become her shadow; that was Joan Valerie with Hollywood's favorite charmer, David Niven, at Dave Chasen's; rumors again that Jean Parker and George McDonald are talking thinks over via long distance; Edwina Mandel hostess at a luncheon in the American room at the Derby for Bebe Daniells and Sally Eilers, who leave Saturday; later, the husbands and boy-friends joined the girls for cocktails. Sally spent a busy afternoon at the backgammon board and Virginia Peine at the telephone, talking to George Raft.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

On the Loose

A thrilling lion act, and an even more thrilling lion hunt when one of the animals breaks from his cage into a circus crowd, feature scenes in "Fixer Dugan," the cast of which is headed by Lee Tracy, Virginia Weidler and Peggy Shannon.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., July 12.—(While waiting for assignments in the silent days, Ned Sparks and I used to rock with the old ladies while they knit on the Hollywood Hotel veranda. But that's all changed now—he's paid for being himself over the air.—H. H.)

By Ned Sparks.

Just how it got bruited about that I can give the Scribes and Pharisees hereabout cards and spades when it comes to writing a piece, I don't know. It's of no importance anyway. The paramount thing at the moment is that I'm lugging around a heavy burden of deep resentment mingled with venom.

Hedda, that glamorous and glorious figure, contributes no little to the general uplift, through her daily column. She is what is lovingly referred to as the old guard and she's a friend of mine. Hedda's always been a friend of mine and I would do much for her. I am also aware of her frailities, and when she pops out at me in the dark via the telephone—as happened last night—I'm going to call her down. And I did. Hedda is going away, it appears. Don't ask me why. It's none of your business or mine. I gathered among other things that I am to do her column once, in her absence. Once is enough.

"About 900 words will do," said Hedda. "Tel them about your early days down to your job with Bing Crosby in 'The Star Maker.'

"If you are going to write it, why the devil don't you do it and let me alone," I crabbed. "If I write your old piece, I'll write what I want and when."

"Oh, go to the devil," came that deep contralto over the wire, and click, Hedda was gone.

Inthese days of the new philosophy that "to him that hath not it shall be given, and to him that hath it shall be taken away, even that which he hath not," it behooves one to take stock of what's going on. The ungodly are abroad in great numbers and plying their trade as never before.

My daily mail comes from people who want me to back them in business—oh, just a few thousand; or some strange young man who wants to get married and can't afford it but who wants me to afford it for him. Or from local flag pole sitter at Pollywoggle, Nebr., who after two weeks is qualified for stardom in pictures (maybe he is at that), and thinks I can put him right in. But I got a new one the other day and here it is:

JONES AND JONES
Brownsville, Tex.
May 25, 1939.

Mr. Ned Sparks.
Hollywood, Calif.
Dear Mr. Sparks:

We are inviting you, as a leading citizen of California, to be our special guest on a personally conducted tour of our oil fields in Texas. We don't know if you've ever been interested in oil but after looking us over we're sure you'll want to join us. Our special train leaves Southern Pacific station in Los Angeles at 9 p. m. July 10. Please signify your intention of being with us on that date.

Yours very truly,
Jones and Jones.

Jones and Jones,
Brownville, Tex.
Gentlemen:

I've received your valued communication. It was handed me by my butler at my place of business, the old apple stand across from the First National Bank.

Contrary to your assumption, I've always been interested in oil. When I was 7, my mother used to feed me castor oil, so that now I can drink a quart a day without any discomfort. But now I'm in a jam, 'cause I want to come to your oil field and leap right into a well. Just at the moment, I'm in a fix. I owe my boarding house $45 and the handle of my telescope needs repairing. My vici-kids need soling and last, I owe the laundry two and a quarter, so if you'll send me a check for a hundred made out to cash, as that's the only way I can cash it, I'll be on hand when the train pulls out. Fuming for a favorable reply I am,

Yours hysterically,
Ned Sparks.

Little

The pyramids of Egypt and the Parthenon of Greece appear to be no more timeless than the Marx Brothers. "Animal Crackers," the earliest Marx film epic, was revived for a week's engagement at the Little Theater yesterday morning, and the nine years the Marx antics have spent on celluloid causes their merriment no wrinkles.

When "Animal Crackers" first appeared, it had been a scant two years since Garbo had talked. It is only natural that the rest of the cast, headed by Lillian Roth, should seem brazenly corny, with dresses as perplexing as 1939 hats, and, when camera and sound track are busied with a large group of people, the effect is expectedly blurred.

But when the Brothers Marx and Margaret Dumont—surely her magnificence makes her a blood cousin to them—are the center of attention, as they generally are, the result is certain panic. From Groucho's entrance into "Hooray for Captain Spaulding" through the final coffee spoon, landing on the floor from Harpo's sleeve, there are some of the finest Marx tricks on record.

Nine years is a long time, yes, but those Marx boys are timeless.

Comedy Rides High on New Theater Bills

Prison Film Comes To Loew's Capitol; Outdoor Attractions

"THEY ALL COME OUT." A prison film that is different is promised in the Capitol Theater's new feature. Climaxing in the complete reformation of two young criminals, this picture reveals the policy of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, in rehabilitating its "guests." Filmed with the co-operation of the Department of Justice, the screen-play is by John C. Higgins, author of the "Crime Does Not Pay" series. Tom Neal, Bernard Nedell and Rita Johnson head the cast. Milt Britton and his band headline "The Crazy Show of 1939," on the Capitol stage, with Paul Nolen, Sue Ryan, Fague Springman, Tommy Rafferty, Joe Britton and Irving Jaffe in the company. Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

"CLOUDS OVER EUROPE." This comedy-drama of the efforts of Scotland Yard to solve the mysterious disappearances of test airplanes, bearing valuable secrets, enters its second day this morning, with Laurence Olivier and Ralph Richardson in the stellar roles. "The Movies March On," latest issue of "The March of Time," is the leading short subject.

Metropolitan

"THE KID FROM KOKOMO" with May Robson as a drunken kleptomaniac, hired to play the delicate, old mother of Fighter Wayne Morris, this comedy also includes among its figures, Joan Blondell, as an unemployed bubble dancer, and Pat O'Brien as the fighter's much-harried manager. Jane Wyman, Maxie Rosenbloom and Stanley Fields are other feature players in this knockabout comedy. Opens tomorrow morning.

Palace

"GOODBYE MR. CHIPS." This film version of the James Hilton novel will continue its highly successful engagement at the Palace for a second week, with Robert Donat in the central role. Donat gives one of the most unanimously praised performances of the season. Greer Garson, a newcomer to American films, makes a striking debut as his wife. "Culinary Carving," a Pete Smith specialty, is the leading short subject.

Earle

"MAN ABOUT TOWN." Jack Benny and his radio valet, Rochester, head the cast of this new comedy with music, which is announced as successor to "Daughters Courageous," on the Earle screen. Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold, Betty Grable, Binnie Barnes, Phil Harris, E. E. Clive and Matty Malneck and his orchestra are the other funmakers of note. Hollywood Band Wagon, the stage revue, will feature Texas Jim Lewis and his Lone Star Cowboys.

Columbia

"TARZAN FINDS A SON." Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan return in the latest adventure of the Edgar Rice Burroughs hero after a week at the Palace. They find a baby, the sole survivor of an airplane crash, in the jungle, and Tarzan refuses to give up the boy. Johnny Sheffield, Ian Hunter, Henry Stephenson, Frieda Inescort and Henry Wilcoxen are in the cast. Opens tomorrow morning.

Olney

"TONIGHT OR NEVER." Kitty Carlisle plays the glamorous opera singer in this David Belasco success. The summer theater company at Olney support the film and musical comedy star in her characterization of the singer who needed a love affair to bring her glamour. Miss Carlisle will sing several operatic numbers during the action of the play. Through this Saturday evening, Karen Morley will continue in Rachel Crothers' comedy, "Susan and God," with matinees this afternoon and Saturday at 2:45 p. m.

Trans-Lux

"THE TECHNIQUE OF TENNIS," in slow motion photography, with Lloyd Budge, brother and teacher of Champion Donald, teaching a class of girls, is the central short subject at the newsreel house this week. Singapore is the setting of the travelogue, and Walt Disney's "Donald's Cousin Gus" is the color cartoon. An issue of "Screen Snapshots" rounds out the bill. Opens tomorrow morning.

Actress Reveals Plans to Marry

Paula Stone, screen actress, plans to marry Duke Daly, orchestra leader, "somewhere" Sunday. Miss Stone, daughter of veteran film actor, Fred Stone, revealed her plans to marry as she greeted Daly on his arrival in Hollywood yesterday by plane from Boston.

Mount Vernon

"RAIN," the Somerset Maugham story, with Joan Crawford and Walter Huston in the roles of Sadie Thompson and the Rev. Davidson, opens this evening at the drive-in auto theater on the Richmond highway, closing Saturday with a midnight showing. Sunday through Wednesday, the Paderewski film, "Moonlight Sonata," will be the attraction.

Glen Echo

LITTLE JOE HART and his orchestra whip the jitterbugs into action in the Spanish Garden ballroom, at the amusement park, for dancing each evening. The Crystal Pool is another popular mid-July attraction and the Dodgem Rides, Airplane Swing, World Cruise and the Coaster Dips are among the leading amusements.

Wilson Line

MISS WASHINGTON will be chosen on tomorrow night's moonlight cruise of the City of Washington, sailing from its Seventh street wharf at 8:30 p. m. The City of Washington makes three trips daily at 10 a. m., 2 and 5:30 p. m., to Marshall Hall amusement park and two trips to Mount Vernon, at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. On the nightly moonlight cruises, McWilliams' Orchestra plays for dancing.

S. S. Potomac

EDDY DUCHIN and his orchestra, with Durelle Alexander, Lew Sherwood and Stanley Worth handling the vocals, will play for two moonlight cruises on the S. S. Potomac Saturday evening, the first leaving the Seventh and Water streets wharf at 8:45 p. m., and the second at 12:30 a. m. On Sunday, the steamer makes a cruise to Colonial Beach, sailing at 9 a. m. Every evening of the week, the Potomac makes a moonlight cruise at 8:45, with Charlie Strong's Band aboard for dancing.

Cross Roads

"SEVEN KEYS TO BALDPATE" will be the new attraction of the barn theater at Baileys Cross Roads, across the Potomac. Howard Wentworth is directing the popular George M. Cohan comedy-mystery, which will open Monday evening for a two-week run. Izetta Jewell, jr., completes her successful engagement in S. N. Behrman's "Biography" this Saturday evening.

Roadside

"THE FATAL BRAND" continues next week at the Rockville pike barn theater, with Milton Freedman, Theodore Tiller 2d, Richard Kreuzberg, Paul Messink, Betty Gray, Natalie Core, Betty Brunstetter, Leonard A. Wilson and Joel Marston in this melodrama of a girl, branded for a crime she did not commit.

Sylvan

INTERNATIONAL FESTIVAL NIGHT is to be celebrated next Tuesday evening at the Sylvan Theater, with folk songs and dances of Scotland, Poland and Italy by a group under the direction of Mrs. Harriet Lewicki, and from Spain, Austria and the deep South, by Marian Chace and her dancers.

The Tempest

A NEW GROUP, the Glen Echo Players, is presenting the Shakespearian play, "The Tempest," at the Glen Echo Playhouse, through Friday evening of this week. Under the direction of Theodore Smith, the company is made up of familiar local players, including Mimi Norton, Edward A. Finlayson, Charles Grunwell, Jane Fletcher and Wayne Locklin.

1,300,000 File Fingerprints With FBI

Notables From Every Walk in Life Record Identities Voluntarily

Titles from the Almanac de Gotha and the annals of fistiana, big-wigs from Hollywood and Wall street, notables from the diplomatic set to the reals of radio comedians, have registered their fingerprints with the Federal Bureau of Investigation to insure personal identification, in case of casualties in which there are unknown dead, amnesia cases, and legal disputes, according to a study of the fingerprint files released yesterday.

The announcement pointed out that there are 1,300,000 personal identification records in the civil files, segregated from the prints in the criminal section.

According to the announcement, "J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, Attorney General Homer Cummings, Shirley Temple, John D. Rockefeller, jr., and Walt Disney are among the notables who have recorded their fingerprints for possible future reference."

Others who are reported to have placed their prints on file voluntarily include former Heavyweight Champions Jack Dempsey and James J. Braddock; Mickey Cochrane, the baseball star; Noel Coward, actor and playwright; Eddie Cantor, Ginger Rogers, Virginia Bruce, Freedie Bartholomew, James Cagney, and Freeman F. Godson and Charles J. Correll, the "Amos and Andy" of the radio, and news commentators, Lowell Thomas, Boake Carter, Floyd Gibbons and Walter Winchell.

Body Taken From Potomac; Slaying Hinted

Unidentified Man Bruised; Labels Removed From Clothes

The body of an unidentified, elderly, neatly-dressed man, whom Charles County, Md., officials believed might have been murdered, was recovered from the Potomac River near Marshall Hall at noon yesterday.

A coroner's examination revealed that the man, between 50 and 60 years old, had deep bruises on the head and body and that there was no water in his lungs. Charles County Sheriff Robert V. Cooksey said Coroner McCavanaugh believed the victim was dead before the body entered the water. He thought the death occurred Tuesday night.

Identifying marks and tags on the man's clothing appeared to have been removed deliberately, Cooksey said. There were no papers or other clews in his pockets save a handkerchief initialed with an "L."

He carried a cheap watch and slightly more than $2 in change.

The sheriff said he thought it barely possible the man received the bruises in a jump or fall from a river boat. He said he would check the man's description with the Washington police missing persons list.

Cooksey said the man was 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighed 160 pounds, had long uncut gray hair, wore a three-piece dark gray suit with a blue check, a gray shirt with a maroon check and a plaid tie. He wore high black shoes.

The sheriff added that the man looked distinctly Irish.

The body is at a Waldorf, Md., undertaking establishment.

Wright Leaves Cuba On Hasty Trip Here

Havana, Cuba, July 12 (INS).—American Ambassador Wright left Havana late today aboard a Pan-American Airways plane for Miami, en route to Washington. It was a hurried trip, the purpose of which was not made known in Havana.

No Protest Filed On Anacostia Slum Clearance

The Alley Dwelling Authority yesterday was given verbal approval to proceed with the $1,000,000 slum clearance project in Anacostia by the Board of Zoning Adjustment.

Appearing before the board for several minor zoning variances, the A. D. A. officials presented their case, which was not protested by a single property owner. The plan calls for the erection of 24 multi-family buildings at East Capitol street and Ridge road southeast.

Officials of the Maret School petitioned a new location at Twenty-ninth street and Cleveland avenue northwest. There was no protest.

DON'T SCRATCH, SOOTHE THE IRRITATION

Quick relief from the maddening itch of eczema, psoriasis, poison ivy, and irritation about the rectum or personal parts is obtained by applying Resinol Ointment. Leave it on over night. It lessens the desire to scratch, and eases the irritation.

The soothing effect of Resinol takes the sting from the irritated places and makes you more comfortable. The skin heals sooner, too, with the help of Resinol, as its oily base holds the medication in active contact with the tortured parts.

For gentle cleansing of irritated skin, Resinol Soap is excellent because it has no excess of free alkali and is so refreshing. Many nurses suggest and use Resinol Ointment and Soap—why don't you try them?

Buy at any drug store. For free sample, write to Resinol, Dept. 85, Baltimore, Md.

Appeal To Facts

Mrs. M. O. Lorenz, the president of the District's Voteless League of Women Voters, is performing a valuable public service in her efforts to correct misinformation about the fiscal and political status of Washington. If her recent letter to the editor of the Adrian Daily Telegram is a sample of future activities in this line, Washington will soon owe her a large debt of gratitude.

This Michigan newspaper, in the home town of Representative Earl C. Michener, not long since published a very misleading editorial about the District, which Mr. Michener had reprinted in the Congressional Record. Thanks to the vigilance of the League of Women Voters, the editor of the Adrian Daily Telegram now realizes that Congress of late years has paid nearer 12 than 50 per cent of Washington's expenses. He should also have a better idea of how the present largely impotent Board of Commissioners is composed, and a clearer view of the so-called Territorial government of 1871-74.

A vast amount of misinformation about the District and its problems is current throughout the country. Inaccurate assertions about the District government are frequently communicated to Congress. The effect is to accentuate misunderstandings.

With its numerous local groups organized over a wide area, the League of Women Voters is in a particularly advantageous position to broadcast the facts about the District and its obsolete form of government. Congress as well as all Washingtonians should be grateful for this effort to eliminate ignorance and prejudice and to place the case for local reform strictly on its own merits.

A Limited Renaissance

Thoughtful citizens will find excellent food for reflection in the sharply diverging address of Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson and Frank J. Hogan, president of the American Bar Association, at the bar's annual convention in San Francisco. Mr. Jackson hailed what he calls our present-day constitutional renaissance. Mr. Hogan deplored what he regards as the undermining of constitutional law by the reconstructed Supreme Court.

According to Mr. Jackson, "we are really back to the Constitution." By re-examining some of the legalistic doctrines that have grown up around the Constitution, he says, the Court has broken through the hard crust of precedent and gone straight to the original document as viewed by the founding fathers. His case is greatly strengthened by his reference to the about-face of the Supreme Court on the validity of State minimum wage legislation. In the removal of tax immunity from State and Federal employes, also, the Court appears to have taken a more penetrating view of the Constitution itself than was reflected in previous decisions on the same issue.

There will be widespread agreement with Mr. Jackson that "the powers of government conferred by the framers were meant to be construed and applied in no parochial or petty sense; they were meant to be applied with courage and vision." Marshall's reminder that the Constitution was "intended to endure for ages to come, and consequently, to be adapted to the various crises of human affairs" cannot be too often repeated.

Insofar as the Court is re-examining basic concepts deeply imbedded in the Constitution, it can truly be said to have produced a new birth of organic law. Shifts in its views resulting from this process of appealing from precedent to the Constitution itself are a sign of strength in our system of government. But another tendency is evident in some recent decisions that cannot be viewed with such satisfaction.

It would be quite possible for the Court to revive original concepts of specific powers granted by the Constitution and ignore its primary purpose—Mr. Hogan seems to fear that this is precisely what is happening. Decisions invalidating the NRA, the AAA and the Guffey coal act, he says, have now been overruled with a resulting "unprecedented expansion of Federal power." If this tendency continues, under the magic formula of expanding the commerce clause, what will become of our Federal system? Surely a broad interpretation of the commerce clause cannot be regarded as more important than preservation of the Federal system on which the entire Constitution is based.

Fundamentally Mr. Jackson seems to be pleased because the Court has freed Congress from numerous restraints. But Mr. Hogan contends that this relaxation of constitutional restrictions merely throws greater responsibility upon the legislature to prevent the exercise of arbitrary power. That may have a salutary effect upon the law-making body. If the Supreme Court is to retain its traditional role, however, the renaissance of which Mr. Jackson speaks will have to extend to the entire Constitution and not to just a few favored clauses that seem to permit the expansion of Federal power.

A Lesson In Order

The Works Progress Administration is following the only possible course by dropping from the relief rolls all those who are attempting to strike against the new wage-and-hour requirements enacted for it by Congress. Indeed it must be said that the Government is showing questionable leniency in permitting these strikers to retain eligibility for future employment on Federal work-relief projects.

The very idea of striking against relief is "fantastic," to quote the able New York WPA administrator. But Col. Somervell might well have added that such strikes are also absolutely intolerable. It would be as reasonable for Government clerks, or for enlisted men in the armed forces, to strike against the working conditions prescribed by the Government in these services. For the duration of his relief employment the WPA worker is clearly a servant of the state. And any organized attempt by its servants to coerce the state is a revolutionary action, with which no government worthy of the name can afford to compromise.

This would be true even if the legislative provisions against which WPA strikes are directed were unreasonable. Since these provisions are eminently rational and constructive, the intolerable character of the strikes is certainly not less pronounced.

The "prevailing wage" requirement, made mandatory for the WPA in 1936, against Administration wishes, has always been an absurdity. By keeping the rate of relief wages as high as that for private employment it has made the WPA enormously expensive. Furthermore, it has held per capita wage costs on these projects at such a level that many eligible and deserving unemployed have been kept off the rolls.

In addition to preventing a wider spread of public employment the prevailing wage has forced contraction of the working day in a manner which goes far to defeat the underlying purpose of WPA. In numerous cases skilled WPA workers have averaged only ten hours a week at their projects, a wage rate of $2 an hour bringing them to the maximum relief allowance of $20 a week in what amounts to a two-hour, five-day week.

Almost the only impressive argument for work relief, as opposed to the much cheaper dole system, is that regular labor maintains the morale of the unemployed person. Where work is limited to ten hours or so per week, because of the prevailing wage requirement, this argument loses much of its validity.

On the other hand, abuses tend to accumulate. It is common knowledge, for instance, that many WPA beneficiaries have supplemented their income from the state by private employment in the large amount of free time at their disposal. This, of course, works further hardship on the unemployed who are unable to secure either WPA or private jobs.

About as unfair and undesirable as the prevailing wage system are the regional differentials, which result in the WPA paying very different wages for the same work in different localities. There is no good reason, for instance, why a plumber on a WPA job in Boise should receive only 63 cents an hour while one on an identical job in New York City is getting a $2 hourly rate.

In the new relief act Congress has moved to eliminate these absurdities by requiring 30 hours a week from all WPA employes, and by prescribing that after August 31 the monthly earning schedule for the same kind of work shall not vary from one locality to another except as justified by actual differences in living costs. It is against these eminently justifiable provisions that the strikes have been directed.

Despite most ill-advised support from some leaders of organized labor, these strikes have not been serious, except potentially and as a portent. Most WPA workers realize that this form of protest is as ridiculous as it is dangerous and have refused to have any part therein. It is only a small minority which has sought to dictate to the Government by mass action.

For this minority a summary lesson is clearly in order. Some evidently need to be taught that WPA is not a huge racketeering enterprise, financed for a minority of the unemployed at public expense, but a serious governmental effort to cope intelligently with a serious national problem. In justice to those who eagerly seek work but cannot find it, to say nothing of other considerations, the relief rolls must be purged of those who have voluntarily forfeited all right to consideration from the Government which they are seeking to coerce.

Social Security Changes

America's experience with social security legislation has as yet been much too limited to provide an adequate yardstick by which to measure the value and workability of the amendments to the social security act approved this week by the Senate.

Some of the proposed changes will meet with general approval. Students of the subject, the members of the Social Security Board among them, have agreed that it would be wise to advance the commencement of old-age insurance benefits from 1942, as provided in the present law, to 1940. And there is also wisdom in the proposal, approved by the Senate, to freeze the old-age insurance tax rate at 1 per cent on employers and 1 per cent on employes for the ensuing three years.

The accumulation of a huge reserve fund, as originally planned, had little to recommend it, and any action which tends to bring into being something like a pay-as-you-go plan will ease the burden which employers and workers would have been called upon to bear during the next three years under the old rate of contribution.

It is of dubious value, however, to reduce receipts while increasing expenditures. The amendment proposed by Senator Connally and approved by the Senate provides for an increase in the Federal contribution. The matching principle is dropped. The additional cost of this new provision, Senator Connally has estimated, will amount to $80,000,000. It remains to be seen whether the receipts from old-age insurance taxes will be sufficient to cover this and other increased grants voted by the Senate and previously approved by the House.

At any rate, a dubious precedent may be set in shifting a larger share of the cost of old-age pensions for the needy to the Federal Government. Experience with other forms of pensions shows that once the door to such action is opened the pressure to open it wider is bound to increase. The States are not loath to dodge their responsibilities and have the Federal Government assume an increasingly large part of the load.

Model City?

Praise from the National Safety Council for Washington's pedestrian control law became front-page news this week. That may seem strange to those who view the Nation's Capital from afar. Surely Washington must be a model in so many ways that a compliment for its pedestrian control system would be an item of minor interest.

On the contrary, the District leads in so few community endeavors that its rank among the half-dozen cities throughout the country which have established successful pedestrian control systems becomes an item of considerable importance. In such matters as public health, hospital service and law enforcement Washington is usually far down the list when comparisons with other cities of similar size are made. Instead of being a model for the country in municipal service, the city counts itself fortunate when it does not lag a considerable distance behind other municipalities.

A good deal of satisfaction will be found, therefore, in the report that Washington ranks high in the protection of pedestrians. And it may be significant that this reform was inaugurated by the Board of Commissioners without having to wait several years for an act of Congress.

Raw Deal

James I of England quite fairly observed that the first man who swallowed an oyster was indeed bold. But since that memorable occasion, whenever it may have occurred, the swallowing of oysters has taken place so frequently that as a deed of courage it has almost lost its flavor. In no other respect, however, has the taste of an oyster diminished, as the Association-For-Eating-Oysters-In-Any-Month-You-Want-To is quick to point out.

On almost all fish, foul, fruit, game and vegetables, there is a more or less closed season at which time the particular delicacy is immune from exploitation. Whether or not dictated only by superstition and custom, months with Rs in them continue to be the vacation season for oysters. This wholesome social outlook has so far proved too strong for the combined forces of all who would ruthlessly deny the oyster even a few brief weeks for rest, connubial bliss and philosophic contemplation.

As reliably reported, the latest member to join the A. F. E. O. I. A. M. Y. W. T., now at the height of its annual campaign, is Secretary Ickes, in whose department the Fisheries Bureau has been getting along swimmingly since July 1.

It is entirely appropriate that the Secretary of the Interior should take a firm stand on oysters. As far as the bivalve is concerned, he is not only for a third term, but for continuous regimentation. It must be recalled, however, that even the humblest of God's children has rights and that, traditionally, a noisy noise annoys an oyster.

WPA Experience

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Honest confession I feel is good for the soul and I hope good for those who may read my honest confession.

There seems to be a misunderstanding on the part of many people as to the wish of those who work on WPA. This misunderstanding concerns the attitude of the WPA workers toward private employment. I would like to inform the few who may read this letter that the only way for them to know how the average WPA worker feels is that he or she work on the WPA, if you can.

I have been working on the WPA five years and I don't like it well enough to remain on one split second longer than I can get another job. The best that I've ever made is $79 a month.

Besides being poorly paid one's job is of more uncertainty than any work under the sun. I never know how long I shall work on any project although my work is satisfactory. I have been on projects scheduled to run six months to a year, the said project closing in four and a half months. I was on one written up to run one year and it happened to run 14 months. Sometimes notice that a project is going to close doesn't get to the workers until the day the project actually closes, thus the workers are almost panicky.

To further assure my readers of my desire to be privately employed, I wish to state my personal experience.

Even though I have one dependent, and never have worked more than 13½ months out of any 16 months and receiving never more than $800 a year, often only $640 a year, I have purchased a $65 typewriter and taught myself the touch system of typing.

July, 1938, I was confined to bed for one month after which I used crutches for eight months. My month in bed was up on the very day that the printer's assistant examination was given. On crutches for the first time, I went and sat for the examination and, despite the weariness of the day, I received a grade 88.4 on the examination. I did these things mentioned in order to prepare myself for work off the WPA. Although, I am not using crutches now, and have done all in my power to get better work or private employment, my efforts have been fruitless.

There is scarcely a day that passes that some of those among whom I work don't remark that they are doing some special work or interviewing some one trying to get a job so that he or she can get off the WPA.

If some private concern would open its doors to the WPA workers in my community I fear there would not be room for the many who'd rush to its doors.

The WPA is new but is doing a great work by keeping many fed, sheltered and clothed.

No Voice Raised

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I cannot understand why no voice has been raised nor pen used in behalf of the widows of the Civil War Veterans. Most of these must be in the eighties or nineties and in need of care and attention incident to old age ailments.

Congress voted an increase from $40 to $50 pension, but Mr. Coolidge, then President, vetoed it on the score of economy.

Now that streams of money seem to be flowing from the Treasury, cannot some be directed toward this real need?

Educational Measures

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I add my voice to those who would find a way quickly to overcome Congressional ignorance, contrariness, partisanship or whatever it is that motivates its opposition to the Administration's neutrality program.

Education may do the trick. For look at what has happened in the recent history of our neutrality legislation.

It was the fervor of the Administration to prevent the involvement of the United States in another world war, it was the Nye investigation and consequent McReynolds and Pittman bills which instituted our new style statutory neutrality in 1935. With the law on the books, experts set to work to study it, and they unanimously concluded that the law was a bad one.

Their opinions induced additional study by Congressional committees and officials of the State Department, and all this convinced Administration leaders that they had been wrong. Now, therefore, they seek to erase such key provisions as the embargo. But a majority—as likely as not a well-intentioned majority—which has not had the benefit of long and close study of the problem, seeks to thwart the effort to discard the embargo.

It would seem that the group opposing neutrality legislation or at least favoring embargo repeal should be listened to with respect. The independent authorities on law and diplomacy who make the study of such problems their life work, the experts in the State Department who should understand the nature of international problems as well as any, and finally the Congressional leaders themselves who through further study have realized their error, should command attention.

So let's bring forward again the reasoning which prompts these men to oppose such measures as the embargo. Let's set down all the arguments right now and impress them on the Congressional mind.

Against The Schulte Milk Bill

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Do the people of Washington know that in the proposed Schulte bill, bacteria as high as 200,000 per cubic centimeter is allowed for Grade A milk? And do they know that the average bacteria count, during the year of 1938 was 18,500 in milk produced under the present standards of inspections?

Do they know that under the present regulations, milk must be cooled to 50 degrees or lower, while under the proposed law, the temperature need in no event be lower than 70 degrees Fahrenheit?

Do the people of Washington realize that harmful bacteria is caused by the presence of dirt, and the best method of securing a low bacteria count is by keeping dirt out of milk? And, finally, that it is necessary to keep milk at a low temperature to prevent rapid growth of the bacteria?

I think the people of Washington should realize that the Health Department of that city, with the help of the Producers' Association, and with the co-operation of local producers, has been working for the past 25 years to secure a uniform product with low bacteria count, and by prompt cooling to a low temperature to prevent further bacterial growth.

The proposed Schulte bill would repudiate much of this progress, and would turn back the clock 25 years, as far as sanitary production of milk is concerned. The people of Washington are being deluded. They have been told that under the proposed Schulte bill milk would be cheaper, which is a questionable possibility, but they have not been told that the high standards of purity, now guaranteed, would be lowered. They have not been told by these interested gentlemen that unscrupulous dealers could reconstruct milk from cheap cream and sell it on the street in the guise of fluid milk, and do it more profitably than under the present law. The proposed Schulte bill would legalize practices which are known to be harmful to health, and which would allow the dealer to pyramid his profits at the expense of both the local producer and consumer.

The proposed Schulte bill is not based on the findings of the Bates committee, nor on the dictates of common sense and good judgment. It is a direct insult to the people of Washington, in that it asks them to accept milk produced under less sanitary conditions than at present. It proposes to sacrifice the welfare of all the local producers; independent friends of the "bootlegging" dairies, as well as members of the producers association.

It is vitally important that everyone interested in milk—producer, distributor and consumer, should know the facts—the real persons to benefit by this legislative monstrosity are a few gentlemen from the East, and a few gentlemen from the West, who have strangely become "dear friends."

No, I am sure that the people of Washington, whose businessmen, doctors, and dentists regularly get back a good portion of the local farmers' milk checks, do not want this bill to become a law.

Compulsory Vaccination

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An editorial reprinted in The Post of July 12 from the Des Moines Register says every State on the Eastern seacost, from Maine to Florida, has a law making it (vaccination) compulsory for all school children. "The result is that these States today have not one single known case of smallpox within their borders, while Iowa's cases run into the hundreds."

Will you print my reply or suppress it? Maine and Florida have no compulsory vaccination laws. Are they bothered with smallpox? The whole Western Coast States have no compulsory vaccination laws. Are they troubled about smallpox? What about the unvaccinated adults by the millions all over this country? Is smallpox taking them off?

Why did our revaccinated Army of the Philippines have 46 per cent death rate from smallpox in 1900? None of our population has ever been so thoroughly vaccinated as that Army.

Why is Australia, with its 6,000,000 unvaccinated, not bothered by smallpox? or England with her 60 percent unvaccinated children?

Why did the flu take off half a million in this country in 1918-1919? Was it because they were not vaccinated against the flu?

Seeing Paris

Paris.

We were sitting at a sidewalk cafe on the Avenue des Champs-Elysees. My French friend, who was a professor, was telling me what to see in Paris. "You say you've been to the Louvre?" His English was impeccable. "Two visits," I replied.

My friend then took a deep breath, pushed aside his coffee cup, laid a crumpled piece of paper on the table and began making rapid scratches on it with his fountain pen. "Now, let me see," he poised his pen in air and squinted his pleasant hazel eyes in the direction of the Arc de Triomphe. "You've been to Notre Dame and to Sainte-Chapelle. You must go to the Pantheon."

Brightly I interrupted him again, "I've taken any number of walking tours following a book," and I told him the name of the book, which was thus-and-thus; and written, I said, by one who had achieved such-and-such a position of eminence.

"Don't read her, whatever you do!" There was real distress in his voice. "She is utterly superficial, and her information is often wrong!" Then suddenly, "Do you read French?" "Yes," I replied, "but I don't understand it." "Well," he continued, now crisply professional, and ignoring my facetiousness, "you want to read Georges Cain; he's the best, the very best. Not extremely literary, you know, but the most interesting and knows his history." (Every Frenchman is tenderly and passionately interested in France's history.) "Yes, he knows his history," and with that I got another reproachful look for worshiping a false goddess.

"Have you climbed the Tower of Notre Dame? No! But that you must not fail to do; and then be sure to go to Saint-Julien-le-Pauvre and Saint-Severin. And of course Sacre-Coeur on Montmartre. Get the view from below first, and climb the hill to the church later. Have you visited the Sorbonne? And the Ile St. Louis, from which you get a superb view of Notre Dame? You must not miss them," and all the while he alternately wrote, breathed deeply of the pure Parisian air, and squinted into the distance.

"And now the museums," he said, shaking his fountain pen. "You've been to the Louvre," and the very repetition awakened in the calves of my legs a reminiscent ache. "Then there's the Luxembourg, the Grand Palais, the Petit Palais, the Gobelins, the Trocadero . . ."

He raised his eyes once more to the Avenue de la Grand Armee which stretches away beyond the arc to the Woods of Bologne, and said, "Restaurants!" his tone becoming businesslike. "Are you interested in food? I am myself, very much. Not that I eat more than other men, but I have taken a great delight in discovering new dishes, even in creating them. It's a great art, a very great art. Some Americans seem to think it a little effeminate . . ."

I made some sympathetic murmuring here calculated to show that there are Americans and Americans, but he wasn't listening to me—he was expatiating on the boullebaise at the Restaurant Mediterranie, and southern French cooking in general. And then we went all through the restaurants.

Then the cafes, and his pen scratchings multiplied mightily. I looked at the paper and the directions for going places by the "Metro" (subway), by autobus, and by tramcar, made my head swim; but I picked out a word I was able to read and asked intelligently: "What does 'carrefour' mean?" "Crossroads," he answered, "that is the Carrefour de l'Odeon in the Latin Quarter, where, of course, the most interesting cafes are." "Oh, the left bank," I said a little vapidly. "Certainly," he said, "on the only bank. To many Paris is out there," and he waved an arm in the direction of the Avenue of the Grand Army and the homes of the wealthy foreigners, "but to me Paris is this way," and this time his wave was expressive, eloquent and loving, in the direction of the Seine's left bank. "Here you'll meet the young students and the rising young artists; now what sort of people are you most interested in seeing?"

"Er, the writers," I answered feeling a little silly. "Ah, yes, the writers," and he seemed to understand. "Let me see, there is the Cafe des Deux-Magots, near the Abbey of St. Germain des Pres, or the smaller Cafe de Flore right next to it, which is a little more intimate. All the writers gather there, the young struggling ones, and many who have already begun to 'arrive.' And then you must not forget the Rhumerie Martiniquaise, a cafe famous for its rum punch." "How do you say punch in French?" I asked. "Punshe," he replied smiling, "and there you mustn't mind if it's a little rough, students, you know, they throw things about a bit."

My friend was a busy man. The French are busy in a charming and leisurely fashion, but even they have to go finally; so he rose, shook hands, simultaneously making a stiff little bow from the waist, and started toward his bicycle—all frugal Frenchmen go on bicycles. Then suddenly he came back and sat down again. I had forgotten the paper he was clutching in his hand. "Theaters," he cried, slapping the paper down and starting to write again. "Have you been to the Opera? No! You must go when there is a ballet. And the Theatre-Francais, Moliere's theater, that is . . . you should see at least one classic. See Racine's 'Athalie.' Ah, the French people love their classics, and will be forming a long queue for the cheap seats early in the day."

My eyes felt a little bleary as I waved good-by, but I saw as he went he was absently stuffing a piece of paper into the back pocket of his trousers.

A few evenings later I sat with an English friend at a cafe on top of Montmartre under the stars, seeing Paris. And Paris lay stretched below us like a dark and lovely lady. Her twinkling lights bedecked her like jewels, the Seine was a necklace round her throat, and there were vine leaves in her hair. We just sat there and looked at her. Suddenly I began to laugh.

"What are you laughing at?" asked my companion. "At the story of the absent-minded professor," I said. It wasn't a very full explanation, but as we were each sipping a third pernod, it didn't matter at all.

Fair Enough

C. I. O. And Fascism

AN INCIDENT in the C. I. O. strike at the Fisher Body plant in Pontiac, Mich., seems to violate the pet contention of that organization in the long and recently victorious struggle with Frank Hague, of Jersey City.

In Pontiac 400 workers in certain departments struck and 1,100 in other departments did not, but the strikers placed a picket line before the gates and turned aside non-strikers who wanted to go to their jobs. After a conference Mr. Roy Reuther, the international representative of the union, graciously agreed to open the line wide enough to admit the workers one at a time, but when one man tried to go through the pickets closed up and he was driven off.

Non-Striker Rights Are Unprotected

IN JERSEY CITY, it will be recalled, Mr. Hague prevented representatives of the C. I. O. from assembling, distributing pamphlets and making public speeches. He invoked local ordinances to justify this conduct, but they were illegal ordinances, and at the insistence of the C. I. O. and the Civil Liberties Union he was rebuked and compelled to respect the rights of the C. I. O. and others.

Now it is the fashion for unioneers and New Deal extremists to argue that the right to work is not subversive when they are advocating larger appropriations for relief projects, and to insist that a man has a property right in his job when they are demanding protection against layoffs and discharges in private industry. But the right to work becomes a subject for sneers and is worse than subversive when it is asserted on behalf of the non-striker in a plant which has been struck or partly struck and the non-striker's property right in his job somehow is deemed to be revocable at the pleasure of a union or the political leader of the union.

Hague At Least Was Public Official

HAGUE USED FORCE to compel obedience to orders which had at least, in a phrase of President Roosevelt, the color of legality. He was technically a responsible public official, having received at the polls something which the New Deal calls, in its own case, an overwhelming mandate from the people.

Reuther is not a public official. He is an executive of a private organization which has no more right to bar men from their jobs than it has to bar them from their homes or public meetings or from their chosen places of worship. His organization has no more right than the Elks, the American Legion or the Sons and Daughters of I Will Arise to nullify the liberties of non-members either by intimidation through the threat of force or by actual resort to force.

In principle, when his picket line closed up and made it impossible or unsafe for men to enjoy the property right which has so often been asserted by the C. I. O.'s most passionate partisans, he was guilty of the very conduct which the C. I. O. protested all the way to the Supreme Court in the case of Frank Hague. The case would have been the same, in reverse, if some body of vigilantes in Pontiac had formed a living wall around the headquarters of the union and prevented the members from attending a meeting. In that event the C. I. O. and the Civil Liberties Union would have been hollering for indictments and the impeachment of the civil authorities within an hour of the outrage.

C. I. O. Assailed As Fascist Group

THE FACT that Mr. Reuther violated an agreement, if he did, to let the non-strikers through, one by one, is less important than the fact that no man should have to obtain his permission or special indulgence to exercise his lawful right as a citizen. Neither Mr. Reuther nor the organization which he represents has any legal right to bar men from their place of employment. He shouldn't be requested to refrain from interference; he should be ordered and, if necessary, compelled, as Hague was, to respect the rights for which the C. I. O. fought so bitterly in Jersey City.

In a recent exchange of words with a New England woman who advocates legislation to bar married women from public jobs, Mrs. Roosevelt asked, "Do you want us to become a Fascist nation which tells one when to work and how?"

If that be fascism—and I believe it is—the C. I. O. has been owing the country an answer since long, long before the New England proposition was thought of.

Europe's War Clouds Lifting

Lippmann Reports To Roosevelt, Credits Britain's Firm Stand

Walter Lippmann, writer and columnist, who has just returned from a European trip, called at the White House yesterday and made an optimistic report to President Roosevelt on the prospect for peace.

This is due, he said, to the fact that Great Britain and France definitely have stiffened their backs. Hitler, he declared, is hesitant, and wants to feel the situation out before making a move.

After his talk with the President, Lippmann told newspapermen that reports of indignities to British subjects—particularly women—by Japanese troops in Tientsin, had helped to change the attitude of the British people to one of resistance. The French people, he said, are becoming fed up on the needless uncertainties over what Hitler's next step will be.

The longer Hitler waits, Lippmann declared, the weaker the axis becomes as compared with the democracies. He felt that the Nazis would strike again, possibly in September.

May Strike in Hungary

It is entirely possible, however, he said, that the move will be toward (Hungary or Yugoslavia rather than Danzig. Hitler could have taken Danzig in March, Lippman remarked. But if England and France permitted it to be taken now, small nations would feel that their word no longer was worth anything at all.

If the Nazis set up their own regime in Hungary, or partitioned Yugoslavia, Lippmann declared, it would not result in a general war. With Polish resistance growing, this could not be said with certainty about seizure of Danzig.

Lippmann felt that, if the President dropped the neutrality fight where it is, the interpretation in Europe would be that the United States was "an incalculable factor." Hitler, in consequence, still would be afraid to take a chance, since the President might win out at any time.

Labor Shortage Noted

If he goes through with the neutrality fight, however, and loses, the axis might feel that the time had come to strike. Hitler and Mussolini, he believes, might win a short war. They could not win a protracted war.

Germany's greatest weakness, Lippmann said, is her labor shortage. If 2,000,000 men were mobilized for war, he declared, it would be necessary for German women to do a large share of the industrial and agricultural work. Other weaknesses are the lack of officers in the army and the lack of raw materials.

Italy, Lippmann said, is in a chaotic condition, with Germans virtually in control. Mussolini, he said, has not received a foreigner in some time. Italian morale, he said, could not stand the shock of a severe defeat.

President May Go To Nation on Arms

shipment ban over a national radio network.

Representative Wadsworth (Republican), of New York, renewed his House fight for embargo removal.

"From the beginning I have believed that this automatic, inflexible embargo is a great mistake; that it places the United States in a false position; that in the end it will prove dangerous to our peace," said Wadsworth.

"I make my plea that this so-called arms embargo be eliminated from the law. In doing so I represent no group or faction, nor do I appeal to any group or faction. Domestic political considerations or politics have no place in this discussion."

Wadsworth argued the embargo "extends open encouragement to the big and strong (nations) and bitter discouragement to the small and weak."

A victim of aggression, inadequatly supplied with arms to defend its liberty from a powerful belligerent, Wadsworth said, will be automatically cut off from purchasing the weapons it needs.

"The big fellow smiles cynically at our action," he said, "for the embargo does not hurt him at all."

Wadsworth said he was "glad" the President had not proclaimed a state of war between Japan and China, "for if that embargo should be invoked, China, desperately needing weapons for the preservation of her liberty, could purchase nothing of the kind from us, whereas Japan, being fully armed and equipped, would have no need to purchase."

Unless the embargo is repealed at the present session, he said in the next instance of foreign aggression the American people might "rise up in protest against this rule and demand its repeal" at a time when it would have the effect of placing this Nation in an unneutral position.

Pittman to Move Japan Ban

Blocked in his Foreign Relations Committee on the Administration's neutrality proposals, Chairman Pittman meantime prepared to proceed tomorrow with a move to ban shipments of commodities to Japan for violation of the Nine Power pact.

Pittman's own resolution would empower the President to ban shipment of arms, ammunition, implements of war and all metals to violators of the Nine Power Treaty. Another pending bill by Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), of Washington, would extend the Japanese embargo to all except farm commodities, but give Congress power to disapprove the President's proclamation.

On this bill, or some other pending measure, Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, said yesterday he is considering offering his own bill for complete repeal of the neutrality act, the arms embargo included.

If reported to the Senate, the Japanese embargo proposal would provide an opportunity for a neutrality bill rider move, but Chairman Pittman is vigorously opposed to enacting neutrality legislation and Japanese embargo in one measure, and said he would call on his friends to fight it.

Confer With Hull

Both Barkley and Pittman denied any conversations with the President since the Senate committee postponed action Tuesday. Likewise they denied knowledge of any forthcoming message. Both have been in close touch with Secretary of State Hull, however, and are expected to be called to the White House when and if a message is prepared.

Skeptical that either Senator George, of Georgia, or Gillette, of Iowa, would change their stand for postponement, or that his committee might change its vote, Pittman said nonetheless every legislative means of bringing the bill to a Senate vote is being discussed.

Protesting the committee's failure to report a neutrality bill, the Washington committee to revise the neutrality act called a mass meeting for 8:15 p. m. Monday at the Mayflower Hotel. Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, will be the speaker, and a resolution calling for embargo of war shipments to Japan will be presented.

their jobs to protect their rights."

Action of the A. F. L. was expected to stimulate interest on Capitol Hill in revising the relief law, although most observers thought the pressure has come too late. Congressmen friendly to organized labor repeatedly said in private that they had heard little demand for retention of the prevailing wage until after the bill had passed. Practically all were of the opinion none of the proposed amendments will pass this session.

With many thousands of relief workers still on strike, WPA officials carried out the order of Col. Harrington, WPA Administrator, that those absent five consecutive working days be fired. In Minnesota, the Associated Press reported, the WPA estimated that 10,000 dismissal slips have been mailed. Nearly 5,000 were sent out in New York.

Pennsylvania to Strike

A strike on all WPA projects in Pennsylvania has been set for tomorrow by the State Building Trades Council of the A. F. of L. In New York City, an A. F. of L. official said, every project was "paralyzed."

Detroit workers, who held a one-day protest strike, were reported to be returning to work; about 1,500 each in Indiana and in Wisconsin were still out; 28,000 were estimated on strike in Chicago, and 2,500 were reported out in Buffalo. Maryland apparently had no strikes. One Charleston (W. Va.) project, employing 50 men, was suspended.

Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, chairman of the Appropriations sub-committee handling relief matters, said that in his home town, Pueblo, "one man" was on strike. Refusing to predict the fate of the Murray bill for restoring the prevailing wage, Adams indicated his committee would not decide whether to hold hearings until Col. Harrington returns from Chicago tomorrow.

Airing the A. F. L.'s grievance against the WPA, the report adopted at yesterday's conference asserted "WPA is no longer engaged in a purely relief enterprise. It is engaged in construction work never designed for relief purposes and under cloak of a relief measure is working a vital injury, not alone to labor, but likewise to free enterprise in the construction and other fields of industry."

Competition Is Cited

"If the Government," said the report, "is to continue in its construction policy and in venturing into other fields in competition with free enterprise, then in our judgment it should prove an exemplar in the establishment and development of a labor policy that will tend to raise the standards of life and work rather than to lower them and repress our wage earners.

"Neither Congress nor the Federal Administration have heretofore attempted to reduce the price of materials. To the contrary, the attempt to reduce the cost of production has been placed entirely upon the shoulders of labor and is to be taken out of the sweat of the wage earners."

Denying the "protests" are "strikes against the Government," the report termed them "manifestations on the part of wage earners to maintain the standards of work and of wages built up through years of effort."

Green Reviews Case

In his address to the conference, Green asserted that "we diligently endeavored to prevent the imposition of this injustice (abolition of the prevailing wage standard) and we are determined now to do all that lies within our power to lift it and remove it." He said the A. F. of L. eventually would fix responsibility for the new legislation and "tell the workers of the Nation."

Green announced formation of a committee to arrange for presentation of A. F. of L. demands to the President and Congress. The group, which will meet today, includes Green, Harry C. Bates, of the Bricklayers Union; Daniel W. Tracy, of the Electrical Workers Brotherhood; George Lynch, of the Pattern Makers Association, and others.

Beware of That Sun, Pabst Warns For 21st Time

Dr. Pabst's "Tan Commandments" came of age yesterday, but the Brooklyn dematologist reissued them just the same for the benefit of "Heliophobes" who may have reached the same age, but not discretion.

For 21 years Dr. Charles F. Pabst, of Greenpoint Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., has issued an annual warning of the dangers that lurk in the sun; "yet thousands of vacationists still expose themselves recklessly," he laments.

Classifying blondes and red-heads as "heliophobes," to whom the sun can only do harm, he urges them to forget the desire to become bronze Venuses or Adonises, and leave backless bathing suits to olive-skinned, brunette "heliophiles."

In all cases sun tan should be sought in short doses, he cautions, during which external applications of perfume or water and internal applications of alcohol should be avoided. Wear a hat and don't read in the sun, he adds, even if you are a heliophile.

Mr. McNutt: Coordinator

By Mark Sullivan

A Ticklish Job

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has a reputation for political subtlety. His intimates say he likes it, enjoys being complimented on it. But the most expert practitioner of subtlety may have times when he does not attempt subtlety at all—when he does the direct thing in the direct way. When that happens, he ought not to be surprised if his reputation for subtlety beclouds his unsubtle action.

When Mr. Roosevelt appointed former Gov. McNutt to be head of Federal Security agencies, the newspapers sought a subtle political motive. They were bound to. Here was Mr. McNutt, an energetic candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, just ending an appointment as Governor-General of the Philippines—and ending it, everybody assumed, for the purpose of being still more energetic in pursuit of the Presidential nomination. In these circumstances, Mr. Roosevelt appoints Mr. McNutt to one of the 10 or 12 most important posts in the Administration.

The thing cried to Heaven for search of a political motive. And the searchers for subtlety got busy. Mr. Roosevelt could not conceivably be surprised. The appointment just could not avoid having an effect on the Democratic Presidential situation. It might be one effect or another—but some effect it was bound to have.

McNutt's Future In Roosevelt's Hand

BY MR. ROOSEVELT'S action, Mr. McNutt as a Presidential possibility will become, 11 months from now when the Democratic National Convention takes place, a different possibility from what he would otherwise have been. He may be more a possibility or less a possibility. Just which no one can foretell. But everyone assumed Mr. Roosevelt could foretell. For Mr. Roosevelt, by having Mr. McNutt in his official family, can keep a hand on developments during the intervening 11 months. Mr. Roosevelt can now almost guarantee whether Mr. McNutt will become a leading candidate or a negligible one. Just which Mr. Roosevelt had in mind is what the searchers for subtlety speculated on.

This newspaper search for political motive irked Mr. Roosevelt. To his press conference he said that, believe it or not, things are sometimes done without political motive, and on merit only. He said he didn't expect the newspapers to print it, but the fact was Mr. McNutt was appointed Federal Security head because of outstanding qualification for the job. Then Mr. Roosevelt explained why. And to the newspaperman here writing, the explanation seemed convincing. Mr. McNutt, on merit, has unique qualification to head the Federal Security agencies.

Biggest Headache Handed to McNutt

THE WORK of that post is largely co-ordination. The head of Federal Security will have under him nine great Government activities—the Social Security Board, the Public Health Service, the United States Employment Service, the C. C. C., and five more. Each of these activities has a chief of its own. The job of Mr. McNutt will be to co-ordinate them, to adjust differences, to say where one function ends and another begins. Also, most of these Federal activities under Mr. McNutt work hand in hand with corresponding activities in each of the 48 States. So there must be co-ordination between State and Federal, to say nothing of co-ordination with Congress and with State legislatures. It is the biggest co-ordinating job in the Government.

NOW CO-ORDINATION has been Mr. Roosevelt's headache. Time after time, co-ordination of the Roosevelt Administration has been announced, usually with a confident flourish. And time after time, co-ordination has flattened out. (Largely, I think, because the New Deal is too big and sprawling to be co-ordinated by any human co-ordinator—but that is another story.)

Again and again, some businessman with a reputation as a super co-ordinator has been summoned to Washington. Practically always he has, in a few months, gone quietly back to the world of business. Businessmen do not often make good administrators in the world of Government. The reason is that Government includes politics, politics in the perfectly good sense. Co-ordination within the world of government and politics includes deference to many men who have independent standing in their own right—members of Congress, Governors, heads of departments who are strong enough to demand personal consideration. The Federal co-ordinator whom Mr. Roosevelt long has sought cannot rule by fiat. He must be forceful, yes—but forceful with a smile, and with considerateness. He must know and take into account the political problems of Congressmen in their own States, and a thousand other considerations.

Good Background For Ticklish Job

FOR THAT SORT of job, Mr. McNutt is just about as ideal as Mr. Roosevelt could find. Mr. McNutt has been Governor of a large State, Indiana, and has the repute of having done an exceptional job of administration, including some drastic reorganization. Mr. McNutt has dealt with legislatures and local officials, sometimes hostile ones. Mr. McNutt has personality plus. Mr. McNutt is a Democrat—that meets a political necessity. Mr. McNutt is a good politician—he ended his term as Governor of Indiana with such good will as to have the State behind him for the Presidential nomination.

If Mr. Roosevelt was in a mood of harassment over his administrative problems, very great and now poorly done, the thought of Mr. McNutt may have come to him as Heaven-sent. As for the bearing on Mr. McNutt for the Democratic Presidential nomination, Mr. Roosevelt can keep his hand on that and make it what he wishes.

Europe Between Crises

EUROPE'S temperature rises and falls. So far the patient has been spared the delirium of war. But even under the best possible conditions of recent times Europe's temperature has been abnormally high. It is abnormally high today.

There have been a number of first-class crises in Europe since the beginning of the year, but so far no showdown. The first crisis came into being with the Nazi occupation of Bohemia, Moravia and Memel and Italy's attack on Albania. A tremor of alarm spread throughout Europe but fears were greatest in Rumania and Greece which saw themselves as the next victims of the Nazi and Fascist juggernauts.

The anticipated did not happen but by the second week in April tensions in Europe were again close to the breaking point. It was then that President Roosevelt intervened with his history-making message to Hitler and Mussolini, an action which at least postponed the fatal day of reckoning.

THERE FOLLOWED an uneasy lull during which Great Britain, having abandoned the policy of limited liability so far as the continent of Europe is concerned, proceeded to take the lead in the formation of what has come to be called the peace front. The visible indications of this British about-face were the pacts with Poland and later with Turkey, the guarantees of assistance extended to Rumania and Greece and the negotiations for an alliance with Soviet Russia.

The respite, if it can be called that, proved of very brief duration. By the end of June and the beginning of July the danger of a new German aggression appeared so real that British statesmen found it necessary to issue almost daily warnings to Germany. Nazi spokesmen scoffed at these warnings but the fact that no putsch was attempted at Danzig showed that the barbs had gone home.

YET DANZIG remains a danger point of very considerable magnitude. Nor does it enjoy that unenviable distinction alone. If Hitler's northern path to continental domination is blocked, be it only temporarily, there is the possibility that he will take the southern path with Rumania replacing Poland as the next victim of aggression.

Recent developments indicate that the Fuehrer has not left that alternative out of his calculations. Berlin's ardent wooing of Yugoslavia and Bulgaria may prove to be the prelude to a thrust in the direction of Carol's kingdom. It also has the broader significance of driving a wedge in the peace front and preventing it from functioning, in the event of a European war, with a maximum of effectiveness.

YUGOSLAVIA and Bulgaria have, as yet, shown no disposition to become active allies of the axis. They have little to gain by joining a combination whose weight in Europe's scales is rapidly being counterbalanced by the Anglo-French bloc. They stand to lose a great deal.

But either because of their geographically exposed position as is true of Yugoslavia, or because of past grievances with members of the peace bloc, as is the case with Bulgaria, they are equally averse to becoming identified with the enemies of the axis. They are between the devil and the deep blue sea. So they have decided to pursue a policy of neutrality.

That policy happens to be as useful to the axis as an outright alliance would be. It would mean the disruption of the Balkan Entente. And in wartime it would cut Rumania off from land routes to Turkey and Greece. Thus Rumania's position would be made precarious, despite the British guarantee.

THESE and similar maneuvers wholly or partly inspired by the axis powers do not necessarily mean that Germany plans to resort to war if she cannot get what she is after by blackmail and terror alone. Yet it would be absurd to rule out that dread possibility.

In this connection the mysterious activities taking place in the South Tyrol cannot be left out of account. The German-speaking inhabitants of that area have been one of the worst treated minorities in Europe. Yet while Hitler has raved about the alleged oppression of the Sudeten Germans, the inhabitants of Danzig and other areas populated by German-speaking people outside the Reich, he has kept mum regarding the South Tyrol.

Recently something like an exchange of populations was arranged between the members of the axis. Specifically, it was agreed that the South Tyrolese were to be given an opportunity of pulling up stakes and finding new homes in Germany.

No one who knows the people of that beautiful region can believe that many will voluntarily leave their mountains and their valleys. But dictators have no concern with desires of their subjects. The Tyrolese may be pushed out whether they like it or not. They are pawns of the axis. But to prevent the world from witnessing the heart-rending scenes the order has been given that all foreigners must leave the South Tyrol at once.

THIS is probably not the only reason for this mysterious action. Should Italy find herself at war on Germany's side, the direction of her policy would rest in Germany.

Already North Italy is overrun with agents of the Third Reich. That process of infiltration would be accelerated if war broke out. And the presence of these Germans, civil and military, in North Italy might ultimately lead to the severance of South Tyrol from the Italian kingdom. The elimination or absorption of the German minority in Italy and thus any future pretext to regard the South Tyrol as German irredenta may thus be an essential prelude to whole-hearted military co-operation between the axis powers.

Europe's fever is rising again.

Youths in 20's Found Reticent About Their Age

Another long-cherished popular illusion has gone down before the onslaught of science. In the World of Tomorrow it is not women who hide their age, nor even middle-aged men, but the youth in his early twenties.

This was revealed yesterday by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., from statistics compiled at its New York World's Fair exhibit. The typical man and woman of over 50 announces his or her age proudly, statistics show, and the teen-age maiden admits her youth coyly but unashamed. It is the young man of 25 who summons up a small, weak voice after long hesitation to confess his inexperience.

"This," says the insurance company, "is one of the amusing mysteries of the New York World's Fair."

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Intolerable Cruelty, Hollywood Type

Judge—You base this divorce application on charges of intolerable cruelty?

Screen Star (with a long-suffering manner)—Yes, Judge, it was beyond all reason.

Judge—Would you mind citing a few instances?

Screen Star—Well, for one thing, he was always dropping burned matches into the goldfish bowl. It unnerved me terribly. I lost 20 pounds in six months.

Judge (very sympathetically)—Don't cry. Just try to compose yourself and go on with your story. What else did this brute do?

Screen Star—He had a habit of complaining if he came home to dinner and found I hadn't prepared anything.

Judge (severely)—He was that kind of a creature, eh?

Screen Star—Yes, Judge. He seemed to think he ought to get his meals regularly at home.

Judge—Whatever gave him that idea?

Screen Star—I never could understand. It was just the beast in him, I guess.

Judge—Did you make any effort on such occasions to get dinner for him, my dear woman?

Screen Star—Always. I would wear my fingers to the bone getting him some buttered toast and canned soup, but he didn't show any gratitude. It made me highly nervous.

Judge—Go on. I can stand it.

Screen Star—Well, he wanted the beds kept clean, and if I let the beds go three or four days unmade he would glare at me and mutter.

Judge—Why didn't he make the beds himself?

Screen Star—That's what I tried to find out, but he would never give me any good reasons.

Judge—Did this inhumane attitude affect your health?

Screen Star—I often lost 10 or 15 minutes sleep per night, and it interfered with my work.

Judge—What work?

Screen Star—With any work I might have had to do if I had ever gotten around to it.

Judge—Now dry those tears. Have you the strength to go on with this shocking story of cruelties?

Screen Star (after a bracer)—I can go on. He also used to drum on tables with his fingers, whistle when the radio played tunes he knew and wear his socks without garters.

Judge—In my many years of experience in the divorce court of California I have never heard of such outrageous conduct. Go on.

Screen Star—The straw that broke the camel's back came last month.

Judge—What was that?

Screen Star—He said he didn't love me any more, and at times wishes he hadn't married me.

Judge—Imagine a husband using language like that to a wife! What drove him to such a lapse of control?

Screen Star—It was all because I rebuked him for not putting away his shaving things.

Judge (indignantly)—He was the kind of man who didn't put away his things, eh? Decree granted!

Screen Star—Oh, thank you, Judge.

Judge—I know brutality when I see it. And, say, before you leave would you autograph a program for me?

How Parachute Jump Trapped Couple

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Held Aerial Prisoners 5 Hours

Photo-diagram shows how Mr. and Mrs. J. Cornelius Rathborne, prominent Long Island couple, were trapped 5 hours and 14 minutes in a parachute jump at the New York World's Fair. The parachutes drop on guide cables which keep them spread. It was against one of these cables that the 'chute in which they were riding jammed. The Rathbornes are in the middle 'chute, 125 feet above ground. At left and right, in other 'chutes are rescue workers

Building Falls During Fire Test

Instead of going up in flames, the Firestone Building, Third and Independence avenue southwest, went down in flames. Bureau of Standards experts and members of the Federal Fire Council, were testing carbon dioxide gas (CO_2) as an extinguisher when the building collapsed. Washington firemen were called into action with good ol' H_2O

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

"All Who Go Up, Must Come Down"

So said Mr. Rathborne and here he is with his wife, both smiling after their rescue. Rescuers cut the jammed cable and lowered the 'chute a few feet at a time. Thousands of spectators gathered around the jump in the amusement area and the Rathbornes grinned down and took their predicament cheerfully

Slimming Waistline Is Easier Task in Summer Months

SUMMER SLIMMING need not take all the fun out of living. It is easy to keep the calories on the svelte side of streamlines in hot weather that you are foolish if you do not take this chance to reduce. By now, those of you who started with the majority of the summer reducers should have lost six-pounds—and in that case you need no urging to continue. The laggards are the ones I am after.

At close range, the reducing menus are not radically different from the ones you should have every day. Whether breakfast helps you to lose or to put on weight depends on the amount of cream, sugar, butter and jelly included.

Cream Fattening

The fruit, egg, toast and coffee are supposed to be standard in any good breakfast. Perhaps you would rather start the day with a small meal, just toast and coffee, with two pats of butter, jelly and a jug of cream for the coffee. That "small" breakfast is fattening. The cream and butter alone supply 300 calories.

Luncheon for the reducer can be appetizing without exceeding the low calorie limit. You are entitled to salad, a sandwich, fruit dessert, and a beverage. The use of too liberal quantities of butter and mayonnaise, however, will change this into a weight-gaining menu.

You really need not think of dinner as a diet . . . you can have broiled meat or a cold meat, two vegetables, a salad and a dessert. The bread should be restricted either to one slice or to one roll, and the butter to one pat, but I insist that is not a "diet" in the usual sense of the word.

Sea Food Dish Is Presented by NCA Economist

Marjorie Black Suggests Shrimp Casserole Recipe

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor.

Favorite recipes of leading home economists of Washington are presented daily in this column.

SEA FOOD is important in the diet because of its rich supply of minerals and vitamins. Shrimp is a favorite sea food and over 5,000,000 pounds are produced annually. Miss Marjorie Black, guest food editor for today, has chosen shrimp for her favorite food. Miss Black is a home economist with the National Canners Association.

MISS BLACK

A native of Michigan, she was educated at the University of Michigan and Columbia University. For six years she was director of household science, and in charge of the Practice House, Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich. Miss Black has conducted cooking schools, developed countless recipes and written about food in California. She has been associated with the National Canners Association since 1935. The following is Miss Black's message to The Post food readers:

"I like casserole mixtures even in the summertime. The blend of flavors of various foods always interests me. My mixtures may not be twice alike, but the general idea may be the same. For instance, the recipe here for Casserole of Shrimp may appear just as it is given, or it may contain a combination of shrimp and crab, or shrimp and lobster, or peas may be used instead of corn.

Casserole of Shrimp

"Cook I package of thin noodles until tender in boiling salted water. Drain and place in a casserole. Arrange one 12-ounce can whole kernel corn, two 5¾-ounce cans of shrimp and one 8-ounce can sliced mushrooms over the noodles. Save the liquid from the mushrooms and shrimp to use in making the sauce. To make cheese sauce: Melt 6 tablespoons butter in frying pan, add 5 tablespoons flour and stir until smooth. Add the liquid from shrimp and mushrooms, 2 cups milk and cook until sauce is thick and smooth. Stir constantly. Add ½ pound strong American cheese, except for a portion to sprinkle over the top of the casserole. Season with salt and pepper and pour sauce over other ingredients. Mix gently. Sprinkle the cheese over top. Bake in moderately hot oven, (400 degrees), until heated through or about 30 minutes. Makes 10 to 12 servings."

For Vacation Fun

Canine Mystery

How does it happen that those who rave loudest

Concerning the feminine sin of keeping a dog,

"When children are starving and needing attention,"

So seldom let orphans set THEM all agog?

A Successful Woman

At club parties she always manages to come home bearing the left-over cakes and cookies and the table decorations.

She is always on the front row at food show demonstrations when the sameple biscuits are being given out.

At parades she is invariably equipped with a small (but alas, secure) box which she mounts at the crucial moment to the disconcertment of those behind her.

She has never been known to await her turn in line at a cafeteria, bank or ticket window. She always explains to those ahead of her that she is "in an awful hurry, and won't be a minute, anyway."

She can walk out of a dress department of a store after having tried on ten dresses without feeling in the least sheepish or telling the clerk apologetically that she "may come back."

She can cross-examine a grocer over the telephone concerning his produce with the skill of a criminal attorney and she is never short-changed or short-weighed by tradesmen of any kind.

She can occupy two seats in bus or street car without being in the least disconcerted by the strap-hangers who are glowering above her.

After a lecture or at a tea, she barges up and obtains possesion of the lecturer or lion of the hour keeping the line behind waiting . . . and waiting until she has said all that she has to say—about herself.

For some obscure reason she never has to wait in beauty shops, dentists', or doctors' offices. Less assertive patrons see her arrive while they are reading their third magazine and leave while they are still on their sixth.

She always serves as president or member of the board of her club. She has never been known to be a treasurer, a corresponding secretary or chairman of the ways and means committee.

She never talks on the telephone without knowing who is calling. She has never been known to leap from a bathtub or leave a table in response to a call. Friends who call at the wrong moment are told she is dining, resting or relaxing and requested to call later.

She never furnishes the sandwiches or the potato salad for the club picnic but invariably contributes the bananas.

She never carries a parcel, no matter how small. Even a spool of thread is delivered, and if a lace jabot is to be returned, the store must call for it.

When out-of-town visitors call up she does not say, "Come on out," but rather volunteers—especially if there are any men in the party—that she will come downtown and meet them for lunch.

She has no trouble hailing taxis on rainy days. She simply steps into the one someone else had signaled and rides grandly away.

She never has any shabby clothes or run-down furniture. She makes it clear to her family and associates that she "loves nice things" and simply has to be surrounded by them.

The term "good sport" is not in her vocabulary, but why should she mind? She is successful in everything in life—that is in everything but holding the affection and admiration of those she calls "friends."

Today's Social Note

(From the Truthtown Torch)

Mrs. J. Parmalee Bigton gave a garden party yesterday in the small marshy inclosure back of her house in Adamtown. The event was attended by most of the town's notables, also a large number of flies, bumble bees, hornets, wasps, mosquitoes, ants, chiggers, etc., who made it very uncomfortable for feminine guests who had been so shortsighted as to come in short-skirted and sleeveless frocks.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Should Woman Marry, When Step Means Depriving Newlywed Son of Her Financial Aid?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a woman 44 years old, and have been married and divorced. I have a grown son who has just recently married. He and his bride are living with me. His father and I were separated when he was very young. For two years I have been going with a man five years my junior. He is very eager to marry me, but during that time, he has not had steady work—only odd jobs now and then. And he is supposed, when he can can, to contribute to the support of his aged parents.

On the other hand, I have a very good job and will draw retirement pay in not so many years. I have a home paid for; also a car. I am wondering if it would be fair to marry this man, and thus deny my son the use of these things, which he uses as his own. Or should I find my contentment in making him happy? He and his wife both work, but for very small salaries, and this way it is possible for me to help them get a start. I try to make up to him for the father he never had, as he doesn't remember his father.

I find it hard to choose between working for my son's happiness or for the happiness of this other man. I sometimes wonder if I am in love with him, or if the feeling I have is just love-starvation, which will pass as I grow older. Does a woman of my age fall in love? Or is it simply a case of grabbing at a last chance for romance? And is mother love the better and longer-lasting emotion? Please give me your opinions. UNDECIDED.

The Right to Marry

DEAR UNDECIDED: The immeasurable satisfaction which an emotionally well balanced woman may derive from healthfully expressed mother love can never fully compensate her for deliberate or fortuitous denial of the consolations of mate love. In a glossary of brilliantly original definitions of coined phrases appended to his latest book, "Seeing Ourselves as Others See Us," David Seabury vigorously emphasizes this psychological truism—which applies equally to either sex, and also to married couples who may incline to neglect each other for their children.

Thus, it appears that, as a mature yet comparatively youthful woman, you would be justified—indeed, you would be wise—in planning a really companionable second marriage, even though such a marriage would mean pushing your son out of the nest to rely primarily upon his own resources.

Just as you have not asked or expected him to forfeit married companionship in repayment for maternal devotion, neither should he—or you, or any other—suppose that you must forfeit acceptable opportunity promising similar companionship, merely to keep yourself free to serve his interests only. Rather, it seems far more reasonable to suppose that what you did lone-handed for yourself and him, through the years of his childhood and adolescence, he—as an adult—can do now for himself, with the aid of his wife.

Granted, then, that you have the right to marry, even at the expense of present—and perhaps lasting—creature discomfort to your son and his wife; and that in a well-advised marriage you would share dividends of mature happiness that could never be yours as a benevolent accessory to your son's life—still, a question all-important to your happiness remains unanswered. This question has to do with the character and integrity of your present suitor.

I have a hunch that he is looking to you more for guaranteed support than for the intangible matrimonial emoluments of thoroughgoing comradeship; of sincerely shared mental, spiritual and physical love. I imagine he looks upon you as a combined "easy mark" and financial "sure thing." Because his interest in you is more shrewdly self-seeking than otherwise, I daresay you have sensed that fact; so that in very intuitive distrust of his fundamental objectives, you are unable to love him wholeheartedly.

Persons in their forties, fifties and sixties may love as profoundly as any in their thirties, twenties or teens. Indeed, they may bring to marriage even greater psychic potentialities for happiness given and received. So your failure to love this man as you might wish to do cannot be attributed to declining vigor. However, it is entirely possible, as you suggest, that your response to his suit has been due in large measure to love-starvation. And for that very reason, you should be doubly on guard against making a mistake.

Frankly, I believe that you are, in this instance, "grabbing at a (supposedly) last chance for romance." Grabbing as a drowning man grabs at a straw. And I venture to think that this man, if you married him, might betray your hopes-of-happiness as completely as the aforesaid straw would betray the hopes-of-salvation of the drowning man. M. H.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

Sense of Warmth and Kindliness Found West of Hudson, Says Columnist's Hubby

Aboard Santa Fe Chief, July 12.

JUST LEAVING Chicago on the dear old Santa Fe, I turn the microphone over to Uncle Len Hall, my spouse and baggage-toter.

ALICE HUGHES

Once a person crosses the Hudson River and enters the United States of America again, there is a sense of freedom, warmth and kindliness. No kidding—if there is anything in our Nation worth living or dying for, it will not be found on the splinter of rock called Manhattan Island. That is alien soil.

But enough nostalgic dithyramb. Let me tell you about this Miss Hughes, whose name appears above these pieces. She has been around the world a couple of times on box-kites, and you'd think she'd have some savvy as a traveler. But has she? We started for a brief Hollywood junket, and I found she had seven pieces of hand baggage, or twice as much as is needed to cross the Gobi Desert. Due to my army and newspaper training, I had one bag, containing my other shirt. She has enough junk for three presentations at Buckingham Palace.

And what happens in dear old Chicago, between trains? The minute my back is turned to buy a cigar or a mug of ale, she has ordered a case of soda pop to be carried aboard one of the crack trains to the West Coast. It was too late to interfere. I only wondered that she hadn't bought a feather bed, too. And you girls think you have a tough life! You should travel with a Miss Hughes, of Murray Hill!

BIRD ABOUT THE NATION—Can you tell me why it is that the moment unescorted ladies leave New York on a fleet rattler they go a bit super-gay? They do—they begin to nibble at saucers of tonics they shun at home and cast complacent eyes on total strangers. It must be the motion of the ship or the southern cross or something. But I leave the final answer to science.

Another nudge for science: Is it reasonable that women, even such ancient globe-trotters as Miss Hughes, cannot realize that two sections of a train are not one and the same? Don't answer, but think it over.

One of our traveling companions is a lovely stick of dynamite named Stella Unger, famed as a song writer, a radio orator, and wife and mother. This is her first trip in 16 years without her mother or husband. I think she likes it.

Happy note for the Nation: The transcontinental trains are packed these days. People come and go madly. I have a dandy spot in a smoking room for tonight's shuteye . . . Babies on trains are either world horrors or else the sweetest things on earth. We were lucky out of New York—we drew the latter,a darling little girl who won the train's prize grump.

Improve Your Pronunciations

GENTLEMAN'S clothes, but "shack town" speech—that's Jack! He sends chills up the spine with his "It's GenuWINE luck meetin' you here at the theeAYter."

What a different impression he'd make if he'd correctly say "JENUin" for "genuine," pronounce the "g" in meeting," say "THEEater" for theater.

Really a shame to let poor pronunciation put a barrier between you and the people you're eager to know. Clever to check up with lists of commonly mispronounced words, speak as carefully as you dress.

You have confidence, then, discussing music or the play with cultured people. You know that the preferred pronunciation of aria is AHria, not AIRia, that vaudeville is VODvil, not VAWdivil, that drama is not DRAMma but DRAHma.

3. MEETING of St. Anthony and St. Paul (at right), by Sassetta. This picture is evidently a part of an altar piece, other portions of which are in Sienna, in the Jarvis Collection at Yale University and in the Phillip Lehman Collection, New York

How Parachute Jump Trapped Couple

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Held Aerial Prisoners 5 Hours

Photo-diagram shows how Mr. and Mrs. J. Cornelius Rathborne, prominent Long Island couple, were trapped 5 hours and 14 minutes in a parachute jump at the New York World's Fair. The parachutes drop on guide cables which keep them spread. It was against one of these cables that the 'chute in which they were riding jammed. The Rathbornes are in the middle 'chute, 125 feet above ground. At left and right, in other 'chutes are rescue workers

Building Falls During Fire Test

Instead of going up in flames, the Firestone Building, Third and Independence avenue southwest, went down in flames. Bureau of Standards experts and members of the Federal Fire Council, were testing carbon dioxide gas (CO_2) as an extinguisher when the building collapsed. Washington firemen were called into action with good ol' H_2O

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

"All Who Go Up, Must Come Down"

So said Mr. Rathborne and here he is with his wife, both smiling after their rescue. Rescuers cut the jammed cable and lowered the 'chute a few feet at a time. Thousands of spectators gathered around the jump in the amusement area and the Rathbornes grinned down and took their predicament cheerfully

Thinning Waistline Is Easier Task in Summer Months

SUMMER SLIMMING need not take all the fun out of living. It is so easy to keep the calories on the svelte side of streamlines in hot weather that you are foolish if you do not take this chance to reduce. By now, those of you who started with the majority of the summer reducers should have lost six-pounds—and in that case you need no urging to continue. The laggards are the ones I am after.

At close range, the reducing menus are not radically different from the ones you should have every day. Whether breakfast helps you to lose or to put on weight depends on the amount of cream, sugar, butter and jelly included.

Cream Fattening

The fruit, egg, toast and coffee are supposed to be standard in any good breakfast. Perhaps you would rather start the day with a small meal, just toast and coffee, with two pats of butter, jelly and a jug of cream for the coffee. That "small" breakfast is fattening. The cream and butter alone supply 300 calories.

Luncheon for the reducer can be appetizing without exceeding the low calorie limit. You are entitled to salad, a sandwich, fruit dessert, and a beverage. The use of too liberal quantities of butter and mayonnaise, however, will change this into a weight-gaining menu.

You really need not think of dinner as a diet . . . you can have broiled meat or a cold meat, two vegetables, a salad and a dessert. The bread should be restricted either to one slice or to one roll, and the butter to one pat, but I insist that is not a "diet" in the usual sense of the word.

Sea Food Dish Is Presented by NCA Economist

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor.

Favorite recipes of leading home economists of Washington are presented daily in this column.

SEA FOOD is important in the diet because of its rich supply of minerals and vitamins. Shrimp is a favorite sea food and over 5,000,000 pounds are produced annually. Miss Marjorie Black, guest food editor for today, has chosen shrimp for her favorite food. Miss Black is a home economist with the National Canners Association.

MISS BLACK

A native of Michigan, she was educated at the University of Michigan and Columbia University. For six years she was director of household science, and in charge of the Practice House, Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich. Miss Black has conducted cooking schools, developed countless recipes and written about food in California. She has been associated with the National Canners Association since 1935. The following is Miss Black's message to The Post food readers:

"I like casserole mixtures even in the summertime. The blend of flavors of various foods always interests me. My mixtures may not be twice alike, but the general idea may be the same. For instance, the recipe here for Casserole of Shrimp may appear just as it is given, or it may contain a combination of shrimp and crab, or shrimp and lobster, or peas may be used instead of corn.

Casserole of Shrimp

"Cook I package of thin noodles until tender in boiling salted water. Drain and place in a casserole. Arrange one 12-ounce can whole kernel corn, two 5¾-ounce cans of shrimp and one 8-ounce can sliced mushrooms over the noodles. Save the liquid from the mushrooms and shrimp to use in making the sauce. To make cheese sauce: Melt 6 tablespoons butter in frying pan, add 5 tablespoons flour and stir until smooth. Add the liquid from shrimp and mushrooms, 2 cups milk and cook until sauce is thick and smooth. Stir constantly. Add ½ pound strong American cheese, except for a portion to sprinkle over the top of the casserole. Season with salt and pepper and pour sauce over other ingredients. Mix gently. Sprinkle the cheese over top. Bake in moderately hot oven, (400 degrees), until heated through or about 30 minutes. Makes 10 to 12 servings."

For Vacation Fun

The Gentler Sex

—By Malvina Lindsay

Canine Mystery

How does it happen that those who rave loudest
Concerning the feminine sin of keeping a dog,
"When children are starving and needing attention,"
So seldom let orphans set THEM all agog?

A Successful Woman

At club parties she always manages to come home bearing the left-over cakes and cookies and the table decorations.

She is always on the front row at food show demonstrations when the sameple biscuits are being given out.

At parades she is invariably equipped with a small (but alas, secure) box which she mounts at the crucial moment to the disconcertment of those behind her.

She has never been known to await her turn in line at a cafeteria, bank or ticket window. She always explains to those ahead of her that she is "in an awful hurry, and won't be a minute, anyway."

She can walk out of a dress department of a store after having tried on ten dresses without feeling in the least sheepish or telling the clerk apologetically that she "may come back."

She can cross-examine a grocer over the telephone concerning his produce with the skill of a criminal attorney and she is never-short-changed or short-weighed by tradesmen of any kind.

She can occupy two seats in bus or street car without being in the least disconcerted by the strap-hangers who are glowering above her.

After a lecture or at a tea, she barges up and obtains possesion of the lecturer or lion of the hour keeping the line behind waiting . . . and waiting until she has said all that she has to say—about herself.

For some obscure reason she never has to wait in beauty shops, dentists', or doctors' offices. Less assertive patrons see her arrive while they are reading their third magazine and leave while they are still on their sixth.

She always serves as president or member of the board of her club. She has never been known to be a treasurer, a corresponding secretary or chairman of the ways and means committee.

She never talks on the telephone without knowing who is calling. She has never been known to leap from a bathtub or leave a table in response to a call. Friends who call at the wrong moment are told she is dining, resting or relaxing and requested to call later.

She never furnishes the sandwiches or the potato salad for the club picnic but invariably contributes the bananas.

She never carries a parcel, no matter how small. Even a spool of thread is delivered, and if a lace jabot is to be returned, the store must call for it.

When out-of-town visitors call up she does not say, "Come on out," but rather volunteers—especially if there are any men in the party—that she will come downtown and meet them for lunch.

She has no trouble hailing taxis on rainy days. She simply steps into the one someone else had signaled and rides grandly away.

She never has any shabby clothes or run-down furniture. She makes it clear to her family and associates that she "loves nice things" and simply has to be surrounded by them.

The term "good sport" is not in her vocabulary, but why should she mind? She is successful in everything in life—that is in everything but holding the affection and admiration of those she calls "friends."

Today's Social Note

(From the Truthtown Torch)

Mrs. J. Parmalee Bigton gave a garden party yesterday in the small marshy inclosure back of her house in Adamtown. The event was attended by most of the town's notables, also a large number of flies, bumble bees, hornets, wasps, mosquitoes, ants, chiggers, etc., who made it very uncomfortable for feminine guests who had been so shortsighted as to come in short-skirted and sleeveless frocks.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Should Woman Marry, When Step Means Depriving Newlywed Son of Her Financial Aid?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a woman 44 years old, and have been married and divorced. I have a grown son who has just recently married. He and his bride are living with me. His father and I were separated when he was very young. For two years I have been going with a man five years my junior. He is very eager to marry me, but during that time, he has not had steady work—only odd jobs now and then. And he is supposed, when he can can, to contribute to the support of his aged parents.

On the other hand, I have a very good job and will draw retirement pay in not so many years. I have a home paid for; also a car. I am wondering if it would be fair to marry this man, and thus deny my son the use of these things, which he uses as his own. Or should I find my contentment in making him happy? He and his wife both work, but for very small salaries, and this way it is possible for me to help them get a start. I try to make up to him for the father he never had, as he doesn't remember his father.

I find it hard to choose between working for my son's happiness or for the happiness of this other man. I sometimes wonder if I am in love with him, or if the feeling I have is just love-starvation, which will pass as I grow older. Does a woman of my age fall in love? Or is it simply a case of grabbing at a last chance for romance? And is mother love the better and longer-lasting emotion? Please give me your opinions. UNDECIDED.

The Right to Marry

DEAR UNDECIDED: The immeasurable satisfaction which an emotionally well balanced woman may derive from healthfully expressed mother love can never fully compensate her for deliberate or fortuitous denial of the consolations of mate love. In a glossary of brilliantly original definitions of coined phrases appended to his latest book, "Seeing Ourselves as Others See Us," David Seabury vigorously emphasizes this psychological truism—which applies equally to either sex, and also to married couples who may incline to neglect each other for their children.

Thus, it appears that, as a mature yet comparatively youthful woman, you would be justified—indeed, you would be wise—in planning a really companionable second marriage, even though such a marriage would mean pushing your son out of the nest to rely primarily upon his own resources.

Just as you have not asked or expected him to forfeit married companionship in repayment for maternal devotion, neither should he—or you, or any other—suppose that you must forfeit acceptable opportunity promising similar companionship, merely to keep yourself free to serve his interests only. Rather, it seems far more reasonable to suppose that what you did lone-handed for yourself and him, through the years of his childhood and adolescence, he—as an adult—can do now for himself, with the aid of his wife.

Granted, then, that you have the right to marry, even at the expense of present—and perhaps lasting—creature discomfort to your son and his wife; and that in a well-advised marriage you would share dividends of mature happiness that could never be yours as a benevolent accessory to your son's life—still, a question all-important to your happiness remains unanswered. This question has to do with the character and integrity of your present suitor.

I have a hunch that he is looking to you more for guaranteed support than for the intangible matrimonial emoluments of thoroughgoing comradeship; of sincerely shared mental, spiritual and physical love. I imagine he looks upon you as a combined "easy mark" and financial "sure thing." Because his interest in you is more shrewdly self-seeking than otherwise, I daresay you have sensed that fact; so that in very intuitive distrust of his fundamental objectives, you are unable to love him wholeheartedly.

Persons in their forties, fifties and sixties may love as profoundly as any in their thirties, twenties or teens. Indeed, they may bring to marriage even greater psychic potentialities for happiness given and received. So your failure to love this man as you might wish to do cannot be attributed to declining vigor. However, it is entirely possible, as you suggest, that your response to his suit has been due in large measure to love-starvation. And for that very reason, you should be doubly on guard against making a mistake.

Frankly, I believe that you are, in this instance, "grabbing at a (supposedly) last chance for romance." Grabbing as a drowning man grabs at a straw. And I venture to think that this man, if you married him, might betray your hopes-of-happiness as completely as the aforesaid straw would betray the hopes-of-salvation of the drowning man. M. H.

A Woman's New York

Sense of Warmth and Kindliness Found West of Hudson, Says Columnist's Hubby

Aboard Santa Fe Chief, July 12.

ALICE HUGHES

Once a person crosses the Hudson River and enters the United States of America again, there is a sense of freedom, warmth and kindliness. No kidding—if there is anything in our Nation worth living or dying for, it will not be found on the splinter of rock called Manhattan Island. That is alien soil.

But enough nostalgic dithyramb. Let me tell you about this Miss Hughes, whose name appears above these pieces. She has been around the world a couple of times on box-kites, and you'd think she'd have some savvy as a traveler. But has she? We started for a brief Hollywood junket, and I found she had seven pieces of hand baggage, or twice as much as is needed to cross the Gobi Desert. Due to my army and newspaper training, I had one bag, containing my other shirt. She has enough junk for three presentations at Buckingham Palace.

And what happens in dear old Chicago, between trains? The minute my back is turned to buy a cigar or a mug of ale, she has ordered a case of soda pop to be carried aboard one of the crack trains to the West Coast. It was too late to interfere. I only wondered that she hadn't bought a feather bed, too. And you girls think you have a tough life! You should travel with a Miss Hughes, of Murray Hill!

BIRD ABOUT THE NATION—Can you tell me why it is that the moment unescorted ladies leave New York on a fleet rattler they go a bit super-gay? They do—they begin to nibble at saucers of tonics they shun at home and cast complacent eyes on total strangers. It must be the motion of the ship or the southern cross or something. But I leave the final answer to science.

Another nudge for science: Is it reasonable that women, even such ancient globe-trotters as Miss Hughes, cannot realize that two sections of a train are not one and the same? Don't answer, but think it over.

One of our traveling companions is a lovely stick of dynamite named Stella Unger, famed as a song writer, a radio orator, and wife and mother. This is her first trip in 16 years without her mother or husband. I think she likes it.

Happy note for the Nation: The transcontinental trains are packed these days. People come and go madly. I have a dandy spot in a smoking room for tonight's shut-eye . . . Babies on trains are either world horrors or else the sweetest things on earth. We were lucky out of New York—we drew the latter,a darling little girl who won the train's prize grump.

Improve Your Pronunciations

GENTLEMAN'S clothes, but "shack town" speech—that's Jack! He sends chills up the spine with his "It's GenuWINE luck meetin' you here at the theeAYter."

What a different impression he'd make if he'd correctly say "JENUin" for "genuine," pronounce the "g" in meeting," say "THEEater" for theater.

Really a shame to let poor pronunciation put a barrier between you and the people you're eager to know. Clever to check up with lists of commonly mispronounced words, speak as carefully as you dress.

You have confidence, then, discussing music or the play with cultured people. You know that the preferred pronunciation of aria is AHria, not AIRia, that vaudeville is VODvil, not VAWdivil, that drama is not DRAMma but DRAHma.

Send 15c in coins or our booklet "Words Most Often Mispronounced," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

President Among 20,000 Music Lovers Attending Season's First Sunset Symphony

Mr. Roosevelt, Accompanied by the Watsons, Drives Up After Concert Begins; Weather in Generous Mood

By Carolyn Bell.

For the first time in its rather hectic career the Sunset Symphony group played to the President of the United States.

As the concert got under way, with Hans Kindler directing, the Presidential car drove quietly up to the watergate and Mr. Roosevelt, accompanied by Gen. and Mrs. Edwin Watson, remained throughout the performance. Mrs. Watson, known professionally as Frances Nash, is quite musical, having gained fame as a concert pianist.

Some 20,000 people, having decided the weatherman was going to keep his promise, filled the watergate, Memorial Bridge and even the Lincoln Memorial. Crowds had begun to gather at the Potomac at 6:30 o'clock in the evening—early birds catching good seats. There was the usual quota of newspapers, pillows and ice cream vendors.

It was a perfect evening, with a vagrant breeze fluttering the flags on either side of the acoustical shell moored in its usual place where members of the National Symphony Orchestra performed. Scores of canoes—some with gayly colored lanterns attached—paddled up to the barge. A few motor launches dropped anchor at a discreet distance and their green and red lights were reflected in the water.

The President's car drove up just as the symphony was completing a number and there was a burst of applause. During the intermission—while the crowd was clamoring for him—Dr. Kindler dashed up the steps to greet the President.

Polish Diplomat And Wife Attend

With a cape thrown over her shoulders, for the night was cool, Mme. Wankowicz was accompanying her husband, the Charge d'Affaires of Poland, who has recently returned from a trip to his homeland. The Attorney General, Frank L. Murphy, Gen. G. C. Marshall, acting chief of staff of the Army, and Senator William H. King were among the audience.

Although the concerts are tremendously popular—as shown by the record turnout—officials have had a hard time maintaining them. The Sunset Symphony was instituted in 1935, discontinued in 1936 and 1937, and reinstituted last year. However, if the record attendance of last night continues there would seem to be no reason why the concerts should not continue. An added attraction this season will be a special performance of the opera "Madame Butterfly" to be given with Metropolitan Opera stars on August 2.

But to return to last night's performance: A number of social lights in town had decided in favor of the concert. Representative Caroline O'Day was among the throng. She was wearing a chic black-and-white twin print, a chiffon coat over a crepe frock. Banding her black sailor was a wreath of valley lilies and she completed the costume with white gloves. Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins had forsaken her usual black or white costume for fire-engine red. It was a dinner gown with gold in a scroll design on the bodice.

Kurt Hetzels Are Among the Crowd

Gen. and Mrs. Samuel T. Ansell were accompanied by their son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Ansell, jr. Mrs. Ansell is the former Annabelle Essary. Not far away was her mother Mrs. J. Fred Essary accompanied by another daughter, Peggy. Peggy's trim outfit was of cherry red and white print while Mrs. Essary topped a white silk frock with a red hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Kurtz Hetzel were there as were Fleming Newbold, Dean Elmer Kayser, Floyd B. Akers, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, Brian Bell, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Representative William D. Byron, Arno B. Cammerer, Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, Thomas L. Eagan, Mr. and Mrs. C. Marshall Finnan, Ross Haworth, William K. Hutchinson, Mrs. Eva Whitford Lovette, Representative Joseph McArdle and Frank Russell.

Dr. Kindler had chosen for the opening of last night's program Toccata by Frescobaldi. He continued with Brahms' First Symphony in C Minor; Handel's Largo; Ballet Music by Schubert; Schoenherr's Perpetuum Mobile; Sibelius' Valse Triste and the polka and fuge from Schwanda by Weinberger.

Lisle A. Smith Host at Dinner At Country Club

Lisle A. Smith of Washington and Virginia entertained at dinner last evening at the Washington Golf and Country Club. A flower centerpiece and hand-painted place cards featuring small figures in pink hunting coats were features of the table decorations.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Howrey, Mr. and Mrs. Onan Hydrick, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Richardson, Mrs. Neitah King, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Lennig Sweet, Col. and Mrs. A. P. Shirley, Mr. and Mrs. Milton K. Lockwood, Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Montfort, Mrs. Anna Wickes, and Carroll Hunter.

Mrs. Russell Bennett, Daughter Go North

Mrs. Russell Bennett and her daughter, Miss Florence Harris, will leave this week-end for the North by motor. They will go first to Cape Cod, where Mrs. Bennett will spend a month with Col. and Mrs. Joseph Cecil, of Washington, at their place in Falmouth.

Miss Harris will continue North to spend several weeks with Mrs. Henry C. Rowland and Miss Diana Rowland at their summer home on Witch Island.

To Leave in August

Mrs. George T. Summerlin, jr., will leave the first of August for a vacation of several weeks in New York and Cooperstown, N. Y. Her daughter, Miss Virginia Summerlin, is at camp near Cooperstown. Mrs. Summerlin plans to move shortly into her new home on Massachusetts avenue, which she recently bought.

Three More Added To List of Brides-Elect

Hessler Studio.

Miss Geraldine Gibbens (left, above) is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Gibbens, of Jamestown, N. Dak., who announce her engagement to E. Maine Shafer, of Washington, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Shafer, of Duluth, Minn. Miss Alice Pittman Manning (center) will become the bride of Milton Lyman Henry in September. Another who will walk down the aisle in September is Miss Jean Chaplain Preston, whose betrothal to Warren Browning is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Bessey, of Chevy Chase, Md.

French Attaches Greet Cruisers

Lieut. Col. Emmanuel Lombard, Military Attache of the French Embassy, and Commander Pierre Benech, Naval Attache, are staying at the Ritz-Carlton, in New York, while there to welcome the three French cruisers which are paying a visit to Manhattan.

Commander Benech gave a dinner on Tuesday at the Ritz in honor of Rear Admiral Rene Emile Godfroy, commander of the cruisers; Rear Admiral Andrew C. Pickens, and Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward. Commander Benech will remain in New York for two weeks.

Also staying at the Ritz is George Duca, retiring Secretary of the Rumanian Legation, who will sail tomorrow on the Vulcania for a vacation in Africa before going to Bucharest. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Woodward, of Washington, also are stopping at the Ritz.

2 Sail Saturday For Bermuda

Miss Ann Moorhead and Miss Ann Sterrett will sail Saturday on the Acadia for Bermuda, where they will be guests of Mrs. Richard Oulahan, of Washington, at the home of the latter's sister. They will not return to the Capital until September.

Mrs. Howell Moorhead, mother of Miss Moorehead, will sail August 5 to join her daughter and Mrs. Oulahan.

Mrs. Worthington To Visit Daughter

Mrs. Ralph Worthington will leave shortly for Omaha, Nebr., for a visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Coad. Mrs. Coad is the former Ethel Worthington.

Mr. and Mrs. Coad will come to the Capital next autumn for a stay. Their marriage took place here last October.

3 More Engagements Added To August, September List

Jean Preston to Be Bride of Mr. Browning; Alice Manning, Milton Henry to Wed; Miss Gibbens, E. M. Shafer Will Marry

Although June usually is regarded as the month of weddings, it looks as if August and September will pile up some sort of a nuptial record this year, when more and more brides-elect are setting their wedding dates for then.

Three young ladies go on the list today as announcements are made of their engagements. One will be wed next month; the other two have chosen September ceremonies.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Bessey, of Chevy Chase, Md., have announced the engagement of the latter's daughter, Miss Jean Chaplain Preston, to Warren Browning, son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Browning, of Maryland and this city.

Miss Preston attended the University of North Carolina and George Washington University. Her fiance took undergraduate work at Georgetown College and the University of Edinburgh, and was graduated from Georgetown University Law School. The wedding will take place in September.

Also planing a September wedding is Miss Alice Pittman Manning whose engagement to Milton Lyman Henry is made known today by her mother, Mrs. George H. Manning. The bride-elect, who is a sister of George H. Manning, of the Washington Bureau of Editor and Publisher, is a graduate of Central High School and is now employed by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Mr. Henry, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Henry, finished at Eastern High School and the Columbia Technical Institute and is now employed by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Gibbens of Jamestown, N. D., have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Geraldine, to E. Maine Shafer, of Washington, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Shafer of Duluth, Minn.

Miss Gibbens is a graduate of the University of North Dakota and is a member of Pi Beta Phi. Mr. Shafer attended North Dakota State College and the University of North Dakota. He is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity. The wedding will take place here August 12.

Arthur Keiths Go To Mt. Crotched, N. H.

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Keith have closed their home on Twentieth street for the summer and are opening their house on Mount Crotched, N. H., for several weeks.

Later, they expect to make a trip to the Gaspe Peninsula before returning to Washington.

C. V. McLaughlins Return to Capital

Charles V. McLaughlin, Assistant Secretary of Labor, and Mrs. McLaughlin have just returned from Geneva, where Mr. McLaughlin was the Government representative at the International Labor Office conference, June 8 to 23.

Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin traveled in England, Scotland, Ireland, France and Italy. They will leave Washington again about August 1, for the West Coast. After traveling there extensively, they will go to Great Falls, Mont., where Mr. McLaughlin will make a Labor Day speech.

Dorseys Issue Invitations for 'At Home' Saturday

Invitations have been issued for an "at home" Saturday afternoon by Rear Admiral and Mrs. Benjamin H. Dorsey, the admiral's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Sertell, and Miss Achsah Dorsey, the debutante daughter of Admiral and Mrs. Dorsey.

The event will take place at Richland, the Dorsey's country estate near Ellicott City, Md. Admiral and Mrs. Dorsey have closed their home on Hawthorne street and are spending the summer at Richland. Miss Dorsey will be presented to society next season, and although the party Saturday is not her formal debut, she will be one of the hostesses.

Welles Host To Dr. Noel

Entertaining unofficially, Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles feted Dr. Carlos Noel, chairman of foreign relations committee of the Argentine House of Representatives, at a luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel.

The ranking guest was the Argentine Ambassador, Don Felipe Espil, who entertained for his distinguished countryman at a dinner party Tuesday evening.

The remaining guests were Secretary of Treasury Henry A. Morgenthau, jr., Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Representative Sol Bloom, Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre, J. Fred Essary and Raymond Clapper.

Mrs. C. Brooks Fry Returns to D. C. From Coast Home

Mrs. C. Brooks Fry, of Washington and Pasadena, has arrived from her California home to spend two months at her home on Ingomar street in Chevy Chase.

Mrs. Fry, who with her family, lived many years in Washington and has many friends here, is assistant to Dr. Paul Popenoe, director of the Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles. She is also a noted lecturer.

With her son, Brooks Fry, jr., and Mrs. Donald E. Ross, who accompanied her on this trip, Mrs. Fry will return to the West in the fall.

Stapletons Take Rehoboth Cottage

Mrs. Daniel C. Stapleton and her daughter, Miss Stellita Stapleton, who usually spend their summers abroad, have taken a cottage at Rehoboth Beach for the warm months. The latter's aunt, Mrs. Mae Hamilton, is with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Exnicios, of this city, have taken possession of their cottage there. Marquis James, the writer, also is summering at Rehoboth.

Popular F Street Club May Close Its Doors

Mrs. John Gross Finding Absentee Responsibility for Operating Social Institution Too Wearing, Say Friends

By Dudley Harmon

Gossip, which flourishes here even in the dog days, says there's more than a possibility that the 1925 F Street Club, which is as much a landmark for Capital society as is the Washington Monument for tourists, may be closed next year. Come autumn, say persistent rumors, this famous meeting place for politicos, diplomats, smart and would-be smart residents, may be no more.

Mrs. John Gross, who, when she was Mrs. James F. Curtis started the club in the handsome yellow brick residence which was formerly her home, has spent most of her time in Bethlehem, Pa., since her marriage last summer to a steel company official. Some of her friends here say that she is finding absentee responsibility for the club a bit wearing. Then, too, difficulties with the local liquor laws may have something to do with the matter. Club authorities ran into a terrific snag last spring, when a large subscription dance organized by Miss Eleanor Meem and "Jock" Merriam had to be canceled at the last minute because they were informed that liquor could not be served there after midnight without a special license. The proceedings to acquire such a license, we hear, will take a long, long time.

Considered as Nightclub Locale

Miss Evalyn McLean and her business partner, John Galliher, toyed with the idea of using the 1925 F Street Club, if it should suspend operations, as the setting for their new night club. They also considered the Walsh mansion on Massachusetts avenue, which was offered to them by Mrs. McLaan, but since this huge rococco house costs $400 a month just to heat, the idea of occupying it was as quickly abandoned.

The partners now have their eyes on another site, and are conducting frequent long-distance telephone conversations between Bar Harbor, where Miss McLean is summering, and Washington, where Mr. Galliher toils in his fathers' lumber business. He and Miss McLean will employ an experienced manager for their club, as Mr. Galliher doesn't wish to make it his full-time career, believing lumber a bit more stable. The pair will hire an orchestra from New York, and are being urged by their friends to keep amateur singers away. They are running into a greater welter of detail and considerable more expense in organizing their club than they first thought, but hope to have everything ready for a grand opening the end of October.

The passing of the 1925 F street haunt, if it takes place, would be good for local night club business. Washington society likes best to entertain at home, but the Curtis Club has always been the next thing to it. After it became a club, Mrs. Gross insisted that it be run exactly as when she lived there. Her own handsome furniture is in the living room and library; fires burn cheerily on the hearths in the winter and at all times the rooms are filled with fresh flowers. The silver boxes on the highly polished tables are kept supplied with cigarettes for the members. In the days when Mrs. Gross was a leading Capital hostess, she was famous for the quality of the food she served, and later continued this tradition at the club. After eating one of the delicious and abundant meals, the members frequently asked themselves "How can she possibly be making any money off us?"

Tree-Shaded Garden Is Popular Spot

Mrs. Gross was persuaded by friends to turn her home into a club during the depression, when she decided she couldn't afford it any longer. "We've had such good times here," lamented the friends, "that it will be too horrible if you auction off your house." Started in the early days of the New Deal, the club quickly became a center for smart functions, and during the first two or three winters of its existence was the scene of a party nearly every night. Lately it has been used somewhat less for entertaining though the majority of small dances and debut teas during the past winter were held at the club. People who've eaten in the best places all over the world maintain that there is no pleasanter place to dine in spring or summer than the large, tree-shaded garden inclosed with a high brick wall.

Since Mrs. Gross remarried and went to Bethlehem to live, management has been largely in the hands of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Wallach Merriam, and able Miss Mary Cumming, who formerly worked in Mrs. Curtis' home and whose face is well known to every club member.

Mrs. James To Take Rest

Mrs. Ida Elaine James, of 6800 Meadow lane, Chevy Chase, whose latest book of verse, "The Deathless Flower," is being widely read, will leave Sunday for Pocono Haven in the Pocono Mountains to rest two weeks. Her husband, Albert James, attorney with offices in Washington, is now in San Francisco, where he recently spoke before the American Bar Association.

Mrs. Gene James Osgood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James, who spent the past two weeks with her parents after attending the convention of the American Association of Social Students, of which she is vice president, will go to Chicago soon, where she will continue her study toward a master's degree at Chicago University. She finished a pre-medical course last June.

While at the Pocono Mountain resort, Mrs. James hopes to find some time to work on her poetry. Her book, which has received favorable reviews by a number of critics, was recently praised in the Boston Evening Transcript. In addition to "The Deathless Flower," Mrs. James has had 80 poems published in the last 12 months.

Several of Mrs. James' poems have been set to music, but the one receiving most attention lately is "Tipsy With the Moon," which has been frequently heard over the radio and at concerts. It was broadcast a number of times from New York last month and was presented in concerts featuring such singers as Elmo Russ, Sara Lee, Roual Carreere, Alfred Chigi, Roland Fiore and Manuel Barumis.

It is a special favorite with Elmo Russ, who has included several of Mrs. James' songs on his programs. Latest word from Mr. Russ is to the effect that records are being made of the selection and it soon will be presented at the World's Fair.

2 D. C. Women Summer in Maine

Mrs. Thomas L. Casey and Mrs. Charles duF. Fowler have closed their apartments at the Shoreham for the summer to spend several months away from Washington. They left last evening for Boston, where they will spend a few days and then leave for Kennebunkport, Me., where they will live at the Old Fort Inn until after Labor Day.

Mrs. Casey and Mrs. Fowler will then go to the mountains at Whitefield, N. H., and will stay at the Mountain View Hotel until the first of October, when they will return to Washington.

Chicagoan Visiting Greek Minister

Mr. and Mrs. Constantine N. Johnson, of Chicago, are at the Shoreham during a visit in Washington with the Greek Minister, Demetrios Sicilianos, and the Minister Counselor and Mme. George S. Depasta.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson became very close friends with M. and Mme. Depasta when M. Depasta was Greek consul in Chicago.

Parmelees Attending School in Michigan

Rexford Parmelee, of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and Mrs. Parmelee are spending ten days at Louhelen Ranch, Davison, Mich., where they are enrolled at the Baha'i summer school.

Mr. and Mrs. Parmelee will visit the latter's parents, Prof. and Mrs. Ellery B. Paine, of Urbana, Ill., before returning to Washington.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Harold L. Ickes have closed their home in Olney, Md., and are at Bar Harbor, Me., for the remainder of the month.

Patrick J. Hurley, former Secretary of War, is at the Waldorf Astoria in New York.

Mrs. J. Harry Covington of Washington is at the Plaza Hotel in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith, their son, Arthur C. Smith, jr., and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lathrom, have left by motor to visit the New York World's Fair.

The Misses Marie and Tillie Steiner have returned to Cathedral Mansions after a vacation in New York, Atlantic Beach, and Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. Horner Kuper, of 2908 Albemarle street, have as their guests Dr. and Mrs. Geza Kovesi, of Budapest, Hungary, who arrived on Monday on the Normandie. Mrs. Kuper's aunt, Mrs. Eugene Pick, also of Budapest, is stopping at the Broadmoor.

Mrs. Thomas Miner, of 712 Webster street, who with her husband will leave shortly to reside in Kansas City, was honored at a farewell luncheon given on Tuesday at Brook Tea House by a group of her friends. There were 26 present, and she was presented with a silver bowl.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rich are vacationing in California.

Mrs. Maurice Kafka and her daughter, Miss Barbara Jean Kafka, are spending two weeks in New York.

Dr. Mildred W. Dickerson left yesterday for Milwaukee to attend the annual meetings of the American Academy of Peridontology and the American Dental Association. She will continue on to the West Coast and will return about August 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Dulcan, of Washington, are at the Madison Hotel in New York.

Mrs. Louis Garfield; her son, Morris, and Mrs. Clarence Grosner are at the Waldorf Astoria in New York for several days.

Garden Section Meets When Flowers Bloom

Takoma Park Woman's Club Adjourns in October Just When Other Groups Are Getting Under Way for Winter

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

The Garden Section, largest in the Takoma Park Women's Club, is the only one having its meetings during the summer—and also is unique in the fact it adjourns in October, just when the others begin their season. It has operated successfully ever since the club began as a summer section, proceeding on the theory that the time for a garden section to meet is when gardens are in bloom.

Most of the members are real "dirt farmers." They dig in their own flower beds, exchange suggestions as to how to plan and transplant and what to do about bugs and beetles.

"Takoma Park's gardens make it a show place in the spring," said Mrs. Daniel Miller, the section chairman, "and many of the finest gardens out here are those of the section members."

Her own, on Takoma avenue, happens to be among the most attractive in the community. In the spring it blooms in a profusion of roses, iris and peonies and now the later flowers are coming, including bright zinnias, galardias and cosmos.

Mrs. Henry Ewing, on Willow avenue, is another whose garden is a show place. Among others whose places are exceptionally beautiful are Mrs. John Quinn, of Elm avenue, and Mrs. Ivan Richmond, of Flower avenue. Mrs. Richmond has many perennials and takes particular interest in developing new specimens.

The section, which meets monthly from March to October, has its sessions on the third Monday of each month at 9:30 in the morning. Each season the group visits the garden of Dr. and Mrs. Whitman Cross. Meetings are held at the homes of members and, in addition to visiting special gardens, they always inspect each other's.

Although the garden section does not meet during the winter, its members take the responsibility for supplying flowers for the monthly luncheons of the club and also for the annual spring luncheon. To raise money for this activity, a sale of perennials is held at the end of the summer, to which each member contributes at least one plant she has grown. No flower shows are held but the women enter their exhibits in the shows of the Takoma Park Horticultural Club, to which many of them also belong.

Mrs. Ella S. Knight Back in City After Visiting Florida and Mountains

MRS ELLA S. KNIGHT has returned to Washington after spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. F. G. Aulsbrook, in St. Petersburg, Fla., and the last three weeks at Blowing Rock, N. C., where she and Mrs. Aulsbrook stopped on their way here by motor.

Mrs. Knight, who divides her time between Mrs. Aulsbrook's home in Forida and the home of her other daughter, Mrs. Richard E. Gasch of this city, had planned to come back by plane in the early summer, in time to attend the annual breakfast of the Sunshine and Community Society. As the society's founder, she was to have been guest of honor and all the members were looking forward to her being here. However, an accident interfered—and not an airplane accident either. Going down the steps of her daughter's home, on the way to the airport, she slipped and fell, breaking a collar bone and postponing the trip.

She has recovered and is glad to be home again for the season.

ALTHOUGH the Soroptimist Club has suspended its formal meetings during July and August, its members gather informally on Wednesdays at the Willard Coffee Shop for luncheon. They exchange news of those who are away on vacations and each week welcome one or two back from interesting trips.

Yesterday, Betty Jones had much to tell of her tour abroad in Russia and the central European countries. Daisy Reed, a former president of the club, has just returned from St. Louis and Ella C. Werner, also a former president, is home from Detroit, where, among other things, she attended a meeting of the Detroit Soroptimist Club.

Mary Lewis is at her summer home at The Glen, N. Y., and Mrs. Caroline Stephens at hers in Blue Ridge Summitt, Pa.

Those who were still here to talk about vacations at yesterday's meeting were the president, Mrs. Jean Bennett, who, as always, is busy conducting the work of Central Union Mission; Elva McNamara, Rena Pond, Ann Kinslow, Celia Stach, Claudia Brown, Lorraine Good and Emily Shah.

MRS. EDWARD EVERETT GANN, president of the League of Republican Women, and a descendent of Pawhuska, the famous Osage Indian Chief, and White Plume, one of the leading chiefs of the Kaws, will attend the Alaska-Indian entertainment to be given tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock by the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs, at the Headquarters of the General Federation, 1734 N street.

Another interesting guest will be Ataloa, a one quarter Chickasaw-Choctaw, who is a gifted musician and teacher, and whose Indian programs are familiar to many club women. After securing her Master's degree from Columbia, she became a member of the faculty of Bacone College in Oklahoma, the only college for Indians in the United States.

Mrs. Edgar B. Meritt, chairman of the Golden Jubilee of the General Federation, for the District of Columbia, will preside.

Mrs. Meritt was adopted into the Crow tribe, when her husband was Assistant Indian Commissioner, and was named "She Kill's in Front of the Tepee." She was assured by Chief Plenty Cous, who conducted the ceremony, that the name he gave her, gruesome as it sounds to the pale face, is one of honor and indicative of great courage among the Indians.

Women of Moose Here to Fete Grand Register

Miss Alice Farris, grand register of the National Mooseheart Alumni Association, will be guest of honor tomorrow night at the regular meeting of Columbia Chapter, Women of the Moose. Miss Farris has just returned from Mooseheart, where she participated in the international conference of the Women of the Moose.

The principal objective of the National Alumni Association is to help graduates of Mooseheart when they leave the home and school to begin their careers, a time when they are often in need of guidance and financial aid. They are also assisted in continuing their education in college and universities through small loans, if they desire. This financial aid is made available through a revolving fund maintained by the association which stands in the place of their families to these orphans who have been educated by the Moose Fraternity.

Miss Farris and John Meikle, who is associated with her in the association work, are themselves graduates of Mooseheart, and therefore acquainted with the problems faced by the young people leaving there.

Zonta Club Pays Birthday Tribute to Its Members

Mrs. Salisbury, Founder, and President Of Group, Miss Sigman, Are Honor Guests In Program Presented at Y. W. C. A.

A luncheon party for all members who have had birthdays in the last six months, was given yesterday by the Zonta Club, meeting in the Y. W. C. A. Among the honored guests were the club's founder, Mrs. Edith Salisbury, and the president, Miss Mary Wright Sigman.

Mrs. Louise R. Stambaugh, who was chairman of the affair, wrote the words for a birthday song given by a quartet of Zontians, in tribute to the members celebrating. Singers were Mrs. Stambaugh, Mrs. Nan Street, Miss Alice Terrell and Mrs. Ethel Hess. Mrs. Emily Dickinson was accompanist.

The program included a talk by Dr. Lida Earhart, who is a former president of the club, but who is not now a member. Mrs. Marion Hines Taylor, first vice president, who presided, welcomed Miss Ruth Atwater, director of home economics for the National Canners Association, as a new member, and Mrs. Alma Barnes, as a guest.

Small corsages and gifts were provided for each of the "birthday children" and a little cake with a lighted candle in the center, was at each place.

Those whose birthdays were celebrated included: Miss Sigman, Dr. Edith Seville Coale, Mrs. Avery Coonley, and honorary member: Dr. Eloise Cram, Miss Mary Ellen Dashiell, Dr. Mildred W. Dickerson, Mrs. Alice Fay, Miss Emma T. Hahn, Mrs. Ann Harding, Mrs. Harriet R. Howe, Miss Caroline A. Longfellow, Dr. Frances P. Marshall, Mrs. Marguerite E. Morris, Mrs. Salisbury, Mrs. Frances Gutelius Smith, Mrs. Stambaugh, Mrs. Margaret Stewart, Miss Mabel F. Strider.

Cornell Clubs To Raise Fund

Outstanding, but financially handicapped girls applying for admission to Cornell University will receive assistance from a scholarship endowment fund which will be the chief project of the Federation of Cornell Clubs during the next four years. The Washington alumnae, headed by Mrs. Francis Brotherhood, newly elected president, will contribute its share.

Announcement was made at the annual alumnae reunion in June that the initial goal, $10,000 of the $100,000 fund, had been raised in the first six months following the launching of the campaign. Interest from this will pay the full tuition of one girl each year.

Personal letters have been sent to all of the 11,000 Cornell women over the country, presenting the opportunity to contribute to the fund as a chance to invest in "the brains and character of able and promising girls—potential leaders—who would otherwise be unable to continue their educations."

Pledges for the $100,000 foundation fund are being taken up to June, 1943. Mrs. H. H. Shreve, of Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y., is chairman of the endowment fund committee and spoke here on the project at a luncheon of the Washington Cornell Club at the A. A. U. W. clubhouse in April.

There are several hundred alumnae of the university residing in and near Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Westwood Honored at Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Carter Westwood, of 2501 Ridge road drive, who are spending some time at Lake George, N. Y., were guests of honor at a dinner given Monday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Tuttle at Top o' the World Lodge. Mrs. Westwood is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tuttle, and the event marked her fifth wedding anniversary.

Guests included Miss Dorothy Teitsworth, Mrs. Mabel Gledhill, Mrs. Dorothy Hall, Ernest Link, Marvin Walker, H. Croswell Tuttle, and Emerson Quin, all of New York.

Women Work to Aid Families, Say Leader

Kansas City, July 12 (AP).—Employed women are "working to get into the home, not out of it," the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs heard tonight.

Dr. Viva Boothe, acting director of the Bureau of Business Research at Ohio State University, told delegates the greater number of women with jobs were compelled by economic conditions to work to help support their families.

Discussing the women's "Program in Action," Dr. Boothe said the modern world "has solved the problem of production. The specter of scarcity no longer looms. But we are only beginning to realize we have a problem of distribution."

Board Names Holmes toHead Senior Highs

Will Transfer From Junior Schools to Succeed Dr. Gosling

The selection of Dr. Chester W. Holmes, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of junior high and vocational schools, to succeed Dr. Thomas W. Gosling as assistant superintendent in charge of senior high schools was approved yesterday by a poll of the Board of Education.

HOLMES

Dr. Holmes' position will be filled by Lawson J. Cantrell, principal of Paul Junior High School. Dr. Holmes will take up his new duties on August 7, when the resignation of Dr. Gosling, announced July 1, becomes effective.

Dr. Holmes came to the District in 1928 as principal of Langley Juhior High School, and in 1935 was made principal of the first junior-senior high school here, in Anacostia. He was appointed to his present position in 1936. A graduate of Harvard University, he was for six years special education agent of the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission of Pittsburgh, and for two years taught English and history in the Rindge Technical High School, of Cambridge, Mass.

CANTRELL

Dr. Holmes thinks his new position, which includes supervision of Wilson Teachers College, will be "extremely interesting," but he plans no revolutionary changes.

Cantrell has been principal of Paul Junior High School since its foundation in 1930, and was cited by Dr. Frank W. Ballou in polling the board as having "to an unusual degree won the confidence and respect of his community." He has been urged frequently as principal of the new Calvin Coolidge Senior High School.

Benes and Wife Escape Nazis in Czecho-Slovakia

New York, July 12 (AP).—The story of a flight from a home that had become a Nazi prison was told Tuesday by Vojta Benes, brother of Dr. Eduard Benes, last President of Czecho-Slovakia.

Benes, 62, arrived from England with his wife on the liner Veendam, without luggage or spare linen, all their possessions having been left behind.

They left the United States early this year, returning to Czecho-Slovakia, where their large home was taken away and they were assigned to a small cottage, under heavy guard.

On the night of June 11, he recounted, they eluded the guards, fought their way through marsh land and undergrowth, across a lake on a raft and through unfamiliar forests. hTey finally made their way to the Polish border, where they found a freight car on a deserted siding. Czech guards helped them enter the car and gave them food. The car was sealed, coupled to a train, rolled into Poland and there dropped off in a freight yard. The Beneses hammered on the door until they were released.

Glenn Dale Nurses Oppose Hiring Colored

Nurses at the Glenn Dale Sanatorium for tuberculosis patients revealed yesterday they had protested to Dr. George C. Ruhland, D. C. health officer, against a proposal to place 16 colored nurses on the institution's staff.

Members of a special committee representing the 66 nurses at Glenn Dale said they did not think the plan was workable either from their own standpoint or that of the colored nurses.

It was pointed out that suitable quarters would not be available for the colored nurses. The proposal also was opposed on the ground it would entail the transfer of 11 members of the present nursing staff to Gallinger Hospital.

If carried out, the proposal would establish a precedent, since colored nurses are not at present employed on the nursing staffs of any municipal institutions housing white patients.

the income tax proposed by the House, to the House's elimination of the business privilege tax and the tax on intangible personal property.

"Furthermore, the Senate agreed to eliminate the Federal payment formula based on United States Government and real estate acreage because the House conferees objected to any formula. The Senate then agreed to meet the House half way on the difference between the Federal payment opposed by the House and the Federal payment provided by the Senate.

"I cannot predict what further action the Senate may take. But in my judgment, and speaking for myself only, I do not think that the Senate can recede further. If it does, it ceases to function as a coordinate branch of our Federal Legislature and will in effect proceed to sign both the District tax bill and the District appropriation bill on the dotted line as presented to it by the House."

The House vote followed an hour's debate before a full chamber. It was the third time that the membership had voted emphatically not to yield at all to the Senate. Each vote, however, has shown a gain, though small, for the larger lump sum.

The first vote was 216 to 12 and the second 223 to 20.

Impatient to voice its defiance of the Senate's wishes a third time, the House members shouted "Vote! Vote!" before their own conferees had time to explain the compromise.

The report was called up by the one House manager who refused to sign it, Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, merely because he was chairman of the conferees.

Its recommendations were defended by Chairman Randolph, who spoke last, and Representatives Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, and Bates (Republican), of Massachusetts, all conferees.

The most bitter attack on the conference report was made by Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, ranking member of the House Appropriations Committee.

"I do not propose to be guilty of a breach of faith to the people back home who are already overburdened with taxes," he shouted in a shrill voice. "I hope the House will take a definite and firm stand against any increase in the lump sum payment."

Questioned by Chairman Taylor of the Appropriations Committee, Taber said that "90 per cent of the people of Washington are on the Federal pay roll" and "there is no relief problem here that is not imported."

"I'm sure than intelligence will prevail at the other end of the Capitol if we have a roll-call vote and reject this report," he concluded.

House Gets "Lion's Share"

Representative Dirksen told the House that it had "come off with the lion's share" in the tax controversy.

"We were forced to make some concessions to the Senate," he added, "especially after one distinguished Senator said it was a question whether the Senate was still a branch of the legislative government."

The income tax, he said, had been made so palatable by the conferees "that no one could object to it."

Representative McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts, raised a question as to whether Government employes who retain a legal residence in one of the States might not be taxed both by the State and the District.

Considerable discussion of the definition of domicile followed, and Dirksen expressed the opinion that Federal workers could keep their voting rights in the States and their domiciles in the District without conflict or double taxation.

Several members asked for assurance that they would not be caught under the tax by reason of the fact that it was made to apply to anyone domiciled in the National Capital on the last day of the taxable year.

3 Lump Sum Principles

Collins cited three methods of arriving at the Federal payment to the District that have been proposed in recent years. The first, an exchange of contractural services, suggested by the Jabobs report, would have produced $2,079,000, he said.

The second would be to take all U. S. property in the District and deduct from it the types of public buildings found in other cities and the normal municipal park area and then apply a $1.75 tax rate to the remainder. That, he said, would give the District $4,500,000.

The third method, suggested by the Mapes committee, would be to ascertain what the average rate of taxation for cities of comparable size is throughout the country and then assess the Federal Government the difference between the revenue raisd and the operating costs of the National Capital.

The Mapes Committee recommended that the lump sum payment should "not exceed $6,500,000" in 1933.

Representative Whittington (Democrat), of Massachusetts, made the charge that the $6,500,000 authorization in the tax conference report actually was an appropriation and therefore assumed powers of the Appropriations Committee.

Senator Overton subsequently explained the language "there shall be appropriated" was taken directly from the 50-50 fiscal division law which first placed the Federal payments on a definite basis.

Representative Bates warned the House that District employes will go payless this week if the House refused to yield to the Senate and accept the lump sum compromise.

Making a plea for rejection of the report, Nicholes asserted that every tax expert except Senator Overton that has made a study of the fiscal relations question has recommended a Federal payment of less than $5,000,000.

"I know the District citizens don't want more than they are entitled to," he said.

Representative Sirovich (Democrat), of New York, interrupted to point out that District legislation consumes much time of Congress that might be better devoted to national affairs.

"Has the gentleman ever thought of drafting a bill to cede back the District to Maryland?" he asked.

Amid the laughter, Nichols replied that he actually had introduced such a bill last session.

Chairman Randolph read an excerpt from the Mape's report recommending a Federal payment of $6,500,000 and pointed out that three present members of the House had signed it. They are Collins and Representatives Mapes (Republican), of Michigan, and Patman Democrat), of Texas.

"In all fairness," he pleaded, "the House should stand by its conferees. We have compromised, to be sure, as all conferees must do."

On the first division vote the count was 131 to 36 against adoption. The motion by Nichols to instruct the conferees not to accept any compromise that authorized a Federal payment above $5,000,000 was made following the roll call vote on the report. It was adopted by a loud shout of "aye."

FHA Reports 80% Gain in Its Program

Increase in First Six Months of 1939 Cited; Seeks to Expand Plan

A gain of approximately 80 per cent in construction of new homes under the FHA program was reported last night by Administrator Stewart McDonald for the first six months of 1939 in comparison with the same period last year.

Most of the 500 homes started under FHA inspection each working day since March 1 are small single-family units valued at approximately $5,500 each, McDonald announced.

Small home mortgages selected for appraisal by the FHA during the six months amounted to $602,000,000, as against $455,200,000 for last year. Of this year's total, however, $410,200,000 involved new houses, while the amount for this purpose last year was $243,500,000.

Means to accelerate home construction in the middle income group were proposed to the Temporary National Economic Committee and the House Banking Committee yesterday by Gerald B. Lambert, former FHA adviser, who urged tax exemption of the income from home building projects or Government insurance of the mortgages. He predicted this would be an incentive to private capital investment and might tap $15,000,000,000 of idle money.

Testifies at Hearing

His testimony before the Banking Committee was in connection with a proposal to increase the United States Housing Authority's lending powers from $600,000,000 to $1,600,000,000.

"Speaking generally," he said, "we have no program for that big group who pay between $5 and $10 per room per month."

USHA projects now being completed will serve families with incomes below $1,000. For the most part, FHA projects have been built by prospective owners. In large FHA housing rental projects, tenant incomes have been high enough to permit Nathan Straus, USHA administrator to say recently that "nobody is building for families with incomes between $1,000 and $2,000."

Labor Cost "No Deterrent"

Dan W. Tracy, official of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, contended before the monopoly committee yesterday that the cost of labor was not a factor in retarding the building of homes. He estimated that 10 per cent of all homes costing $15,000 or under were built with nonunion labor with wage-scales 10 to 40 per cent under union rates.

McDonald said that construction of new homes under the FHA program reached a high level in the second quarter of the last half year, when 2,870 homes were started each week, as compared with 1,610 a week in the 1938 quarter.

Eight Indicted As Hog-Stealing Ring in D. C.

Eight men accused of wholesale hog stealing from the Government were indicted yesterday, only a week after two of them were caught with their alleged loot squealing in their grasp.

The indictments were among 21 accusing 23 persons presented to Justice Proctor in the first report of the July grand jury.

The hog-stealing ring, it was charged, operated from May 1 to July 5, and took more than 50 pigs from St. Elizabeths Hospital. Feed estimated at more than 6,500 pounds also was stolen.

Those indicted were:

Joy-riding—Luther C. Taylor, 18; Alfred O. Stewart, 18, colored; John A. Lee, 19, colored; Frank E. Johnson, 26, colored. Assault with dangerous weapon—Albert Williams, 33, colored; Sadie V. House Votes To Delay Army Marriages

West Point Graduates Would Have to Wait Yr. Before Taking Bride

Army lieutenants would be barred from marrying for one year after graduation from West Point under a bill passed by the House yesterday.

In approving legislation making appointments as second lieutenants probationary for three years, with a wedding ban authorized for the first twelve months, the House avoided the wrath of West Pointers' sweethearts back home by exempting present cadets. The measure now goes back to the Senate for action on the marriage bar, previously disapproved by the Senate.

Several other Army bills were passed during an afternoon devoted to consideration of the Military Committee's calendar. Purchase of nearly a million acres of land for training peacetime soldiers was authorized under one of the bills. Sponsored by the War Department, it would authorize expenditure of $5,000,000 for additions to 11 military reservations.

All officers below the rank of brigadier general who served during the Spanish-American War would be promoted one rank on the retired list by another measure passed. An amendment adopted extending its provisions to the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, sent it back to the Senate. No increased pay would be allowed.

Nearby Fort George G. Meade, Md., would be enlarged by 10,000 acres under the bill, while a 40,000-acre training center in Iowa and a 749,440-acre antiaircraft range in the Mojave desert, Calif., are the principal new projects authorized. The measure now goes to the Senate.

New Workers Get to Criticize TheirInduction

Agriculture Neophytes Have Double Role in Orientation Experiment

The Department of Agriculture tried out an experiment yesterday in a projection room instead of in a test tube. The "subjects" were about 50 new employes of the department and unlike most participants in an experiment, they had some say about it themselves when it was over.

The project which they were invited to criticize by means of questionnaires was an orientation conference held by Personnel Director Roy F. Hendrickson and members of his staff for the purpose of acquainting new recruits to Agriculture with the workings of the Department. The conference marked the first of a series.

Pare Lorentz's movie, "The River," and an introductory talk by Hendrickson were among the highlights of a day-long program.

The speeches, all of which lasted about half an hour, included such subjects as Civil Service procedure, post-entry training and education, and leisure-time activities. Among those on the rostrum from the personnel staff were Robert D. Hubbard, C. P. Harper, P. W. Melton and F. O. Billings. Others who spoke were W. A. Jump, director of finance, and Samuel S. Board, of the division of qualification and training.

McReynolds Funeral Train Off to Tenn.

Services Will Be Held Today at Chattanooga, Representative's Home

The remains of Representative Samuel Davis McReynolds, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, were en route to his native Tennessee last night, accompanied by a Congressional delegation of 15 Representatives and 5 Senators.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 today in Chattanooga, his home city, followed by burial in Forest Hill Cemtery. Final tribute was paid here to the 67-year-old legislator yesterday at rites conducted in the home at 3261 Arcadia place northwest, into which Mr. McReynolds moved last fall and where he died Tuesday.

The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House, officiated at the services, attended by members of the family, brother lawmakers, friends and neighbors. One of the most deeply affected mourners was former Representative John O'Connor, of New York, who was chairman of the House Rules Committee at the time of his defeat last fall.

In the forenoon the entire membership of the Foreign Affairs Committee, led by Acting Chairman Sol Bloom, went to the home to file past the bier and offer condolences.

At 4:55 p. m. a Southern Railway train left Union Station bound for Chattanooga, bearing the body. Two extra Pullman cars were added for the accommodation of the family and the Congressional funeral delegation.

In the party were all eight members of the House delegation from Tennessee: Senators McKellar and Stewart of that State, Senators Burke of Nebradska, Thomas of Oklahoma and Russell of Georgia; Representatives Bland of Virginia and Thomason of Texas, and the five ranking members of the Foreign Affairs Committee—Acting Chairman Bloom of New York, Johnson and Kee of West Virginia, Fish of New York and Eaton of New Jersey.

dance of the third carried as though written for just such a setting.

Just after the beginning of the fourth movement the President arrived, to be greeted by a burst of applause from those in the back. But Dr. Kindler continued undisturbed, through the final passionate crisis to the four sharp chords that echoed from the crowd and died triumphant in the distance.

Then during the intermission the President waved from his car, parked at the head of the steps, while the audience stood in their places to cheer him.

The second half began with Handel's majestic Largo, played with a sweeping power that seemed to share the majesty of the starlit vastness overhead.

Then followed the fairyland ballet music from Schubert's "Rosamunde," which Dr. Kindler took just a litle slowly, carefully giving the dainty notes time to float out over the multitude. Next the pyrotechnics of Schoenherr's "Perpetuum Mobile," and as the applause died down, Dr. Kindler stepped forward to announce the request number. "In honor of our distinguished guest, who has expressed a fondness for Wagner," the orchestra played the prelude to the third act of Lohengrin.

After the exotic sadness of Sibelius' "Valse Triste," made still more effective by Dr. Kindler's dramatic restraint, the orchestra swung into the popular polka and fugue from Weinberger's "Schwanda." All reserve now gone, the conductor threw every muscle of his body into the jaunty swing of what should have been the last number.

The applause beat like hail-stones against the orchestral barge. The President drove away, and two in the front rose to go. But 20,000 kept their places, until Dr. Kindler had played Debussy's "Clair de Lune" and "The Bumble Bee," by Rimsky-Korsakoff.

And then he had to lead the concertmaster from the stage by the hand to get the crowd to go.

Through it all there had been few distractions, and those not heard by all.

A distant airplane took off during the Brahms; later a motorboat disturbed the silence and was chased away by the harbor police launch. One music lover was heard to remark that the latter made more noise than the former and might have been ignored.

Reorganization Bill Attacked By D. C. Heads

Action This Session Held Unlikely, but Critics Push Fight

Although there appears little chance Congress will adopt any District reorganization measure this session, criticism of several provisions in the Kennedy bill continues. Three protests were made yesterday:

Commissioners Hazen and McCoach said they opposed any plan which set up a city manager who would take over the administrative duties of the Board of Commissioners.

The Commissioners' "kitchen cabinet," made up of department chiefs, were understood to have suggested substitution of an administrative assistant to the Commissioners in place of the city manager, or administrator, as proposed in the plan offered in the House by Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland.

The Committee on Civic Affairs of the Washington Federation of Churches attacked the provision which would place the Juvenile Court under Municipal Court jurisdiction.

Agencies Score Plan

Certain provisions of the Kennedy plan, a modification of the Griffenhagen survey, were scored Tuesday by Central Labor Union, Board of Tax Appeals, Public Utilities Commission, and Frank R. Jelleff, chairman of the Parole Board.

Major obstacle to the Kennedy bill, approved by President Roosevelt, is the feeling by a majority of the House subcommittee on District reorganization there's no rush about it, especially with adjournment in the air.

The "cabinet" is due to meet today to report to the Commissioners and further discuss their findings on the bill. The advisers will express disapproval of all phases of the reorganization bill which would strip the Commissioners of any power.

Meeting today will be Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor; Richmond Keech, vice chairman of the Public Utilities Commisison, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highway, and Jo V. Morgan, sole member of the Board of Tax Appeals.

Church Group Hits Bill

The Federation of Churches' civic affairs committee opposed "any change that would impair the integrity of the Juvenile Court or destroy its independence."

Wilbur LaRoe, jr., chairman of the committee, wrote to Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee, who introduced a similar bill, and to Representative Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, chairman of the House District Committee, asserting:

"Our committee feels the Juvenile Court, as now functioning, serves the public interest well, and that any change as proposed would be undesirable."

Randolph Invites D'Alesandro Views On D. C. Subways

Chairman Randolph, of the House District Committee, yesterday invited Representative D'Alesandro (Democrat), of Maryland, to appear before the committee Monday to explain his resolution calling for a transit subway survey by the Public Utilities Commission.

D'Alesandro's resolution directs the commission, with the aid of experts from Federal agencies, to make a study of the feasibility of building subways in Washington and to report back to Congress in February.

The subways are needed here, D'Alesandro said, to relieve the 'rush-hour' traffic congestion and to protect pedestrians and children.

Jubal Early's Raid on D. C. Marked at Ft. Stevens Ceremony

Observing the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Battle of Fort Stevens were (left to right) Representative Bolles, of Wisconsin; John T. Ryan, 92-year-old veteran of the Department of the Potomac, G. Rep. Bolles' Address Eulogizes the 'Private Soldier' of Both Sides, but Pledges Never To Vote to Send Americans to Fight Abroad

How Jubal Early, grizzled leader of a tired army of 18,000 Confederates on foot and horse, swarmed against Fort Stevens on July 12, 1864, in a lightning stroke against Washington, was recalled in ceremonies memorializing the seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle here yesterday.

The program, sponsored by Department of the Potomac, G. A. R., the Brightwood Citizens Association, with other patriotic groups participating, was held inside the stout slopes of the fort and within the wall where President Lincoln, concerned over the city's safety, watched the maneuvering of the forces.

The band of the United States Navy School of Music played patriotic airs for the one-hour program. The speaker, Representative Stephen Bolles (Republican), of Wisconsin, told the audience of several hundred that he never would vote to send American boys into a war on foreign soil.

But to defend our homes is a different matter, he said in his address eulogizing the private soldiers who defended the fort.

"Here in Washington are scores of monuments to men on horseback," he added. "In the last few weeks I have been asked to support a movement, fitting in its meaning, to the veterans of the Grand Army—to the private soldier, the doughboy of his day. These were the men who successfully defended this fort 75 years ago and the man with the musket was here on both sides—the blue and the gray," Bolles said.

After all, he continued, "the great monuments to the heroic dead and to events are erected in the hearts of the people. The Republic of the United States, its solidarity, its unity of North and South, East and West, is the living memorial to what happened here."

Present was Mrs. Mary E. Saltzman, of Maryland, a granddaughter of Gen. Isaac I. Stevens, for whom the Fort was named. Her Uncle, Maj. Hazard Stevens, was in action at the Fort. Near the speakers' place was John T. Ryan, possibly the only Union survivor of the Battle of the Monocacy, which occurred July 9, 1864.

John Clagett Proctor, vice president of the Brightwood Association, presided. The Rev. John S. Kromer pronounced the invocation. The pledge of allegiance to the flag was led by Mrs. Cordelia C. Pollard. Other organizations participating were the Woman's Relief Corps, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, and Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War.

Dr. Montgomery Funeral Today; Veteran Physician

Funeral services for Dr. Charles W. Montgomery, practicing physician here for half a century, will be held at 1 p. m. today in the W. W. Chambers chapel, 1400 Chapin street northwest. Masonic rites will be held at the burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Frederick, Md.

Dr. Montgomery, who made his home at 623 Sixth street southwest, died Tuesday after an illness of several months. He was stricken shortly after returning to Washington from a winter vacation in Florida.

A native of Ijamsville, Md., he came to the District in 1885 to study medicine at the old Columbian College, now George Washington University. He was graduated at the age of 20.

Surviving are a brother, Frank W. Montgomery, of Chicago; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Arthur L. Reynolds, and a nephew, Theodore Parker, both of Silver Spring, Md.

Funeral Service For Mrs. Kirby to Be Held Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Marylee Williams Kirby, 44, of 641 A street southeast, will be held at 2 p. m. today in the Sardo funeral home. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

A life long resident of Washington, Mrs. Kirby died Sunday in Providence Hospital after an illness of two months. She served two terms as councilor of Kenilworth Council No. 13, Daughters of America.

She leaves a son, Joseph Benton Kirby; a daughter, Mrs. Frances V. Harvey; four brothers, M. Bradley, James, W. Stanley and Julian B. Williams; four sisters, Mrs. A. H. Johnson, of Washington; Mrs. James J. Houston, Chowchilla, Calif.; Mrs. M. W. Newberry, Edenton, N. C.; Mrs. A. L. Simpson, Los Angeles, and four grandchildren.

Operators May Boycott D. C. Parking Lot

Owners of 61 parking lots yesterday threatened to boycott the District's offer to lease the parking area at Third street and Constitution avenue northwest, in protest against provisions of the contract.

The provisions, the objectors said in a letter to the District Commissioners, are "unethical and unbecoming to the District municipal government."

Cause of the indignation, according to C. J. B. Murphy, chairman of the Parking Lot Association, are paragraphs in the proposed lease which give the District Commissioners the right to regulate the operation of the parking lot in the matter of hours, number of workers, length of parking, and other conditions.

The operators, Murphy said, also object to $2 per month parking rate which must be given to all applicants. Such a compulsory provision, Murphy asserted, would make the lot unprofitable.

For the past three years the lot has been run by Sam Lovenbein, who has paid $1,200 rent per month. Lovenbein said last night he could not possibly bid on the lease under the new terms. He asserted that he was now employing six men, all over 50 years of age, and paying an average salary of $25 per week. The lot, he said, would be able to park 1,040 cars, and not the 1,500 figured in the District lease. The present lease expires August 1.

Fleming Urges Retaining D. C. Commission

Twnety-four District officials shared the spotlight yesterday at a "District Day" luncheon of the Washington Rotary Club in the Willard Hotel.

Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank, traced the history of the District government, to the present Board of Commissioners rule adopted in June, 1874. He said a "grave mistake" would be made if any change of government was made under projected reorganization plans and urged retention of the commissionership form.

Guests of honor at the luncheon included Lieut. Col. David A. McCoach, engineer commissioner; his three assistants, Capt. Patrick H. Tansey, Capt. C. L. Adcock and Capt. Don G. Shingler; Public Utilities Commissioners Riley E. Elgen and Richmond B. Keech, Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, William A. Van Duzer, director of traffic; Dr. George C. Ruhland, health officer; Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent.

Fire Chief Stephen T. Porter, Dr. George P. Bowerman, librarian; Fred D. Allen, assessor; Col. Daniel J. Donovan, auditor; Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, coroner; Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, highway director; Capt. Hugh P. Gram, director of inspection; J. B. Gordon, sanitary engineer; E. A. Dent, surveyor; Frederick W. McReynolds, chairman, and Paul L. Kirby, acting director, Board of Welfare; Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools; Jo V. Morgan, Board of Tax Appeals, and Thomas E. Lodge, chairman, Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Capital News In Brief

Six Boys Win Turtles

Six of 52 boys who dived into the pool at Central Y. M. C. A. last night in the boys' department annual turtle chase, emerged each as owner of a baby turtle, the reward for prowess.

Those who captured turtles were James Shorthand, Levan Diffenbach, Eugene Estes, Richard Collins, David Kinchen and Richard Bridgeman.

The chase was the second of a series of special events under the direction of E. Holt Neese, instructor. A baby alligator hunt will be the next event.

Hurt by Police Car

Police Sergt. Paul Sullivan, Traffic Division, narrowly escaped serious injuries yesterday when a headquarters cruiser, operated by Private Milton B. Groves, backed into him in an alley behind police headquarters. Groves was waiting for Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives. Sullivan was injured about the legs but refused hospital treatment.

Watches Procedure

Justice Morris, who recently ascended the District Court bench, yesterday observed the procedure in Justice Proctor's court. The new justice will preside over criminal sessions alone later in the summer.

Cosmetics Truck Lost

Someone last night drove off with the truck of David Goldstein, salesman, of 922 C street southeast. It contained, he told police, cosmetics and insect spray.

Boy Scalded

Nine-year-old Bernard Dunston, of 413 O street southwest, required treatment for second degree burns to both legs yesterday after he had overturned a pot of boiling water in the kitchen of his home. He was taken to Providence Hospital.

Doctors Name 3 to Conduct Mutual Health

Mutual Health Service, the District Medical Society's co-operative plan for low-income groups, yesterday perfected its recently formed organization with the election of three physicians to the Medical Service Committee to protect interests of both subscribers and affiliated doctors.

Named to the committee were Drs. E. E. Duehring, J. Ogle Warfield, jr., and W. Cabell Moore. The trio was elected at a meeting of more than 100 member-physicians at the Medical Society Building, 1700 block M street northwest.

The committee was given the power to hear and review complaints by patients or physicians, to approve medical bills for payment, and to authorize the services of specialists where needed.

Dr. Victor R. Alfaro was elected a member of the board of trustees to succeed Dr. Arch L. Riddick, who recently was elected president.

Hugh Buhrman, MHS Administrator, reported that a large volume of inquiries from persons seeking to become subscribers was encouraging.

Setting as its initial goal 5,000 subscribers, the Mutual Health Service opened its campaign July 1. Unmarried applicants must have an income of $2,000 or less to qualify; $2,500 is the top income for married persons, with $200 allowed for each dependent. Applicants are accepted in units of ten or more. Fees include $1 initiation, $1.50 per month for single persons, $2.50 per month per couple, and $3.50 for families with dependents.

Stephenson Funeral

Funeral services for Lieut. Col. Lowry Boyd Stephenson, commandant of the Marine Barracks here, will be held at 10:30 a. m. Saturday in Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Former Marine Bandsman Dies; Funeral Friday

Funeral services for J. Achille Guimond, 70, former clarinetist for the Marine Band, will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow in the Lee funeral home. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mr. Guimond died Tuesday at his home, 1824 Upshur street northeast, after a year's illness.

A native of Quebec, he came to Washington in 1896. During the Spanish-American War he served in Cuba with the 6th Infantry Band. He later played with the 3rd Cavalry Band at Fort Myer and then joined the Marine Band.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth E. Guimond.

Hotel Chasleton Fire Drives 30 From Third Floor

Smoke drove 30 residents from their third-floor apartments last night when a fire destroyed the furnishings of a room in the Hotel Chastleton, Sixteenth and R streets northwest.

Miss Betty Dorf, employe of the Indian Affairs Bureau, and Miss Harriet Arnovich, of the Federal Housing Administration, and sister of Morrie Arnovich, Philadelphia Nationals' outfielder and league-leading batsman, who live in the apartment, were not at home. They later returned to find their wardrobes destroyed in the fire.

The fire was confined to the apartment, the walls being fireproofed.

Runyan Wins, Shute Falls in P. G. A. Tourney

Al Watrous Collapses, Is Beaten

'Dark Horse' Kocsis Beats Storm Center Of Pros, by 3 and 2; Picard Also Winner

By Bill Boni,
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, July 12.—Paul Runyan, fighting tooth and nail to avert defeat on his thirty-first birthday, battled his way into the quarter-final round in defense of his National P. G. A. golf championship today, but had to share the day's honors at the Pomonok Country Club with the man he will meet tomorrow and two fast-moving "dark horses."

WATROUS

Shooting consistent rather than spectacular golf on a day when birdies were as common as Japanese beetles, "Little Poison" beat back Ben Hogan, 26-year-old former Texan, who works at a neighboring club in White Plains, N. Y., 2 and 1. He thus moved into the bracket opposite Dick Metz, of Lake Forest, Ill., for the handsome Westerner, runner-up to Ralph Guldahl in the U. S. Open last year, trampled cigar-smoking Billy Burke, who won the Open in 1931, 6 and 4.

But down in the lower half of the draw appeared two survivors whose standing as contenders becomes progressively better from day to day. One was E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, string-bean Arkansan by way of Oak Park, Ill., who finished 27 holes 8 under par for a 10 and 9 rout of red-headed Bruce Coltart, of Haddonfield, N. J.

Shute Loses to Kocsis

The other was Emerick Kocsis, Orion, Mich., newcomer to top-flight competition who looks 28, probably is 35 and claims he's 45 years old. Kocsis, one of the few players who did not sign the petition that brought Denny Shute into the tournament over the protests of the tournament committee, followed that up by knocking Denny, who is unemployed at present, out of the competition, 3 and 2.

Harrison, who tied with Kocsis, Hogan and Ky Laffoon for the medal in the 36-hole qualifying rounds, still is shooting that kind of golf. He played his first 18 today in 66, one shot over the competitive course record and six under par, and then toured the first nine in the afternoon in 33, two under standard figures. For his 96 holes in the tournament he's 19 below par.

Tomorrow Harrison will meet the brother of his boss' at Oak Park, Ill., Horton Smith. Horton put on the finest rally by winning eight consecutive holes in the morning after being five down, to pull out a 4 and 2 triumph over Clarence Doser, of Ardmore, Pa., who beat Guldahl yesterday.

Kocsis vs. Nelson

Kocsis' next assignment is to tackle Byron Nelson, the United States Open champion, who built up a 7-up margin on Johnny Revolta, 1935 pro champ, in the first 18 holes and, despite a slight slump in the afternoon, won by 6 and 4.

The other two berths in the upper half of the draw went to Henry Picard, who has won more money this year than any other pro, and Tod Munday, Runyan's assistant. Picard won at 8 and 7 from Al Watrous, 40-year-old veteran from Birmingham, Mich., who collapsed on the sixth green in the afternoon from what doctors diagnosed as a combination of too many cold drinks and too much heat. Munday, carving three shots off par with an afternoon 69, lasted to nose out Tom O'Connor, from Yardley, Pa., 2 up.

Hogan, youngest of today's sixteen and one of the most promising players in the country, played good golf against Runyan, but not quite good enough.

"He beat me with that putter," said Ben. "There were ten or twelve times there when I should have won holes because I was inside him, but he'd bang that ball up there, and I'd be lucky to get a half."

Harrison, if he wasn't considerate of his rival in the margin of his victory, at least was thoughtful in killing off Coltart on the 27th hole, right in front of the clubhouse. That meant that Bruce didn't have a long walk home.

Monte Weaver, Long With Nats, Goes to Minors

Louisville, Ky., July 12 (AP).—The Louisville Colonels of the American Association announced today acquisition from the Boston Red Sox of the American League of right-hand pitcher Monte Weaver. He is expected to join the club Friday.

The former University of Virginia mathematics instructor, who began his professional baseball career in 1928, was obtained by Boston from the Washington Senators last spring. With the Senators, Weaver won 70 games and lost 50 in eight seasons.

Mace Brown Blanks Dodgers for Pirates

Reliefer Gets Starting Job And Turns Back Brooklyn With 6 Hits; Wyatt Fails to Last

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, July 12.—Fireman Mace Brown, the Pittsburgh Pirates' ace relief pitcher, went the full route tonight and wiped out Whitey Wyatt's winning streak in hurling the Bucs to a 6-hit, 3-to-0 victory over the Dodgers before 29,481 fans at Ebbetts Field.

Starting a game for only the third time this season, the 29-year-old right-hander was in serious trouble only twice as he handed Wyatt his first defeat of the year after the Dodger twirler had won eight straight since coming up from Milwaukee.

The victory boosted the Bucs into a fifth place National League tie with the Dodgers, who dropped behind the St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs by losing this lone game on the day's big league program.

Wyatt and Tot Pressnell, who pitched the last two innings after Whitey gave way to a pinch-hitter, allowed only six hits between them, but never had a chance after the Pirates collected two runs in the first frame. Lloyd Waner started this rally with a two-bagger and went to third when Arky Vaughn bunted safely. Rizzo's sacrifice fly produced the run; Chuck Klein's single sent Vaughan to third, and Elbie Fletcher's sacrifice to the outfield pushed the second tally home.

The only other run came in the seventh on Lyn Lary's error of Bill Brubaker's bounder, Brown's bunt and Waner's second two-bagger.

Glenn Cunningham, the old Kansas flyer, added another mile race to his long list of victories tonight when he sprinted through on the inside to beat the Rideout twins of Texas in the last 20 yards.

The race was run as a preliminary to the game. Blaine Rideout was second, Wayne Rideout third and Charley Decker of Indiana, last, but

Canoe Regatta Slated Here Next Sunday

Washington Canoe Club will be the shoving off place for birch bark experts from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania when the Middle States Division of the American Canoe Association stages its annual regatta Sunday on the Potomac.

Though racing with both single and double blades will be held, all eyes will probably turn to the tilting contests, usually the most mirth-provoking of all events. The host club's Bill Havens, jr., national tilting champion, will have his supremacy seriously threatened by Adolph Springle, the Viking Club (N. J.) holder of the Atlantic division championship.

Among the champions who will dot the program are Stanley Cimokowski and Frank Krick, the tandem single-blade titlists of the country, Harold Bruns, of the Yonkers (N. Y.) Canoe Club, runner-up to Ernie Riedel in the last singles Olympic tryouts, will also be in competition, though the champ is at present in the hospital recovering from an accident.

Harry "Pop" Knight, the paddler whose experience dates back to the 1924 Olympics, will head the list of local entries, along with Ken Romjue, Ebby Trilling and several others.

Bob Brownell Cards 147 in Western Golf

Stewart Wins Medal With 137; Adds 69 To First Day's 68

By the Associated Press.

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 12.—Verne "Spec" Stewart, the ace from Albuquerque, cornered medalist honors in the fortieth annual Western Amateur Golf tournament today by finishing the 36-hole qualifying grind with 68, 69—137, 3 under par.

Stewart, seven-time champion of New Mexico, led the list of 63 sharpshooters who will join Defending Champion Bob Babbish, of Detroit, in the first round of match play tomorrow.

Robert Brownell, of Washington, D. C. and Duke University, fired 74 in the second 18 holes to finish in van of the qualifiers. His card of 147 qualified him easily for match play beginning tomorrow. Not once through the 18 did he run into serious trouble although he was one stroke off the pace he set yesterday.

He parred every hole but the sixth going out for a 36.

Playing the same consistent game coming back, he had bogies only on the difficult No. 14, and Nos. 16 and 17, carding pars on all the rest.

His card:

Par—
Out.. 4 4 3 4 5 3 4 4 4—35
In... 4 3 4 5 4 3 4 4 4—35—70
Brownell—
Out.. 4 4 3 4 5 4 4 4 4—36
In... 4 3 4 5 5 3 5 5 4—38—74—147

Stewart snatched the lead from Art Doering, of Chicago, one of the early finishers, whose 71-70—141 stood up until the broad-shouldered belter from New Mexico came breezing in with his second sub-par round in as many days.

Almost duplicating his first-round performance, Stewart was over-and-under all the way around, bagging five birdies but slipping beyond par on some holes. He was out in 35, even par, and in with 34.

One strike behind Stewart came J. C. Hamilton, little-known Oklahoma City youngster, who also used

Fighting Fox Scores, Pays $31 at Suffolk

40,000 See Brother of Gallant Fox Cover Mile and Furlong on Sloppy Track in 1:52–3 Seconds Off Record

By Tom Noonan,
United Press Sports Writer.

Boston, Mass., July 12.—Belair Stud's enigmatic Fighting Fox, tabbed strictly as a sprint horse with a notable dislike for distance, stretched his vaunted early speed from flagfall to finish today and ran to a brilliant victory in the fourth renewal of the $50,000 added Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs.

A crowd of 40,000 persons, who braved a drizzling rain to see the East's best handicap horses go in New England's richest stake, watched the full brother of Gallant Fox smash into the lead at the start of the mile and a furlong run and then refuse to relinquish the pace in the stretch—where he had lost so many races before.

The Fox splashed home over the drenched track with a half-length margin over J. S. Loucheim's patched-up Pompoon and the Shandon Farms' surprising Burning Star. W. L. Brann's Challedon, a topheavy favorite while the betters passed up Fighting Fox at 15 to 1, finished fourth after trailing all the way, and the Benglin Stable's South American, Ligaroti, finished eleventh in the 12-horse field.

The Fox, ably ridden by Jimmy Stout, covered the mile and a furlong on sloppy footing in 1:52, 3 seconds off the record established in the same race by Seabiscuit two years ago, and won $49,250 of a $68,000 gross purse. He paid $31, $15.40 and 11.60 across the board.

Pompoon, who closed with a terrific rush after being almost two lengths away as he came flying down the final 200 yards, won $10,000 in second money and paid another long price—$10.40 and $7.80 to place and show. Burning Star earned $5,000 and paid $12.20, while Challedon earned $2,500 for fourth, and A. G. Vanderbilt's truculent Heelfly took down $1,250 for fifth after again delaying the start.

Fighting Fox was away smartly after Heelfly had been urged into the starting stall, with Pompoon, Burning Star, Honey Cloud, Ligaroti and Pagliacci onl ya step behind. Carrying 113 pounds against a top of 120 for Pompoon and Ligaroti nad Pagliacci only a step length lead at the quarter—and from that point he never was headed, or even seriously challenged, until Pompoon came on with a blazing rush in the last half furlong.

Going past that first pole Blind Eagle ran second with just a head over Honey Cloud. Pompoon moved along in fourth position while Pagliacci was fifth, and Clodion sixth. Ligaroti fell back to seventh in the first strides and he never was able to come as close again.

Into the half the Fox stretched his margin by another half length with little change in the order behind him. Pompoon was kept in restraint by Jockey Bobbie Eccard in fourth place, three lengths in front of Clodion. Past the second marker Eccard shook up the son of Pompey and nearing the three-quarter pole

Harris Shifts Nats' Line-up For Trip West

The Nats took a three-game winning streak into the West last night on their third excursion through the hinterland section of the league this season. Their first port of call will be St. Louis.

Unless they are joined in the West by Harry Kelley, now taking treatments at Hot Springs, Ark., for a pair of ailing knees, the Nats will operate with a 7-man pitching staff on their current trip.

Their last trip through the East saw the Nats break even in eight games, thanks chiefly to three victories over the Athletics. Two changes in the line-up, at first base and centerfield, marked their Eastern trip.

Manager Bucky Harris is now definitely committed to Rookie Mickey Vernon as his first baseman for two reasons: (1) that Vernon is the only first baseman on the club following the release of Bob Prichard and (2) because in the three games he has played with the Nats, Vernon has been an impressive factor.

The lanky Villanova collegian has been a welcome relief to Harris, with his defensive ability around first base, following the erratic play of four previous candidates for the job, and Vernon shows also an indication that he is a sound if not pow-

Tri-County Team Named Manheim Blanks Phils, 1-0

Manheim, Pa., July 12 (AP).—The Manheim Tri-County Baseball League team scored a 1-to-0 victory over the Phillies of the National League before 5,000 fans in an exhibition game tonight.

Glenny Horst, former Franklin & Marshall, player, held the Phils to five hits and fanned seven. The winning score came in the third when Noble advanced to third on a bad throw by Ray Harrell and a sacrifice by Gracey. Angle broke his bat hitting a slow roller to George Schalein, who had no opportunity to head off Noble at the plate.

'Ump' Jeffries Tries a New Role

Helps Talented Kids To Chance in Major League Baseball

By Bill Burnett

Lending support to the universal complaint of baseball players that an umpire rarely watches the plays closely enough to see anything, Umpire Albert Jeffries, popular sandlot official, yesterday admitted he sometimes had time to watch things on the diamond that weren't exactly his concern.

For instance, Jeffries confessed, he often observes an individual player enough to see how good he actually is, whether's he in the play or not. This, as everyone knows, is strictly outside the province of an umpire. He does it on his own time and there's no extra pay in his envelope for it.

For Jeffries, however, it has grown to be the delightful part of calling "Ba-a-w-l" and "Str-e-e-ike" on the kids who play Washington's sandlot baseball. It speeds up many a dull game, and to date it has had interesting results.

Number one from the profitable angle is probably Charley Keller, the former Maryland University outfielder now cavorting with the World Champion New York Yankees. Keller came under Jeffries' eye while the latter was umpiring in Rockville, and young Charley was taking his first talented diamond steps. Keller was a "natural" and Jeffries was one of the first to take note of it. He watched the young slugger well enough to take a chance on recommending him to Clark Griffith, president of the Nats. Griff missed the cue.

Latest on Jeffries' list of "observations" is Francis Miller, the red-headed outfielder who was with O'Donnell's Grill, of the Industrial League, until a week ago. "Reds" now is with a Brooklyn Dodger farm club as the result of Jeffries' intervention.

"I watched Miller," said the earnest official, "until I had to do something about the graceful way he handled himself in the field, the extra base hits he was turning in for the Grill.

"A letter to Larry McPhail, president of the Dodgers, was the first step. I wasn't disappointed when McPhail wrote back that he'd give Miller a tryout at the expense of the Brooklyn club."

The Dodgers may be a zaney set, but in the opinion of "Jeff" they can see a good prospect without binoculars. Before Miller accepted the Dodger tryout, he was taken to Griffith Stadium for a final test. It was the third of its kind, and just as in the other trips, nothing was done about signing him because there was something about his being too old. He's under 24.

Now Miller is with Americus, Ga., in the Georgia-Alabama League. He has been guaranteed $150 a month the rest of the season, with a chance to go up to the big time in the near future.

Another milestone in an umpire's habit of observing the boys he officiates over has been passed.

Charley Keller Was First Given Boost; Rookie Miller Aided

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

The most aptly named ball player in the big leagues is Joe (Flash) Gordon, who more closely approximates lightning in human form than any guy who ever went to his right, or left, for a baseball. It may have required the setting and magnitude of an All-Star game to catapult Gordon into stardom but the things he did in the All-Star game Tuesday he has been doing as a routine job for the Yankees for most of two seasons.

POVICH

The 24-year-old lad from Portland, Oreg., didn't make a hit against National League pitching on Tuesday, but he still was the outstanding performer of the American League team. He treated 62,000 fans to a fielding exhibition that was not only thrilling, but decisive in its effect on the National League. Gordon's play may have been an eye-opener to the 62,000, but to his American League colleagues it was merely routine Gordon stuff.

Ball players in his league tabbed him early in last year, in his freshman season, as the sure-fire successor to Charley Gehringer among second basemen. Nobody could do all the things Gordon did and be anything but a superb second baseman. His teammates and seven other clubs in the American League beat the country's fans to the appreciation of Gordon. Fandom, long inured to Gehringer as tops at second base, was slow to class the Gordon fellow with the Tigers' veteran star.

Gordon Sets New Standard for Second Basemen

But now, with his feats in the All-Star game fresh in memory, Gordon has set a new high standard for second basemen. Gehringer, great as he has been, could not do some of the things Gordon does daily in the Yankees' infield. He had Gordon's same sixth sense of anticipating a hard hit, but Gehringer did not have all of Gordon's jumping-jack ability. They both make hard plays look easy, but Gehringer never had Gordon's ability to leap those extra inches for a ground ball or line drive.

Long before the All-Star game, Walter Johnson, who has been around in baseball—for 32 years—was convinced that Joe Gordon is the best second baseman he ever saw. He said so even before the teams took the field Tuesday. He said, in his lazy drawl, "I declare, this Joe Gordon is the best young ball player I ever saw break into the big leagues. The Yankees are a lucky club to come up with a fellow like him. He's got steel springs in his legs and a powerful pair of hands. I never saw anybody play second base the way he does. I'd rather watch him play than anybody I know."

The difference between victory and defeat for the American Leaguers on Tuesday was, with all deference to Bob Feller, to Joe DiMaggio, and Red Ruffing; it was, as we were about to say, Joe Gordon. On two separate occasions he saved the game for the American League.

Gordon literally saved the game for the American League in the sixth inning when with two on base, Mel Ott lashed a hit toward rightfield. Even Joe Gordon couldn't turn that drive into a put-out, but only Joe Gordon could knock it down. That's what happened, Gordon held the drive to an infield hit, and prevented a run from crossing the plate and the tying run from reaching third.

That was the situation when Bob Feller came in to relieve Tommy Bridges, the bases full and one out. And the fact that Arky Vaughan hit into a double play two pitches later was hardly to the credit of Feller. It was a smashing grounder near second base and became a double play only because Gordon dashed over and scooped the ball to Cronin at second with a masterful bit of work.

Joe Reserved Sensationalism for Eighth Inning

But for outright sensationalism, Gordon reserved his best bit until the eighth inning. Joe Medwick never hit a ball more squarely in his life than the smash he made against Feller with two out. It was ticketed for rightfield and extra bases until Gordon, like some spectral, wraithish figure, cut across the path of the ball, caught it with one-hand in full flight and retired the side. When Gordon, still off balance, ran far across the foul line after making the catch in an effort to regain his equilibrium, it was no grandstand show. It was simply a guy trying to recover his feet after making a catch that grandfathers will talk about.

Joe DiMaggio hit the day's only home run in the All-Star game, but DiMaggio didn't make the day's longest hit. That was provided by Joe Gordon, and it resulted in merely an out, but only in Yankee Stadium would it have been an out. DiMaggio's homer was cheap in comparison. It was a lazy fly that barely dropped into the leftfield seats, 300 yards from the plate. A leftfielder in Washington, playing his normal position would have been forced to dash in to catch the same sort of ball. But Gordon's wallop was so well-tagged that it gave Ducky Medwick, a fast outfielder, an opportunity to make a running catch in left center that was the outfielding gem of the ball game.

In retrospect, the 1939 All-Star game was a remarkable adherence to form. The American League won it, as was expected. Joe DiMaggio, the best hitter on the field, hit a home run. Bill Lee, the pitcher in the game with the worst record, took the worst pounding. The Boston Red Sox, a hot club after five straight wins over the Yankees, made the first two American League hits of the game. And Joe Cronin, the worst fielder on the team, made the American League's only error, on a ball hit directly at him, the type that he never could handle well.

N. L. Old-Timers Rout A. L. Team, 8-4

By the Associated Press

Boston, July 12.—A band of National League ancients removed some of the sting of their circuit's latest all-star setback today by giving 30 former American League greats an 8-4 lacing in their oldtimers' game at Fenway Park.

The veterans of the older circuit whaled such famous pitchers as Smoky Joe Wood, Walter Johnson, Cy Young, Chief Bender, and Herb Pennock for a total of 12 hits while their hurlers were holding such sluggers as Tris Speaker, Harry Hooper and Duffy Lewis, the famous Red Sox outfield, in check along with the members of Connie Mack's $100,000 infield, Stuffy McInnis, Eddie Collins, Jack Barry and Frank (Home-Run) Baker.

CY YOUNG

Much of the National leaguers' success could be traced to the fact that their canny leader, Fred Mitchell, recent Harvard coach, inserted such "kids" as Horace Ford, Long George Kelly and Al Spohrer in vital spots in his batting order and they proved that they have not been inactive long enough to dim their batting eyes.

Those "youngsters" were consistent at the plate, but the batting feature of the game was the booming homer that Joe Wood slammed over the left field wall in the eighth after he lined up one of Dr. George (Chippie) Gaw's offerings.

Johnson Hurls 2d Inning for A. L.

Boston, July 12 (AP).—The great Walter Johnson hurled the second inning for the American Leaguers in the Old Timers' game with the National League's Veterans, at Fenway Park.

After Cy Young opened the game and held the representatives of the senior circuit hitless during the first inning, the Big Train came in for the second frame.

It was an unfortunate break that the old Washington fireballer was called upon to open against Al

O'Hara Loses Fight Over Narragansett

Pawtucket, R. I., July 12 (U.P.).—Walter E. O'Hara, one time czar of Rhode Island's racing, tonight went down to a crushing defeat in his fight to regain control of Narragansett Park horse race track.

Al almost completed tabulation of proxies at the annual meeting showed that 201,051 stockholders favored the present management while only 128,949 voted to restore O'Hara.

FIGHTING FOX took command in the opening strides, drew clear before reaching the first turn, was rated along under slight restraint, held on stubbornly when placed under punishment through the stretch and held away to the end. POMPOON, slightly restrained while holding to a forward position, moved up willingly when called upon, but was unable to close any ground through the final furlong despite being placed to a hard drive. BURNING STAR trailed his field in the opening quarter mile, bettered his position gradually when reaching the backstretch, saved ground into the stretch and closed with good energy. CHALLEDON, slow to begin and far back until the closing quarter mile, came stoutly on the outside through the stretch run. HEELFLY moved up with a rush rounding the far turn, but was unable to close any appreciable amount of ground in the closing drive. CLODION failed to respond when called upon. BLIND EAGLE had early speed. HONEY CLOUD faltered after going six furlongs. LIGAROTI was never prominent. PAGLIACCI was unable to keep up after being quickest to begin.

Mrs. Schluderberg, Spencer Overton Win Mixed Two-ball

Mrs. Purdy And Heimer Win Low Net

Mrs. Bean, Mitchell Tie Baltimore Duo For Second Low Net 1 D. C. Team Gets 71

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg, Baltimore city women's champion and Spencer Overton, who shares with Otto Greiner the top amateur ranking of the Monumental City, played an alternate shot round of 75 to win the Maryland State Golf Association mixed two-ball event yesterday at Beaver Dam by a 3-shot margin over 33 other teams.

After losing two strokes to perfect figures on the out nine with a 38, with fives on 6 and 9, the Baltimoreans took advantage of the two par five holes on the back nine for birdies, and stood on the 17th tee even par, a remarkable score for a mixed two-ball round at Beaver Dam.

Win Low Net

Mrs Schluderberg gave the ball a complete turn in addressing a chip shot on the 17th, that cost a stroke, and they finished with a double bogey five Overton's chip shot on the 18th was weak and another five gave them the 75.

Low net went to a host club duo, Mrs. C. E. Purdy, club champion, and E. B. Heimer, who finished in comparative privacy as the photographers and most of tthe onlookers were on their way home, thinking the last team had finished and satisfied with the two-way tie with net 70s.

Taking advantage of good putting that netted several one-putt greens, Mrs. Purdy and Heimer were out in 41 and back in 40 for an 81, and a 13 handicap gave the winning score of 68.

Tie for Second

Mrs. Edward Bean and R. C. Mitchell, also of Beaver Dam, tied a Baltimore duo, Mrs. E. B. Love and C. H. Hoffrogge, Rolling Road, for second low net of 70. The locals had 44, 45, 89, 19—70, and the visitors 47, 50, 97 27—70.

Only one District team was able to break into the net 71 class that figured in the prizes, the other prizes going to Baltimore representatives. Mrs. H. M. Shaffer, Army-Navy, recent winner of the Duffer's crown, and Frank Dunham, one of the better junior golfers of the Service Club, were out in 47, but came back in 37, just 1 over par, a tie for the best score of the day on the back nine. Their 84, 13—71 tied three other teams, Mrs. O. B. Coblentz, Rolling Road, and Henry Hamp, Hillendale, 89, 18—71; Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Kidd, Rolling Road, 100, 29—71; Ruth Downey and Jesse Dowlinf jr., Hillendale, 79, 8—71.

Marion Brown and Charley Malone had the second best gross score of the day, a 78, while in the 79 class was last year's winners with a 72 at Indian Spring, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kreuzburg and Miss Downey and Dowling, Miss M. L. Bell and Erford Barnes.

Castle's 27 Runs Wins CricketMatch

B. Castle, run-producing member of the Washington Cricket Club, is the idol of his teammates these hot afternoon when the club gathers at Langley Park, Md., for a practice session. Castle's runs in the game against Tennyson Cricket Club, of Philadelphia, last Sunday spelled the difference between defeat and victory. He made a total of 27, helping the D. C. delegation to a 71-45 decision.

Hagerstown Is Unimpressed By Tony Galento & Co.'s Visit

Less Than 1,500 See Beer Baron in Referee's Role; Loughran and Joe Jacobs in Entourage

By Al Hailey
A Staff Correspondent.

Hagerstown, Md., July 12.—Two-Ton Tony Galento, Promoter Joe Jacobs and Tommy Loughran came to town tonight to add luster to Matchmaker Jack Laken's "all-star" boxing show, but Hagerstown was unimpressed.

The visiting boxing moguls did walk off with the keys to the city. For a while, however, it was touch and go, as the mayor misplaced the keys some time early in the afternoon and could not produce them when Tony stepped in to referee the main bout—an eight-round affair between Jimmy Cancaster, Washington lightweight, and Jack Carter, of Wilmington.

Mayor Richard Sweeney, Town Councilmen Harry Fridinger and Vernon Miller led a small crowd of loyal spectators out to the Municipal Stadium, but most of Hagerstown stayed home or went for automobile rides. There were less than 1,500 who paid to see the Orange (N. J.) tavernkeeper in the role of a referee.

The Mayor Is Cautious

Mayor Sweeney moved around cautiously as the two fight gentlemen—Galento and Loughran, former world light-heavyweight champion—appeared.

"I did not think it wise to enter the same ring with you fellows, so I am sending you the keys to the city at your hotel," he informed the battle-scarred pair. That was all right with Loughran, but Galento pouted as he crawled through the ropes to take a bow.

"Listen, I don't want no funny business," he tells the fighters before lowering his voice to give further instructions. Tony explained before entering the ring that "I never clown when I'm third man in there, I referee."

"Too Legitimate"

After doing his bit in the ring, Tony climbed down to explain his carelessness recently against Joe Louis.

"I was too legitimate in there. I could have given this old bang-bang stuff all the time, but I was a gentleman," he said sadly. "But I'll get him after I knock out Lou Nova in September."

Jacobs also insists Tony will knock out Lou "in two or three rounds," he added, however, that the fight is undecided upon yet as he is holding out for Philadelphia and Ray Carlen wants New York.

Ed Brockman refereed the preliminary battles and helped things along by urging the boys to get up off the floor while he counted over them. Knockdowns were plentiful, and there were two knockouts despite Brockman's pleadings.

Laken, manager of Carter, in addition to his matchmaking duty, took a severe financial beating and said he can't carry on the newly born fight business in Hagerstown. Carter took care of Lancaster with ease in the main go.

Miss Tainter Gains Junior Golf Finals

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 12.—Slim Georgia Tainter, of Fargo, N. D., who began her championship drive by eliminating Medalist Jeanne Cline, of Bloomington, Ill., reached the finals of the Women's Western Junior Golf tournament today with a comparatively easy victory over Ruth More, of Evanston, Ill., 4 and 3.

In the title match tomorrow, Miss Tainter will meet Mary Wilder, of Glencoe, Ill., who put together six pars and a birdie in the 16 holes required for her to defeat Mary Jane Garman of East Chicago, Ind., today 3 and 2.

Miss Tainter, playing her best golf of the tournament, finished the first nine in 39, two over par, and was 5 up at the turn.

Miss Cline reached the consolation finals with a 1-up triumph over Frances Ann McCanna, of Rockford, Ill.

Hunt, Sutter Lose inDoubles In State Tennis

D. C. Veteran, However, Scores Easily to Gain Round of Eight

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, July 12.—Topped by the biggest upset of the tournament thus far in the doubles, the Maryland State Open tennis tournament moved into the quarter-finals in one division and the third round in the other today at the Baltimore Country Club.

The upset was the elimination of the Number One team — Gilbert Hunt, of Washington, and Ernie Sutter, New Orleans—in the second round of the doubles by Billy Hoogs, of Hawaii, and Tate Coulthard, of California, 6-3, 6-4.

Hunt and Sutter were beaten largely because of the latter's errors, but not entirely, for Hunt contributed some faulty shots at most inopportune times.

Hoogs is a very capable all-court player, and Coulthard, with good service and overhead, is an able double partner. Reputation on the other side of the net did not bother them a bit as they answered volley with volley and showed just a little more determination to go after the hard ones and keep the ball in play.

The eight who remain in the singles running include seven seeded players and one unseeded man, Edward Aloo, from San Francisco.

Hunt, the defending champion, won two rounds easily today in straight sets, the victims being Warren Christner, of Texas, 6-2, 6-4, and Bob Peacock, University of California 6-4, 6-3.

In the quarter-finals round tomorrow afternoon Hunt will encounter the tenth seeded player—Henry Prusoff, of Washington State.

SINGLES

Third round—Welby Van Horn, California (7), defeated David Johnsen, Washington, 6—2, 2—6, 6—3.

Gilbert Hunt, Washington (1) defeated Warren Christner, Texas, 6—2, 6—4.

DOUBLES

First round—Gilbert Hunt, Washington, and Ernie Sutter, New Orleans (1) defeated John Curtis and Ed Rogers, both of New York, 6—2, 9—7.

Kent Dalby and W. C. Wickham, jr., both of Washington, defeated David Brack and Dan Roberts, both of California, by default.

Second round—David Johnsen, Washington, and Maurice Fincher, Texas, defeated Carl Hartman and Leon Block, both of Baltimore, 6—2, 6—0.

Billy Hoogs, Hawaii, and Tate Coulthard, California, defeated Hunt and Sutter, 6—3, 6—4.

Bobby Low and Larry Dee, both of California, defeated Joel Baker and Pat Deck, both of Washington, 6—3, 6—3.

Betty Jacobs Gains3dRound In Net Tourney

"Snooky" Stevens Beats Ruth Fletcher After 3 Sets, 6—4, 4—6, 7—5

The chances of Betty Jacobs, of Montrose, graduating from the junior girls playground tennis championships in 1938 to the senior division crown this year were enhanced yesterday when the little racquet wielder advanced to the third round of the D. C. Department of Playgrounds tournament. She defeated Dorothy Williams, Chevy Chase, without the latter taking a game, 6—0, 6—0.

The outstanding battle of the day's play was recorded in the match between "Snooky" Stevens, of Hoover, and Virginia Avenue's Ruth Fletcher. "Snooky" took the victory after a prolonged three-set match, 6—4, 4—6, 7—5.

Shirley Coombs, the 1938 runner-up from Happy Hollow, continued in the race when she defeated Dorothy Barkley, of Montrose, in straight sets by love scores.

A. A. U. Swimming Meet Monday

Hardy Pearce, manager of the Airport Pool, is accepting entries for his pool's open swimming and diving meet to be held on Monday night with the sanction of the District A. A. U.

There are three swimming events open for men and three for women. These are the 60-yard free style, 60-yard backstroke and 60-yard breast stroke, for each class. In addition, a men's diving competition is scheduled requiring contestants to execute four compulsory and four optional dives.

Pearce reports a large number of entrants for both swimming and diving events. Entries will close on Saturday. The entry fee is 25 cents for each contestant. Handsome trophies will be awarded winners in each event.

Bleacher seats are being erected to accommodate spectators. The admission charge will be 15 cents.

Goodman Lost To Reds for 2 Weeks

New York, July 12 (AP).—Ival Goodman, Cincinnati Reds' outfielder injured in yesterday's all-star game, emerged from St. Elizabeth's Hospital today with a dislocated left shoulder that probably will keep him on the bench at least two weeks.

Goodman was hurt attempting to make a diving catch of George Selkirk's line drive to rightfield in the fourth inning of the all-star fray won by the American League, 3-1.

Public Parks Tennis Entries Close Tonight

Entrance to the annual Public Parks tournament starting Saturday at the Reservoir courts, Sixteenth and Kennedy streets northwest, will close at 6 o'clock tonight at The Tennis Shop, 1019 Fifteenth street northwest.

Players must not be a member of, nor enjoy the privilege granted to a member on the tennis courts of a privately owned tennis club.

Seeking Game

The Noland Plumbers are seeking a game for Saturday with some strong unlimited team. Call Mr. Moore at National 0050.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, July 12.—The feature of tomorrow night's light heavyweight championship of the world, to be fought for at the Garden by Melio Bettina and Billy Conn, is that the winner will not only be named world's light heavyweight champion of New York but also world's light heavyweight champion of the N. B. A. This is about the first time the boxing board boys have gotten together since they ratified the Marquis of Queensberry rules and endorsed rubber mouthpieces.

CONSIDINE

The unanimity of opinion in the light-heavy division is now such that there are only three other world's light heavyweight champions. John Henry Lewis, whose left eye vision has been found to be 18 inches, is still world's champion of Missouri. The world's light heavyweight champion of Australia is Ron Richards, who won it by beating Gus Lesnevich, who is not recognized anywhere as champ. The world's light heavyweight champion of England is either Len Harvey or Jock McAvoy, both of whom became hot applicants for the title by losing to Lewis.

Conn, a good-looking boy who fights like an old boxing master, has the unique distinction of getting a shot at the title in his first appearance as a light heavyweight. Not only that but he rules a slight favorite, after being as much as 1-to-2 when the betting began.

Campaigned in Four Divisions

He won't be 22 until October, but he has been fighting long enough to have campaigned as a lightweight, welter, middle and now light heavy. He'll be a heavyweight within a few months—the way he is sprouting—and the best boxing heavyweight the game has seen since Tunney.

Conn's record reads like that of an old time fancy Dan. He has had 51 fights and knocked out only seven of his opponents, two more than Jim Corbett knockout out during his fighting life. Billy has won 37 fight by decisions, and lost seven the same way. Bettina has a hardier record. Against heavier opponents he has fought 53 times, knocked out 21 of his guys, won decisions from 24 of them, drawn twice, lost five decisions and been tossed out of the ring once. He is right-handed, but fights with a left-hander's stance, the result of an effort, some years ago, to improve his left.

If Tony Galento is a throwback to a lustier day in the ring game, the Conn-Bettina fight provides some additional reincarnating along this line. The only thing that will be missing tonight, when 3,000 citizens of Bettina's home town of Beacon, N. Y., march from Grand Central Station to the Garden will be torchlights and the sight of Bettina, walking at the head of the parade, stroking a fierce black mustache. The Beaconites, who haven't had anything like Bettina to root for since Cornwallis was run out of town, are bringing along three bands and have gained permission from Mayor LaGuardia to stage the parade.

3,000 Home-Towners to See Bout

It is a turnout that harkens back to the day when fist-fighting was a matter of great civic necessity and when the second most important man in town—next to the mayor—was the official bullyboy who defended the fair name of the village in any neutral shed. There are only 12,000 inhabitants of Beacon, and the 3,000 who will attend the fight represent most of the able-bodied males of the town. Many merchants are closing their shops to join the expedition. They will parade around the ring at the Garden and woe to Gen. John J. Phelan if he grows apoplectic in the face and tries to shoo them away.

Most of the betting on the fight is on the chances of a knockout. Not even the Beaconites in their blind loyalty to Bettina believe he can win a decision over as crafty a boxer as Conn. So they are betting that Bettina will knock him out. The official price is 4 to 1 against Conn's being stiffened.

The New York State Athletic Commission and the N. B. A. arrived at tonight's joint blessing on the Conn-Bettina match by different paths. The New York fistic fathers peremptorily relieved John Henry Lewis of his title because he wouldn't fight a long-armed Negro named Tiger Jack Fox, and then named Bettina champion when he knocked out Fox in eight rounds. The N. B. A. didn't recognize this action, but when John Henry Lewis didn't defend his title within the required six months the N. B. A. warned him, and then later declared his title vacant when an examination proved he was going blind.

Southeast Boys Club Triumphs, 1-0

With Tommy Kennedy pitching one-hit ball, and on the strength of Moe Whittington's home run in the eighth, Southeast Boys Club took a 1-to-0 decision over Addison Chevrolet yesterday at Chevy Chase Playground.

GEOFFREY CHEW

Geoffrey Chew

Wes Taylor, manager of the Y. M. C. A. insect nine, says young Chew is the town's brightest catching prospect, and if Wes says it it must be so. Wes himself was an All-High backstop at Eastern for three years, after which he had a tryout in the minors and finally settled for the regular mitt job with George Washington University.

"First place," says Wes, "Chew has a natural catching build. Husky, almost chunky, and despite his mere 14 years he's already tall as most kids of 18. Besides his talent for handling pitchers, he learns easily and willingly."

Chew's ability to learn was most recently shown after a short course in the "long throw" down to second. He was told to lower his heaves and aim directly at the baseman. The result was three "stealers" caught in a game against Washington Boys Club, and as many more against Merrick.

Son of a local writer, Chew has prospects of being Western High's regular catcher next year with the graduation of Jake Hilleary. The Raiders used him as a pinch hitter last season, which gives some idea of his stick work.

Ellbeesee, Paying $39.70, Wins Feature at Hagerstown

Utterback's Entry Scores Easy Victory

Filly Rushes to Front And Is Never Headed; Double Pays $58.30; Emma H. Runs 2d

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent.

Hagerstown, Md., July 12.—A. H. Utterback's Ellbeesee, whose name sounds like the initials of a broadcasting company, won the Radio Station WJEJ Purse, today's feature race witnessed by some 5,000 fans. Hugging the rail as if she were the inside horse on a merry-go-round, the 4-year-old daughter of Henry L., made every post a winning one and upset the calculation of the favorite players to provide a $39.70 payoff to her scattered backers.

Ellbeesee carried 104 pounds, the light weight of the party, and won her first purse in eight starts over a two-year period. She finished the 1 1-16 mile course two and a half lengths in advance of R. B. Hall's Emma H., with Mrs. G. F. Cook's Chief Evergreen in third position.

Jockey Danny Scocca, who escaped serious injury in a recent spectacular spill at Charles Town, had the mount on Ellbeesee. He took the filly to the front in the opening jumps. Ginger Hackle, owned by Mrs. A. A. Horowitz, of Bowie, Md., was closest to the ultimate winner in the early stages with Emma H. nearby.

After a half mile Ellbeesee shook off Ginger Hackle and opened a good lead, which she failed to relinguish to the finish line. Scocca took little chance, however, that his long-shot charge would stop and kept her to a drive to the end.

A pair of horses with fair individual prices teamed to produce a $58.30 payoff in the daily double. Jockey Woody Kirk rode Mary's Lassie to the wire ahead of Wagold and Deblin in the first race to bring backers of the 2-year-old filly a $10.50 mutuel. Jockey Leon Garrett put the finishing touches on the twin wager when he got Scoutallow up in the final stride to nose out Sun Tempest in the socnd race. Scoutallow was a $14.40 shot.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARY'S LASSIE, $10.50, $5.40, $3.30; WAGOLD, $5.10, $2.90; DERLIN (entry), $3.10.

MARY'S LASSIE, forward factor from start, went to front approaching backstretch and was kept to drive to hold WAGOLD safe. The latter came willingly under intermittent punishment in closing test. DERLIN was hard ridden throughout. DARK PONY was held safe. BREAKING WAVES had good early speed, but ran out badly at turns. MISS PILGRIM and ARROW GIRL were off slowly.

SECOND RACE—About 6½ furlongs. Purse, $400. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post; 2:47½. Off 2:51½. Winner, Miss T. V. Andrews' b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCOUTALLOW, $14.40, $3.90, $3.40; SUN TEMPEST, $2.90, $2.70; GAY BRIDE, $5.70.

SCOUTALLOW, steadied along closest to pace of SUN TEMPEST, came to outside of leader entering stretch and wore down rival to win in concluding strides. SUN TEMPEST, off in front, saved ground while setting pace and held on gamely under hard drive. GAY BRIDE raced close up along rail from start and showed good effort. HURDY GURDY made repeated challenges on outside, but weakened nearing end. PRINCE PETTY raced wide.

Daily Double, Mary's Lassie and Scoutallow, Paid $58.30.

THIRD RACE—About 6½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward; fillies and mares. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:23. Off 3:26½. Winner, C. Beal's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VERITAS, $8.40, $3.60, $2.70; TIMETTA, $3.20, $2.80; CLYMENE, $3.70.

VERITAS, steadied along within striking distance of leaders to backstretch, came around horses nicely to take command and held on gamely under light drive. TIMETTA raced WHITE SWEETS into defeat and fought it out gamely with winner. CLYMENE raced on inside and could not get through, came to outside for racing room and was gaining gradually through stretch. WHITE SWEETS weakened after pressing pace. The others were not prominent.

FOURTH RACE—About 5 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:00. Off 4:01. Winner, Bernard Bond's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SMALL CHANGE, $7.20, $3.50, $2.30; WAY OUT, $5.50, $2.40; KITTY'S RIVAL (entry), $2.10.

SMALL CHANGE, off alertly and saving ground at turns, held away to end under good handling. WAY OUT had much speed, ran wide at bends and was held safe in closing test. KITTY'S RIVAL was forwardly placed from beginning and showed good effort. SUN BELLE ran close up and had no excuses. SHINDIG was away poorly. HYPH broke down and was pulled up.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:32½. Off 4:33½. Winner, A. H. Utterback's dk. br. f. (4), by Henry L.—Queen Nassau. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:53.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ELLBEESEE, $39.70, $16.00, $6.70; EMMA H., $14.10, $7.30; CHIEF EVERGREEN, $3.80.

GINGER HACKLE, hard ridden while pressed by GINGER HACKLE in early stages, drew out in final half mile and won under drive. EMMA H., forwardly placed from start, closed with good energy. CHIEF EVERGREEN, allowed to settle into best stride, failed to rally. GINGER HACKLE weakened after pressing pace. HAGERSTOWN BOY was held safe. PUKKA HEAVEN had some early speed.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:07. Off 5:08½. Winner, J. R. Palmer's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KESWICK HILL, $11.20, $4.90, $3.60; AUFOIN, $3.80, $2.90; WAUGH SCOUT, $3.40.

KESWICK HILL, closer than usual in early stages, came around leaders entering stretch and was up under good handling. AUFOIN was well placed from beginning and held on well. WAUGH SCOUT set good pace, but Jockey Churchill lost a stirrup in stretch run and could not do his mount justice.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:43½. Off 5:44½. Winner, Mrs. J. Paoli's ce. h. Two Stellar Bouts Top Mat Card at Arena

Singh-Baxter, McCoy-Clinstock Featured; Cab Driver Seeks $500

Steve Thompson, the 250-pound cab driver who is the latest taker of Nanjo Singh's offer of $500 to the man who can break his "cobra clutch," was still unshaken in his decision to go through with the stunt last night as the regular Thursday entertainment at Turner's Arena drew steadily nearer.

Thompson will step into the role Walter Gray, perennial rassle heckler, was glad to vacate when hostilities get under way tonight. Thompson will dare Singh, a Hindu, to do his most devilish, and according to his friends he has a good chance of breaking the awful hold. To cheer him on, a veritable army of cab drivers is expected at the doings.

There will be professional wrestling as usual, tonight's features bringing together Singh and Laverne Baxter, the North Carolina wild man, and Jim Clinstock and Bibber McCoy. Either bout might develop enough action to chill the blood in your veins. Both are return bouts, brought back because the previous encounters did not definitely settle the issue or because they were interesting enough to warrant a return.

Ed Kingsley, of Salt Lake City, who was 2 over par with a 72 at the halfway station, blazed around in 68 today to finish with an even par 140.

Gus Moreland, of Poria, Ill., and Walter Emery, of Tulsa, Okla., both former Walker Cup players, who were tied with Hamilton at the end of yesterday's round, sliped badly today.

Moreland, who won the Western in 1932, woung up with 69, 74—143. He had his trouble on the first nine holes, taking a 4-over-par 39, but was in with a 35.

Emery, Oklahoma amateur champion and former national collegiate titleholder, found his difficulty on the second nine and took a 75 for a 36-hole total of 144. He went out in 36 and came back in 39.

Spohrer, who ended his career with the Boston Braves only a few seasons ago. Spohrer pounced on one of Walter's offerings for a single and he was batted around by Long George Kelley, who keeps in baseball trim by coaching the Bees, and Eddie Eayres, to score the first of the successful National Leaguers' eight runs.

Then Johnson got into his old-time groove and retired the side by forcing Jack Onslow, now a baseball radio broadcaster, to fly out and Jack Ryan to ground out to the infield. Walter then closed in a burst of glory by fanning Lefty George Tyler, one of the three pitchers Miracleman George Stallings depended upon when he led his amazing Braves to the 1924 world Championship in four straight against the Athletics.

With Bobby Estalella now gracing the bench due to his protracted hitting slump, Harris is turning the centerfield job over to the team of Sammy West and Rookie Johnny Welaj, who will alternate against left and right-handed pitching. George Case, following his shortcomings as a centerfielder, has been definitely switched to leftfield.

Third Baseman Buddy Lewis, absent from the Nats' last five games due to a damaged left knee, will return to the line-up today against the Browns.

Errors Beat Naval Air Nine, 19 to 8

Though it won the first half in the United States Government Baseball League with little or no trouble, Naval Air nine was the victim of one of the worst beatings a league team has taken this season yesterday when it was soundly thrashed by Gas Light, 19 to 8. Ten assorted errors, committed at the most costly times, finally lost the game for the Airmen.

J. S. Spence Bags 260-Yard Ace on Tenth at Kenwood

J. S. Spence scored an ace on one of the District's longest par 3s yesterday, the tenth at Kenwood, using a driver from the tee on the 260-yard hole.

Spence's drive hit short of the green, rolled on and trickled in the cup. Father Calhoun witnessed the perfect shot. He shot 52 for the nine holes.

Bill Ackerman

—On Fishing

Chumming rockfish with green shrimp in Eastern Bay has slowed up considerably during the past six or seven days, and unless the time spent taking large hardheads out of the "chumline" is counted as equally good fun, you'd better wait until this week-end when the moon will be right again.

ACKERMAN

Capt. R. M. Rogers reports the big stripers holding up at Piney Point. In fact, he says they are there in greater numbers than he has ever before seen. And for something to fall back upon, just in case they aren't in a striking mood, there are trout and large Norfolk spot at Ragged Point.

The stage is all set for the tournament of the National Capital Casting Club on Saturday and Sunday, July 15 and 16. The National Capital Parks Service, through its superintendent, C. Marshall Finnan, has placed ample room along both sides of the Lincoln Memorial Reflecting Pool at the disposal of the club so that the action will be continuous in all types of casting.

With the National Tournament on the West Coast this year, this meeting of the Eastern Association will be unusually attractive. Most of the 19 member clubs have signified their intention of being represented. In fact there should be 75 or more casters from seven or eight States. Lee Sens, national distance champion of Baltimore, will be on hand to participate in the distance events on Saturday afternoon, and hopes to beat his record of more than 425 feet.

Out in Wisconsin they seem to have a real use for carp—one that, if our personal ideas were alone to be considered, could be used equally well in several States here in the East; for, where this German importation gets a start, bass and other fish seldom find the same waters to their liking.

In Wisconsin, there is in the Department of Conservation a section for the removal of rough fish from the streams of the State. During the past year they have spread on the farmlands of Dane County as fertilizer more than a million pounds of carp.

Now, in search for additional means of disposal of these fish, the department has recently dehydrated four tons of them in a commercial fertilizer experiment.

Fishermen report unusually good fishing following carp seining, particularly a marked increase in crappies and pike.

A letter from William E. Waesche, vice president of the Prince Georges County Game and Fish Conservation Association: We held our annual fishing party last Saturday . . . followed your suggestion and engaged boats from Johnny Manifold at Deal. Hats off to the captain for a swell trip. We received the best of service and accommodations. There were about 50 in the party. We fished off Sharpes Island and boated over 300 hardheads, most of which weighted between two and three and one-half pounds. Believe it or not, the ladies took the spotlight by catching more and larger fish.

"Nine cash prizes were distributed. Desmond Walker and Mrs. Belt Townsend, of Mitchellville, and Elmer Acken, of Takoma Park, took top hoonrs."

"I feel consideration should be given to the Manifold Brothers, for this successful party, in your column."

Well, there it is in your own words. We are sending the letter on to Johnny.

Russell Beats Brewers, Gains League Lead

Under the personal supervision of George Russell, president of its sponsor, Russell Motor nine went into first place in the Industrial Baseball League yesterday, beating Heurich Brewers with a three-run rally in the final inning, 8 to 5.

The loss dropped Heurich to a tie for third place in the neck-and-neck race, Russell started the scoring in the third and grabbed a 3-0 lead that the Beermen overcame in the third and fourth to make the score 5-3.

Grace Beats Dixie, 13-7

Jimmie's Restaurant, first-half winner in the Sherwood Playgrounds Softball League, slugged its way to a 13-7 victory over one of its bitterest rivals, Dixie Tavern, last night at Seat Pleasant Stadium. Paul Grace was the winning pitcher and B. Burke supplied most of the stickwork.

Noyes Ten Scores

The Noyes Playground softball team defeated the Edgewood club, 5-4, yesterday. Herson of the winners allowed but 4 hits.

Dutch Bankers Buy 5 Per Cent Of Douglas Air

California Company Sells 29,320 Shares For $1,861,820

Special Dispatch to The Post

Santa Monica, Calif., July 12.—Arrangements for the sale to investors abroad of 29,320 shares of its treasury stock have been completed by the Douglas Aircraft Co. of Santa Monica, President Donald W. Douglas announced here today.

The block of shares, approximately 5 per cent of the stock now outstanding, will be delivered to a Dutch banking group headed by Nederlandsche Handel-Maatschappij and comprising the Amsterdamsche Banks, De Twentsche Bank, LaBouchere & Co. and Warburg & Co., all of Amsterdam; R. Mees and Zoonen, of Rotterdam, and Heldring and Pierson, of The Hague, subject to receipt of a permit from the corporation commissioner of California, approval by the Securities and Exchange Commission and the acceptance of its listing by the New York and Los Angeles Stock Exchanges. The price to be paid by the Dutch bankers is $63.50 a share.

Backlog at High

With this announcement William H. Lewis, comptroller of Douglas, released figures on results of operations for the six months ended May 31, disclosing an all-time high in the company's back log, extensive new development and experimental work, and a satisfactory increase over the previous period in the indicated earnings of the company.

Negotiations were handled through Kuhn, Loeb & Co., of New York. The new stock will increase the outstanding share capital from 570,680 to 600,000 shares.

Decision to accept the offer of the Dutch syndicate, President Douglas explained, was in line with the company's policy of taking advantage of its strong financial position in its fiscal and industrial purchases. The proceeds will be used, Mr. Douglas said, to help finance the $47,000,000 back-log of orders from United States and foreign customers.

Washington Gas Files Stock Offer To Effect Merger

Washington Gas Light Co. filed a registration statement yesterday under the securities act of 1933 covering 362,588 shares of no par value common stock, all of which is outstanding. The stock being offered is beneficially owned by Washington & Suburban Companies, it stated, and the proceeds from the sale are to be received by that company. The offering will include 35,000 shares of common stock issued in 1939 to Washington & Suburban Companies at an assigned value of $30 a share in consideration of the transfer to Washington Gas Light Co. of all outstanding shares of capital stock and substantially all of the capital indebtedness of Alexandria Gas Co. and Washington Suburban Gas Co. In addition to the shares being offered, there are 62,412 shares of the company's common stock issued and outstanding which are owned by others, it is stated.

The First Boston Corporation and Glore, Forgan & Co., both of New York City, will be the principal underwriters. The prospectus states that to facilitate the offering it is intended to stabilize the price of the common stock on the Washington Stock Exchange and elsewhere.

Oil on Hand Enough To Last 143 Days

The Bureau of Mines yesterday placed the May total of all oils at 558,984,000 barrels, or 143 days' supply. This compared with 558,739,000 in April this year and 590,469,000 in May, 1938.

Finished gasoline stocks decreased by 3,300,000 barrels in May, the bureau reported, and the daily average production of crude oil in May rose to 3,566,000 barrels, a gain of 49,000 barrels over April.

Short Interest Declines in June

New York, July 12 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange announced today that the short interest existing at the close of business June 30 was 651,906 shares, compared with 667,804 shares on May 31. Both totals excluded odd lots carried by odd-lot dealers.

Total short interest in all odd-lot dealrs accounts June 30 was 45,470 shares, compared with 57,750 May 31.

Key Industry Gains Replace Midsummer Lag

New York, July 12 (AP).—A Wall Street Journal survey of industry and commerce, published today, showed substantial gains in a number of key groups, instead of the usual summer drag.

Mail order and chain stores were said to be doing 10 per cent better business than a year ago, department stores 3 per cent better.

Replacement tire sales were reported at a six-year peak, gasoline consumption at a new high level, and automobile sales picking up contra-seasonally.

Building materials and construction contracts were said to be on the increase, machine tool orders steadily increasing, copper production and sales, and chemical business all running higher.

Orders for electrical equipment were described as expanding, utility third quarter profits were predicted at 10 to 15 per cent above last year, steel operators about as well as could be expected.

Rail car loadings increase augured continued high levels of traffic, it was said, and rail maintenances orders were continuing satisfactorily.

Aircraft manufacturing is enjoying a spurt and airlines traffic is holding up.

Cotton Futures Yield to Brisk Selling Wave

New York, July 12 (AP).—New crop deliveries were hit by heavy cotton market selling today while the near month steadied after an early sinking spell. The closing range was 1 point higher to 13 lower. Brokers said the selling was based largely on the belief the market had discounted too high an export subsidy. The rate now believed most likely, traders said, was around 1¼ cents a pound.

Foreign accounts contributed to the drop by profit taking on straddle operations. New crops also stumbled into considerable hedging and additional pressure followed a favorably interpreted Government weather report.

Issuance of 33 notices against July contracts started liquidation in the spot month, but the notices were quickly stopped and offerings soon became scarce.

Cottonseed Oil

In the wildest break in several years a cottonseed oil contract sold below 6 cents for the first time since July, 1934. Recurring flurries of general liquidation left closing prices 20 to 32 points lower.

Buyers confidence appeared shaken by prospects for the third largest pig crop in 16 years, plus indications of keener competition from corn oil, soy bean oil and many other seed by-products.

Sales totaled 281 contracts: July, *5.95; September, 6.00; October, 6.02; December, 6.12, and January, *6.61.

There were rumors of crude oil sales in the Southeast at 5¼ cents but brokers were reluctant to quote the market on other than a nominal basis.

Cottonseed Oil Sells Under 6 Cents

New York, July 12 (AP).—In the widest break in several years a cottonseed oil contract sold below 6 cents for the first time since July, 1934. Recurring flurries of general liquidation left closing prices 20 to 32 points lower.

A bullish construction on the June consumption report, which at 258,851 barrels was fully 9,600 barrels above expectations in the trade, had only a momentarily steadying effect.

Wheat, Corn Prices Fall to Season's Lows

Weakness Abroad And Reports of Big Crops Aid Decline

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 12. — Wheat for September and December delivery and all corn futures plunged to new season lows today as weakness developed in foreign markets and generally favorable crop reports were received from North American grain belts.

Wheat closed ½@1⅛ lower, compared with the previous close, and corn 1¼@1⅞ lower.

Fear of damage from scorching temperatures yesterday and today in spring wheat and corn belts steadied the markets early, but no important reports of heat damage were received and the official forecast later indicated relief for parts of the territory tomorrow. Iowa's corn crop condition of 94 per cent of normal was reported to be the best for July 1 since 1925.

Late selling pressure on December corn—representing the new crop—carried that contract to 45⅞, down 2⅛ from the previous close. July and September were down 1⅜ at the extreme.

The sell-off in corn, as well as closing Liverpool wheat quotations that were 1 to ⅜ off, affected wheat, July dropping to 64⅞, September to 65¾, both off 1¼, and December to 67, off 1½ cent.

Other North American markets closed lower. Wheat at Winnipeg finished ⅜@1 cent off, at Minneapolis ⅝@⅞ lower and at Kansas City ⅞@1⅝ off. Rotterdam closed unchanged to ⅜ off.

Broad Rally Cheers Wall Street Trading Rises to Near Million Mark Bond Market Advances With Stocks

New York, July 12.—It has been a long time since the term "best since" could be used in writing about the stock market, but today, just as the villain was about to catch up with the beautiful maiden, the hero put in one of his brief appearances. The big board enjoyed a turnover of 914,180 shares, which was the best since May 25. Individual speculative favorites advanced in price by 1 to 3 points, and the gain of the composite average of the market, amounting to 0.79 point, was the best since May 24. Even more important was the very apparent improvement in sentiment in the financial district, and this was the best since away back in the dim past.

Facts and rumors combined to clear the skies. And with optimism breeding more optimism the word passed around the Street that something else was in the wind and that big news soon would be announced. All of which may or may not be true. But even without it, there was enough to start the ball rolling today.

Anti-Dictator Air Display

The display of strength of British and French air forces heightened the belief that aggression against small states in Europe will be slowed down and that the business of making war may turn more to defensive tactics. At least there is a basis for regarding this as the situation for the immediate future.

On the domestic front the staving off of neutrality legislation until the next session of Congress was seen as removing the main barrier to an early adjournment of Congress. The fact that the Administration received one of its most telling setbacks in this episode was seen as a reflection of stiffening opposition to the New Deal, and to that extent was regarded as ground gained, even by some of those who felt that the Administration should be given its way in the field of neutrality.

Government and WPA

The firm stand of the Federal Government against the WPA strike and the virtually unanimous public disapproval of the attitude assumed in this important matter by the A. F. of L. did its share to improve sentiment in the street. It is now assumed that the strike will crumble away but during its brief existence it furnished us with an idea of what can be expected when a ruling political group starts to curry the favor of a pressure group. There is no end to the demands once the recipients feel that it is their votes and not their welfare that is closest to the hearts of the lawmakers.

Consequently the opposition voiced by the President against this particular strike, and the similar stand taken by others in the Administration, is meeting with well deserved approval. The president of the A. F. of L., by inference at least, recognized today that his policies have lost when he stated that the remedy lies with Congress rather than through strikes on WPA projects. Referring of the question to Congress is just what those who have bought stocks and bonds in American institutions would wish, for here would be a battle ground where the issue could be fought out to a decision; and only one decision is possible if we are to continue under the kind of government which has given us what he have today. Consequently the apparent breakdown of the strike and the opposition which is developing to it played its share in today's bullish demonstration.

Bond Market Higher

Listed bond trading reflected a modest improvement in speculative sentiment today. Turnover of $6,020,000 was somewhat higher than has been common of late, but the figure still is far under normal. Bonds of all sorts with a speculative tinge managed to move a little higher. Best rated investment securities were dull. In the foreign department movements were small and irregular.

United States Treasury bonds were mostly lower by small fractions, although a few inactive issues improved. Guaranteed bonds of the farm and home corporations were neglected. Highly rated power and light bonds in the corporate division attracted some buying, but telephone bonds, railroad issues and industrials were not in demand.

The speculative rails developed the best tone of recent weeks. Gains of a point or two were common in the medium priced interest paying bonds, and some improvement also occurred among borderline and default carrier issues. Local traction bonds were irregular, with trading confined to a few issues. Holding company bonds and industrial convertibles advanced readily on the improvement in related equities. Communications bonds surged forward on favorable earnings reports. Other special groups were moderately better.

Latin-American default bonds developed some strength in the foreign section, but Argentine Governments were dull. Polish and Italian issues were neglected, while German bonds were firm, where traded. Scandinavian, Belgian, Canadian and Australian issues showed fractional improvement.

Auto Industry Provides Work For 6,380,000

New York, July 12 (AP).—Employment generated by automobile manufacturing provides livelihood for 6,380,000 persons, the Automobile Manufacturers Association said today.

The organization's twenty-first edition of "Automobile Facts and Figures," soon to be distributed, will show almost ten times as many people are employed selling, servicing and driving automobiles as are engaged in producing them.

Directly engaged in producing automobiles, parts and tires, not counting 98,000 engaged in petroleum refining, are something like 616,000 people. Total employment, including distribution and servicing in road construction and in highway transportation, aggregates almost 5,870,000, and around 6,380,000 if raw materials workers, who may properly be allocated to the auto field, are taken into account, the association said.

Professionals Sell Stocks as Small Traders Buy

By the Associated Press.

A survey by the securities commission showed yesterday that during recent years the little trader on the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges had been buying more stocks than they sold, while professional traders were on the selling side of the market. The study covered the period from early 1935 to June 30, 1938.

The report said that during the early part of the price decline from April to August, 1937, net selling of exchange members increased, while the little traders were the principal net buyers.

As the price decline took on momentum from August, 1937, to April, 1938, the bulk of the net selling came from the round-lot dealings of domestic non-exchange members, notably investment companies. Round-lot trading consists of transactions of 100 shares or multiples thereof.

During this price shrinkage stock exchange members were also net sellers. On the other hand, the odd-lot, or small traders, were "almost the only net purchasers."

In Wall Street there is an old maxim that the time to sell is when the little fellow is buying, and conversely that the time to buy is when the small trader is selling.

Shipbuilding In U. S. Lower For Quarter

But Merchant Volume Stays Second to Great Britain and Ireland

New York, July 12.—An increase of 155,000 gross tons in the volume of merchants vessels being built throughout the world is shown in a report to be issued tomorrow by Lloyd's Register of Shipping, covering the quarter ended June 30 last. The returns include all merchant ships of 100 gross tons each, and upwards, being constructed in all the maritime countries except Russia, for which no authentic returns are available.

The gain in the quarter just ended was due in the main to conditions in Great Britain and Ireland, which reported an increase of nearly 200,000 gross tons, or more than sufficient to offset the declines for the United States, and for the other maritime countries, taken as a group.

This is in sharp contrast to the quarter ended March 31 last, in which a marked decline in construction was reported for Great Britain and Ireland, compared with gains for the United States and the other countries. The United States, however, retains its position as second only to Great Britain and Ireland in the volume of merchant shipbuilding under way.

Decrease in Germany

In addition to a decline for the United States of 29,000 gross tons, Germany reported a decrease of 33,000 tons, and France a loss of 2,000 tons. For Japan there was a gain of 2,000 tons, for Italy, about 8,000 tons, and for Sweden, 33,000.

In the following gross tonnage table, Lloyd's Register shows the output during the last two quarters in Great Britain and Ireland, the United States, and the other maritime countries taken as a group:

	June 30	March 31
G. Brit. & Ire.	791,455	596,903
U. S.	391,824	420,931
Other countris	1,676,013	1,685,833
World total	2,859,292	2,703,667

As a result of the changes during the quarter just past, Great Britain and Ireland are now building 28 per cent of the world's merchant shipping, as against 22 per cent at the end of March; while the United States now has over 13 per cent, as compared with 16 at the end of March; and the share of the other countries, taken as a group, has declined, from 62 per cent to 59 per cent.

June Gold Imports Fall to $240,449,975

The Commerce Department said yesterday that June imports of gold declined to $240,449,975. The amount although large, was only half the size of the May figure, and only a third the amount of the peak spring import month during the last Czecho-Slovakian crisis.

June imports included $55,080,870 from the Netherlands; $5,643,576 from Switzerland; $128,195,620 from England; $17,209,853 from Canada; $3,280,096 from Mexico; $2,106,575 from Colombia; $14,098,115 from Japan; $3,843,416 from the Philippine Islands, and $5,677,262 from Australia.

Associated Gas Output

New York, July 12.—Associated Gas & Electric System reports net electric output of 399,408,250 units for June, an increase of 44,859,820 units, or 12.7 per cent above a year ago. Production for the 12 months ended June 30 was 4,770,833,217 units, up 252,114,527 units, or 5.6 per cent above the corresponding period the year before.

Great Britain Buys $93,613,327 Gold

London, July 12 (AP).—The Bank of England today bought £20,002,848 ($93,613,327) of gold—its biggest purchase since December, 1936—to back its note circulation which now is approaching a record high under the stimulus to public spending power of the armaments program.

The latest reports show the circulation at present to be £505,721,576 $2,366,768,975). This figure is within £3,600,000 ($16,848,000) of the British record. Bankers said they expected to see the new high recorded in August. Last week the note circulation increased by £6,741,900 $25,552,092) — a figure almost double the increase of the like 1938 period.

HOW A LOAN HELPS YOU
1. It pays bills, restores credit. Balances the budget. Reduces monthly payments.
2. It earns cash discounts. Buys better value at lower cost.
3. It does all this at a total cost to you of only a few cents a day. Better look into it.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

"Why must the so-called experts plow through all the preliminary rounds in all events?" asks an English champion in a recent issue of The British Bridge World.

Not only in Europe, but here in America, it is becoming increasingly difficult to get the strongest players to compete in the various national events. The English writer believes that by exempting the experts from the early play more could be induced to color and add zest to the matches.

The British are using the Waddington-Par contests to raise the general standard of play, and here is one of the Waddington illustrations of fine defense.

South, dealer, vulnerable, against non-vulnerable opponents, holds:

♡ K Q 6
◇ A Q J 7
♣ 10 5 4 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♠	2 ♡	2 ♠
4 ♡	4 ♠	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

♠ J 10 7 6
♡ 8 5 3
◇ K 10 8 4
♣ J 9

South wins with the jack, and lays down the heart king, on which North plays the deuce. What card should South now lead?

Hold That Tenace

The complete deal:

	♠ A 5 ♡ A J 10 7 4 2 ◇ 5 ♣ Q 8 6 3
♠ K Q 9 8 4 ♡ 9 ◇ 9 6 3 2 ♣ A K 7	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ J 10 7 6 ♡ 8 5 3 ◇ K 10 8 4 ♣ J 9
	♠ 3 2 ♡ K Q 6 ◇ A Q J 7 ♣ 10 5 4 2

South's correct play is the seven of diamonds. North's diamond opening looks like a singleton. This is confirmed by his low discard on the heart. The return of a low diamond as trick three gives North a ruff, but preserves the major tenace in diamonds over dummy's king, insuring a three-trick penalty.

North's singleton lead is logical, based on his trump ace for an entry and a small trump for a ruff.

The bidding is controversial. If South bids a diamond to start, the pair may reach four hearts.

Ban on Curb Service Sale of Liquor Upheld

A ban on curb service sale of alcholic beverages yesterday was upheld by the Commissioners.

The prohibition recently was ordered by the Alcholic Beverage Control Board. Thereafter, licensees affected by the ban appealed to the Commissioners, but the Commissioners decided to stand pat.

Wins Scholarship

Bernard Wayne Graham, of 24 S street northwest, has been awarded a John McMullen regional scholarship in engineering at Cornell University, President Edmund E. Day announced yesterday.

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

The A. F. of L. may ask Senator Alva B. Adams, chairman of the relief sub-committee, for a hearing on S. 2765, Senator James E. Murray's life-saver for WPA employes who are asking for restoration of the prevailing wage rate. The bill, which found doors of the Education and Labor Committee shut in its face, is trying now to justify itself before the Appropriations Committee.

THE U. F. W. A. is singing a hallelujah chorus over an increased membership of 100 in Local 12 of the Labor Department. It is singing even louder than that over the agreement of Robert C. Smith to transfer United States Employment Service workers to other divisions in Labor. Smith reports that this will be accomplished on or about the first of August. Between 30 and 40 will be given permanent appointments. Provisional appointments will be handed over to 50 or 60 more.

THINKING UP names for twins is the world's easiest job. At least it doesn't sound half hard when you consider that Ellsworth P. Killip of the Smithsonian may have to invent dozens more than that for some of the 2,600 different botanical specimens which he recently brought back with him from the Colombian Andes. Maybe "invent" isn't the word. After reading a few of those ten-syllable words attached to some very meek examples of flora and fauna, we began to wonder whether botanists lug around a collection of dictionaries to christen their finds.

It seems they don't. They're very calm and efficient about it. This is the way. First of all, they take the Latin name for the general class of flower or plant. Then to that they add the Latin version of a word descriptive of the specimen. If it's a white flower, they can call it "alba." Or if they want to be even more original, they may use the name of the place where it was found or even the name of some fellow-botanist whom they want to honor. If he happens to be named Schnickelfritz, we leave it to you to get a Latin derivative out of that.

Killip is particularly interested in portions of a wax palm which he packed home from the Andes. He has parts of its leaves and fruit. This palm, according to Killip, can grow up to be nearly 200 feet high. Its trunk is coated with shining white wax that makes it look like alabaster.

When Killip intimated that he was brushing up on his Latin, we politely left him to finish his job.

CONGRESS GETS a glad hand from the AFGE. This is what the AFGE's brass hats said in an editorial and it sounds pretty nice. "Experienced legislative men," comments the editorial with obligato overtones, "admit that it requires a minimum of about three years to educate Congress as to the merits of a particular piece of legislation, even when those merits are fairly evident. The reason is that Congress has many matters pressing for its attention, and its members, though most of them are doing their best, simply have to be allowed time for study of the problems that come to them."

Any more bouquets like that may mean that Congress will have to have a dome several sizes larger to cover it.

WHETHER THE OATS come up or not, farmers still have problems. Several hundred AAA leaders, discussing the 1940 farm program at Agriculture, listed a few of them. Answers are not yet ready for publication.

1. If a canal company furnishes water for a rice crop, should it share in the farm parity payments on the crop?

2. Shouldn't a man who puts his field in trees get payments just the same as the man who puts his spare acres in alfalfa?

3. Where does the tenant's share stop? For instance, if a farmer lets a tenant farm 10 acres out of 100, permitting the other 90 to rest, should the former share in soil conservation checks paid on the latter?

Well, anyway, this is where our share stops, and as for permitting something to rest, we're not agin it. We're that tuckered out with the thought of it all.

FROM JOSEPH D. COOPER, now on the staff of the personnel office at Agriculture, comes that promised and waited-for questionnaire on interdepartmental employe activities.

Affixed to it is a letter from Cooper in which he states that the questions and their replies will be used in determining certain basic needs of individual organizations and agencies, and also for the purpose of immediately instituting certain fall and winter competitive activities. We looked right away for an item asking "Do you like to throw snowballs?" but couldn't find it. After all, summer is still here.

Cooper's questionnaire seems to favor centralized organization of activities spread through the various departments, and he also appears to wish to solve space needs through further co-ordination.

TO TAKE with your orange juice: Twenty years ago the world output of oranges was less than 75,000,000 boxes, of which the United States produced about one-third. Last year, the United States quota alone was more than 75,000,000 boxes.

It's a downright squeeze-out.

PULITZER PRIZE NOVEL

THE YEARLING

By Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings

Chapter XXXVII

"WELL, SIR, I was obliged to set down with that dog my ownself, to see what 'twas he was doin.' Now you know how a wildcat or a fox'll fool most dogs? He'll double back on his own tracks. Yes, sir, he'll double back on his own tracks. He'll git a good start on the dogs and he'll light out and put a heap o' distance between 'em. Then what do he do? He turns right back over his own trail. He cuts as far back as he's daresome to do, listenin' all the while for the dogs. Then he cuts off at another angle, so a picture o' his trail'd look like a big V, like the ducks makes flyin'. Well, the dogs follers the trail he made in the first place, extry strong on account of him havin' been over it twicet, and then they come to a place where they jest ain't no more trail. They nose around and they nose around and they complain, and when they jest cain't figger no sense to it, they turns back agin, backtrackin.' 'Course, they picks up then the turn-off where the fox or cat cut off in another direction. But all that time is wasted, and nine to one the cat or fox has made an out of it and got plumb away. Well, what do you figger this lop-eared dog o' mine done?"

M. K. Rawlings

"Tell me."

"HE FIGGERED IT OUT, that's what he done. He figgered out about when 'twas time for the creetur to double back—and he'd slip back along the trail and lay down and wait. And when Mister Fox or Mister Cat come slippin' back, there was old Dandy waitin' to pop out on him.

"Now sometimes he'd make his cut-off too fur back, and did he hang them long ears when he guessed it wrong! But mostly speakin', he studied it out right, and he ketched me more wild cats and more foxes than ary dog I've had, before or since."

He puffed his pipe. Ma Baxter moved her rocker closer to the candle. It was depressing to have the tale end so soon.

"What else did old Dandy do, Pa?"

"Well, one day he met his match."

"A cat or a fox?"

"Neither one. A big ol' buck, was as smart a deer as he was smart a dog. He was a buck with a twisted antler. Each year it growed in twisted. Now a deer don't generally double back on his tracks. But now and agin this old buck'd do it. And that was jest to this sly ol' dog's likin'. But this is where he wasn't smart enough. The buck'd do jest the opposite to whatever the dog figgered he'd do. One time he'd double back. Next time he'd keep on runnin'. He'd change his ways ever' whip-stitch. That went on, year in, year out, the dog and the buck tryin' to outsmart each other."

"Which was the smartest, Pa. How'd it end?"

"You shore you want the answer?"

He hesitated. He wanted the droopy-eared dog to outsmart the buck, and yet he wanted the buck to get away.

"Yes. I got to know. I got to know the answer."

"Well, hit's got a answer but no endin'. Old Dandy never come up with him."

HE SIGHED WITH RELIEF. That was a proper tale. When he thought of it again, he could picture the dog trailing the buck perpetually.

He said, "Tell another tale like that un, Pa. A tale has got a answer but no endin'."

"Now, boy, they ain't many tales like that in the world. You best be content with that un."

Ma Baxter said, "I ain't much for dogs, but they was a dog oncet I takened a notion to. It was a bitch and she had the purtiest coat. I said to the feller owned her, 'When she finds pups, says I, 'I'd like one.' He said, 'You're welcome, but 'twon't do, for you got no way o' huntin' it'—I wasn't yit married to your Pa—'and a hound'll die,' he said, 'if it ain't hunted.' 'Is she a hound?' says I, and he said, 'Yessum.' And I said, 'Then I shore don't want one, for a hound'll suck eggs.'"

Jody waited eagerly for the rest of the tale, then understood that was all there was to it. It was like all his mother's tales. They were like hunts where nothing happened. He went back in his thoughts to the dog that could outsmart wildcats and foxes, but never caught the buck.

He said, "I'll bet Flag'll be smart when he grows up."

Penny said, "What'll you do, do somebody else's dogs take out after him?"

His throat constricted.

"I'll kill ary dog or ary man comes here, huntin' him. Nobody ain't likely to come, is they?"

Penny said gently, "We'll spread the word, so folks'll be keerful. He's not likely to roam far, no-how."

Jody decided to keep his gun always loaded, against marauders. He slept that night with Flag on the bed beside him. The wind shook the windowpanes all night and he slept uneasily, dreaming of clever dogs that ran the fawn mercilessly through the rain.

In the morning he found Penny dressed as for winter, in his heavy coat with a shawl over his head. He was preparing to go out into the storm to milk Trixie, the only chore that was entirely necessary for the time being. There was no lessening of the torrential downpour.

Ma Baxter said, "Now you be peert and git back in here or you'll die o' the pneumony."

Jody said, "Leave me go," but Penny said, "The wind'll blow you away, boy."

It seemed to him, watching the small bones of his father leaning against the tumultuous air, that there was little to choose between them in bulk and sturdiness. Penny came in again, drenched and breathless, the milk in the gourd spotted by the rain.

He said, "Hit's a mercy I toted water yistiddy."

THE DAY CONTINUED as stormy as it had begun. The rain fell in sheets and the wind whipped it in under the eaves, so that Ma Baxter set pans and gourds to catch it. The rain barrels outside were overflowing and the rain from the roof gurgled into their fullness. Old Julia and the fawn had to be turned out by force. They were both back at the kitchen door in a brief time, wet and shivering. This time Rip was with them, whining. Ma Baxter protested, but Penny admitted the three. Jody dried them all with the crocus sack rug from in front of the hearth.

Penny said, "We're about due for a lull."

The lull did not come. Now and then there seemed to be a few moments when the wind and rain were less intense and Penny rose hopefully from his chair and peered outside. But he had no sooner decided that he would risk going out to cut wood and see to the chickens, than the deluge came again, as violent as before. In the late afternoon he went again to milk Trixie, to feed and water Caesar, and to feed the chickens, huddled and frightened, and unable to scratch for their living. Ma Baxter made him change his wet clothes immediately. They steamed and dried by the hearth with the sweet, musty smell of wet cloth.

Supper was not so ample. Penny was not inclined to tales. The dogs were allowed to sleep in the house and the family went to bed early. Darkness had come at an unseemly hour and it was impossible to tell the time. Jody awakened at what would ordinarily have been an hour before daylight. The world was dark and the rain was still falling, the wind still blowing.

Penny said, "We'll git a break this mornin'. Hit's a three-day nor'easter a'right, but sich a rain. I'll be proud to see the sun."

THE SUN DID NOT APPEAR. There was no morning break. In midafternoon there came the lull that Penny had expected the day before. But it was a gray lull, the roof dripping, the trees soaked, the earth sodden. The chickens came out from their huddle for a few forlorn moments and scratched halfheartedly.

Penny said, "We'll git a change o' wind now, and all be clare and fine."

The change of wind came. The gray sky turned green. The wind roared in from a distance, as before. When it came, it was not from the northeast but from the southeast, and it brought more rain.

Penny said, I've never seed sich a thing."

The rain was more torrential than before. It poured down as though Juniper Creek and Silver Glen Run and Lake George and the St. John's River had all emptied over the scrub at once. The wind was no fiercer than before, but it was gusty. And there was no end to it. It blew and rained and blew and rained and blew and rained.

Penny said, "This must be the way the Lord made the blasted ocean."

Ma Baxter said, "Hush. You'll be punished."

"Cain't be no worse punished, woman. The 'taters'll be rotted and the corn flat and the hay ruint, and the cane."

The yard was afloat. Jody looked out of the window and saw two drowned biddies floating about with upturned bellies.

Penny said, "I've seed things in my time, but I've never seed a thing like this."

Jody offered to go to the sinkhole for drinking water.

Penny said, "Hit'll be nothin' but rainwater, and riled to boot."

They drank rain water from a pan under the northwest corner of the house. It had a faintly woody taste from the cypress shingles. Jody did the evening chores. He went out of the kitchen door with the milk gourd into a strange world. It was a lost and desolate world, like the beginning of time, or the end of it. The vegetation was beaten flat. A river ran down the road, so that a flat-bottomed boat could have gone down it clear to Silver Glen. The familiar pines were like trees at the bottom of the sea, washed across not with mere rain, but with tides and currents. It seemed to him that he might swim to the top of the rain. The water was knee deep in the lot, which lay at a lower level than the house. Trixie had broken down the bars that separated her from the calf and had taken it with her to a high corner. They stood huddled together. The calf had taken most of the milk and he was able only to draw a quart or so from the drained udders. The passage between the stalls and the corn crib was a sluiceway. He meant to gather the dry husks for extra feed for Trixie, but the water swept through so discouragingly that he decided to let her make out until morning with the hay from the loft. It was a good thing, he thought, that the new crop of hay would soon be ready. There was little left. He did not know whether to try to separate the overgrown calf from the cow again.

Building Falls After Fire Fighting Tests

Heat Twists Girders In Experiment With Carbon Dioxide

The experiments with carbon dioxide as a fire fighting medium by the Federal Fire Council came to a dramatic climax—and possibly the end—when a large part of the old Firestone Building, scene of the experiments, collapsed under the excesisve heat yesterday afternon.

Washington's firemen of 14 Engine, 10 truck and the Training School had to leap in, and during the afternon poured thousands of gallons of water on the galloping blazes.

The building's three-story portion, with a 28-foot frontage and 90-foot depth, collapsed at 3:20 p. m., after several tests with the new fire-fighting chemical had been made in the early afternoon. Smoke ranged high over Southwest Washington.

The collapse, firemen said, was caused when the heat twisted the steel girders. A wrecking crew won't be needed to raze that part of the structure. Girders, beams, brick, concrete, everything that went into the construction of the building are on the ground or as near it as a heaping, twisting collapse could bring it down.

A crowd watched the blaze from the sidewalks.

Memorial Services For Mexican Flyer

Lieut. Comdr. Manuel Zermeno, Mexican Naval Attache, and Justo Sierra, Third Secretary of the Mexican Embassy, left yesterday for Mount Holly, N. for your Summer Coolness, Comfort and Smartness by that World Famous Chef, P. Beach, who suggests a

Palm Beach Suit

on our Menu at... 15.50

TAILORED BY GOODALL Palm Beach FROM THE GENUINE CLOTH

INGREDIENTS:

- Take a large portion of Angora Fleece Mohair and mix well with long Staple Cotton. This gives you a shape-retaining, soil-resisting, cool summer fabric known the world over as Genuine Palm Beach Cloth. May be either laundered or dry cleaned.
- Weave the fabric so that there are 1600 tiny "ventilator" openings to every square inch of fabric. This will let out the body heat and permit fresh air to seep thru. The "ventilators" will keep your body from scorching.
- Put this famous fabric on scale. Weigh out exactly 36 ounces. This makes a Palm Beach suit lighter than ever before.
- Build in the new "Shoulder Lift." This gives a snug, back collar fit and the smart appearance of a year around suit.
- Whip in a whole procession of new ideas in colors and patterns.
- Take a white suit and a leisure shade suit. Mix well for two more complete summer ensembles for sports, vacations and evening wear.
- Season to taste with darker patterns, in stripes, sharkweaves and subdued plaids for business and street wear.

All this takes only a tiny amount from your budget for Palm Beach Suits at The Hecht Co. are only $15.50 . . . The Lowest Price in six years.
